Leyton C.B.A.

Members of the Leyton C.B.A. who are on war service are as follows:—Mr. G. King, chemist in a munitions works; Mr. W. Blackman, Essex Regt., at present in training; Mr.
G. Tuck, serving in Territorials; Mr. S. A.
Griffin, serving in Territorials in France; Mr.
W. Marsh, naval reservist, called up on outbreak of war, was on the "Aboukir," when she was torpedoed, managed to reach the "Hogue," and had just had a rub down, and was in the act of drinking something hot, when she also was struck, and he had to take to the water once more. After floating on a piece of wreckage for about four hours was rescued by a destroyer. At present he is at Chatham, and gets a few hours leave occasionally, just long enough to pop home and see his wife and the birds.

A. W. FARMER, Hon. Assist. Sec.

From New Cross and South London.

Sir,—I have pleasure in forwarding a list of fanciers serving with the Forces for CAGE BIRDS Roll of Honour, and congratulate you upon the idea. All these fanciers are members of both the New Cross C.B.S. and the South London Col. and F.A., and, with the exception of Sergt. Joplin, have all joined since the commencement of the war.
I shall be pleased to forward any further particulars that may come to hand.

Rifleman F. W. Burton, Queen's Westminster Rifles. Serving in France (second time).

Private P. Cooper, A.S.C., Motor Transport. Serving in France.

Private J. Fuller, Army Vet. Corps.
Serving in France.

Sergt. J. H. Joplin, 20th County of London. Depot Sergeant.

Private G. Price, 20th County of London.
Serving in France.

Gunner C. Young, 4th Howitzer Brigade.
Geo. BURTON, Hon. Sec.

We are holding our annual show as usual
this year in the Friendly Society's Hall, Nov. 20, and Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) will judge, writes Mr. W. Lidgett, hon. sec.
Newark C.B.S., Helmside, Erdington, Birmingham.

"Please thank the 2 persons who answered my advt. I cannot afford to answer them all.
Who says there is no sale for birds during war times?"—WM. HAINSWORTH (Preston).

Coventry Godiva C.B.S.

Sir,—Our ex-secretary, H. Saunders, is the first of our society to join the colours. He is with the Motor Transport A.S.C.

F. A. GREEN, Hon. Sec.

Cardiff C.B.S.

Sir,—The following members of the Cardiff
C.B.S. have joined the Colours:—Mr. Merry, Transport Section; Mr. Charles, Engineers;
Mr. Gooding, invalided out of the Yeomanry;
Mr. J. Dugmore and Mr. Palmer, 5th Welsh; and Mr. W. J. Lewis, Transport Section.
Mr. B. Harriss and Mr. H. Townsend have gone away on munitions work.

E. THOMAS, sec.

Elgin C.B.A.

Sir,—The following members of our Association are with the colours:—Sgt. J. Cooney and Pte. W. Gordon (6th Seaforth Highlanders), Sapper J. MacBean (Royal Engineers). There are quite a number of fanciers from this district, who, though not members of any association, are at present or were serving their country. A local fan-cier, Pte. D. Catto (6th Seaforth Highlanders), was killed in action in June last.
I trust you may have above names included in your proposed Roll of Honour.

A. W. DOUGLAS, Sec.

[We hope that all readers who have knowledge of any bird-keepers serving their country will send names to us. It is our object to make this Bird-keepers' Roll of Honour as complete as possible, and our only reason for commencing with societies has been that this seemed to be, as it has proved, an effective method of getting from the very beginning a representative list. We know, of course, that CAGE BIRDS reaches the firing line regularly, and our readers who get their weekly copy sent out to them at the front or in the hospitals should also send us their names if they find that they have not already been included. An alphabetical list is being compiled as the names come in, and we shall ultimately publish this as a permanent record.—EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

On Keeping and Exhibiting British Birds.

By
G. MORTLOCK
(Stoke Newington).

A lecture given before the members of the London and Provincial O.S., on September 16th, 1915.

OUR Secretary, Mr. Huggins, has requested me to give you a paper on British Birds and Mule breeding. Now this is a tall order for one evening; it is also a task to try to tell you (or most of you) something you do not already know about this particular branch of the Fancy. I am sure there are a number of members present who are better versed and could do greater justice to this subject than I, therefore I will endeavour simply to enlighten those who are not so advanced. I also wish to say that I do not intend to deal with Mule breeding to-night, but will, if it is your wish, give you at some future time my experience. If, however, there are any questions I can answer later on that may help any of you, who may be trying your luck this season, I shall be pleased to do so.

No Success without Condition.

I do not wish to convey to you that my treatment of the various British I have kept is the best, but I will try to explain to you the manner in which I treat my birds, and I am sure that any of you who have seen my birds on the show bench will admit that in condition they fairly compare with others. Here let me say that in showing birds, condition goes a long way towards success. I have noticed many times that birds which have been low down in the awards would have stood higher if more care had been taken with them.

Then again there are some fanciers who do not take enough trouble in getting their birds used to the show cage, and this is a very important thing, for when the birds come before the judge they do not show themselves off to the best advantage, and when you see them some hours later, when they have become more used to the cage and the surroundings, you blame the poor judge. I have had the privilege and honour of assisting some of our most eminent judges at various shows, including our National Show at the Crystal Palace, and I can assure you that they would have liked to judge some of the birds again the second day, but of course they have to take the birds as they first see them. If you think that you ought to have stood higher in the awards, get hold of the judge and ask him where your bird fails, and most of our judges will be pleased to tell you; at least this is my experience I am pleased to say. Do not run about saying bad things of the judge, for it shows bad sportsmanship.

Get Steadiness from the Beginning.

Now I will tell you the way I select and treat my stock. For years I caught all my British myself, and have all my tackle at home now, but as there is so much restriction in most counties with regard to catching I have not chanced it for three or four years. In selecting fresh caught birds I have always gone for size and steadiness. If you are lucky enough to get in touch with a catcher, and will pay him a bit extra for the pick of his pack, you have a greater chance than by selecting one out of a shop window, although I have picked up some good specimens in this way.

In selecting likely Goldfinches for show, always go for size and distinct markings. I like to have a dozen good greys and moult them out, as I find they are more easily steadied, but don't get them too young or you will lose them. I remember buying some very young greys in the early part of July some years ago from an old catcher, more out of pity for the birds than the benefit of the catcher, as I could see they were what we call "Yelpers." I took them home and put them in a store cage with an old cock that I had used as a brace bird, and as soon as I put him in with them they chased him all over the cage to be fed. Well the old chap adopted them and rammed hemp and egg food down their necks, and saved the three. Two were cocks, and turned out two of the smartest Goldies I ever had.

Feeding Freshly-caught Birds.

In feeding fresh-caught Goldfinches I always give a mixture of hemp (crushed at first), flax, niger, teazle, and a little canary. As they get accustomed to the cage life I reduce the hemp and niger. Some are easier to wean off the hemp and niger than others, but of course you must watch and see their likes and dislikes. I always put them in a good-sized cage with water inside at first so that they can have a dip if they fancy it, and as soon as they start bathing I reckon they are likely to live. I also put an old bird in with them, as he makes them feel more at home.

Linnetts are treated somewhat similarly, but I give them less hemp, and when they are steadied down I drop the niger and hemp, and feed on German and English rape, flax and canary. Bullfinches I feed on canary seed and German rape. Give them a little hemp and sunflower seed, but not too much, if you do they will get very fat and lumpy. Then you must look well to their feet, or you will find that they will get clogged up, and lose their toes. The Chaffinch and Brambling I feed on a mixture of canary, summer and English rape, a little linseed, and a few hemp and cracked sunflower seeds. These birds are very fond of mealworms and also ants' eggs, also blow-flies and small beetles are very acceptable. Give them some occasionally, as they tend to keep them in good health and plumage.

Proper Keeping, Proper Condition.

I have brought a Chaffinch with me this evening to show you what proper feeding and cleanliness, combined with kindness, will do for this bird. I bought it from a poor lad some time ago; it was in one of the small back cages and in a very filthy condition. It had a few stumps of feathers in the tail, and its general appearance showed what a rough time it had had. Proper feeding and comfort in a larger cage made such a difference when he went into moult that if the lad could now see him, he would not know him. He also has his run in the garden without making any attempt to fly away. Of course the wife or one of my sons keeps watch to keep the stray cats from taking him off. My Fox terrier had him in his mouth one day, but he does not seem any the worse for it. It is very nice to see him catching the various small insects, which seem very tasty to him.

The Greenfinch is another very kind bird. I usually feed him on Canary seed, summer and English rape, with a fair supply of sunflower and a little hemp. These birds are very easy to hand-rear, and with patience can be got very tame. They are also very ready mulers, but they want watching.

Then there are the various Buntings. These I feed principally on canary seed, with a little hemp and cracked sunflower, also ants' eggs and mealworms, flies, beetles, etc. These birds I find are not so easy to steady as others, but with care you can soon get them to take a mealworm from your fingers.

An Interesting Trio.

The Redpoll, Siskin, and Twite are also very interesting birds, while the Redpoll and Siskin are very easily tamed. You must not let either of them have too much hemp, or they will put on fat in an alarming manner, and spoil themselves for show or breeding. I give the Redpoll canary seed only, with a little flax, rape and hemp in a separate pan, and to the Siskin I give canary, teazle, flax, niger, maw, and a little hemp in a separate pan. The more liberty these birds can have the better they keep themselves. The Twite I feed as I do the Linnet.

With regard to softbills, I have not kept any since I was a boy, and the only food we gave them then was crushed hemp and soaked bread, with any kind of small caterpillar and insect we could find. But the hardest time was the winter. We had never heard of dried ants' eggs or flies, or even gentles or mealworms. I believe it is possible to get gentles all the year round from some of the dealers, and it is possible to keep the most delicate softbills always in perfect condition.

MY OUTDOOR BIRD-ROOM : Its Construction and Its Fittings

By
A. E. MOULE

IF you have the luck to be possessed of a little skill and ingenuity, you only require patience, perseverance, and a little practice to enable you to become your own cage-maker. It is a somewhat tedious occupation, to be sure, particularly so, I should imagine, to those who are not fanciers themselves, but with a genuine love for birds, and more especially if you have what most fanciers call "bird fever," it is astonishing what things you can accomplish.

If you resolve to try and make your own cages, I should advise you to make them in the following manner, that will be the same as my own, and I have found them to be absolutely ideal. The best wood will be American pine, a quarter of an inch thick. Be careful that it is well seasoned, plane it nicely, and well sandpaper it on both sides. For the backs I find that the three-ply wood from tea chests, to be had from the grocer's, suits admirably. It is light, strong, and durable, and, providing you well sandpaper it, you will find it has a nice surface as well.

Single and Double Breeders.

Every fancier has a different view as regards the size of cages. In the course of my own experience I have found that some birds breed with better results in single breeders, while others, those that are as a rule spiteful or quarrelsome, require double breeders. So I myself have adopted both single and double breeders. I recommend the single cages to be 18ins. long, 16ins. high, and 11ins. deep, fitted with two perches; the middle rail to be 2ins. wide and 1/4in. thick, the top rail 1in. wide. Some prefer not to have this top rail, because it may harbour red mite, but I always have a top rail, for it puts a finish to the cage, and, providing that it is well glued, it does not harbour red mite. Leave a space one inch wide for a tray or slide at the bottom. I have two different types of trays myself, some entirely loose and some fixed to the front piece. I advise them to be entirely loose, without any kind of border attached whatever, the tray itself to be made of three-ply wood and enamelled.

This size of cage will give you space for a 12in. wire front. I prefer the fronts to have three bars, the doors to be 5ins. wide, so as to give easy access to the nest pan, and enable one to get this in or out without tilting. I do not advise anyone to make the cage fronts himself, for they may be got cheaply by sending to a firm of wire manufacturers for them.

The double breeders I have are 30ins. long, 16ins. high, and 11ins. deep, fitted with two perches, placed on the ends of the door, not in the middle. My object here is if the perches are placed in the centre of the door the occupants of the cage cannot avoid messing up whatever food is placed in the egg pan.

Two Cages in One.

I have the fronts of these cages in two sections, so that a partition may be placed between them to convert a double breeder into two single cages when required. In order to keep the slide in position you will require a bottom cross bar 3ins. wide in the centre of cage, also one at the top 1in. wide, but do not have a groove in these bars, or it will serve as a lodging place for dirt as well as for red mite; simply keep the partition in place with a piece of wire placed through the top and bottom bar bent over so as to form a letter U.

Make the slides of three-ply wood. I myself have two sets of these, one set blank, and in the others I have a wired space at the bottom 4ins. by 2ins. for the birds to finish off their young; it also prevents plucking. You will have to place two perches on either side of the partition, but put them sufficiently low that their tails will not come in contact with the wires through which they are fed. By this above method you will avoid the plucking, which is especially annoying if you have your eye on a good youngster.

In my own estimation you cannot do better than stain and varnish the outside of your cages black, with a light colour for the inside. The colour I have adopted suits admirably, that is, eau-de-nil, a French colour something after a light green, but, of course, every fancier has his own particular choice as to the colour.

I advise the use of enamel for various reasons. I have done my own cages now about five or six times, and it dries with a hard, smooth surface, can be easily cleaned with hot water or scrubbed, and looks well afterwards. When I am putting my cages together I glue every joint, and any space which may be left is filled up when enamelling.

An Enamelling Tip.

There is one thing I detest to see, and it may be noticed in a good many rooms; that is the enamel or paint running all down the cages in long streams. This eyesore is easily remedied in the following manner. First give the surface of the cages a good rubbing with sandpaper, and do about three cages at once. Let each side or back, as the case may be, lie on a level surface until set, and you will find by the time you have done the third one the first will be ready again, and so on, and in the end you will have a nice smooth flat surface. (To be continued.)

Some Reminiscences of An Old Fancier.

By E. HURDLEY (Madcley).

Near Squeak That Time.

BUT they could never induce her to enter the house, although she was evidently in the habit of visiting somebody else's, for up in the troughing under the eaves where she used to pretend to build a nest, were found brooches, hairpins, safety-pins, and other little nicknacks. Inquiries were made, but nobody ever came forward to claim any of the things, and nobody seemed to miss anything. But on one occasion somebody must have "caught her rapping." When darkness came on "Jack" had not returned from her tour, and enquiries were made in all directions, but nobody had seen her. Boys began to hear of the loss, and everybody was sorry about "Jack." No tidings could be found. After the street lamps were lighted, and everybody had given up the hope of seeing "Jack" again, my mother, who was mourning her loss to a neighbour, exclaimed, "Whatever is this coming hopping down the road?" She did not have long to wait for an answer, for presently "Jack" managed to get on a low wall close beside her and shouted "Jack." She had been knocked about, but soon became all right again. They do not know to this day where she had been.

Now somewhere about this time "Jack" made a change of sleeping quarters, for my brother, who kept a few flying Homers which always had their liberty, had a hole in the loft left open for them. This "Jack" had found out, and at night would be found at the very top perch in the loft, above all the Pigeons; and she was always first out in the morning and would fly up in the air with the Pigeons and circle round. She would sometimes get up to a much greater height than the Pigeons.

About this time we began to fear that "Jack" was getting uneasy. We had been told that nobody was able to keep a "Jack-daw" that had had its liberty for more than two seasons, and this proved only too true, as she disappeared one morning, and since then we have never seen her, although the old lady had good faith that "Jack" would return. I may add that the time of her departure was spring, and the breeding season, of course. This bird, although a hen, could say three words distinctly—"Jock," "Alice" and "Alf."

My next venture was with young Wood Pigeons. They were reared under Homing Pigeons, and were brought up by them until they could fly well. But when they were let out they made for the trees instead of the houses, and were soon lost sight of. I thought they might have settled down, but they seemed to prefer the open air to confinement, so I soon gave up experiments with these. I have also known wild Doves to act in a similar manner.

Another little find I had was a couple of Nightjars just hatched. These I found in a rocky part of a wood. If I had a chance, even now, to have a look round, I could find my way to the spot where I found these. I remember that there was no nest, and the eggs had been laid on moss in between some rocks. The young were hatched here, as I found the shells of the eggs close to the young birds; the shells were white, or nearly so, and about the size of Pigeons' eggs. The young were like two bits of fur; in fact, they put me in mind of ends cut from a cat's tail. When I approached the old bird, who was sitting on the young, she let me get very close to her before leaving the young, and then acted in the same manner as the Partridge usually does when disturbed from her young—flying and flapping about, as though her wings were hurt, and clinging to the rocks until I could nearly catch hold of her, but not quite. After she had led me on for some time I lost sight of her altogether. I returned, had another look at the young, picked them up, and found out all I could about them. I put my prize down again on the moss, as there was no nest, and returned again next day with one of my confidential pals to pass his opinion on them; but we were unable to find them, although I could have found the place where I left them to an inch. We tried the ground over and over again, but I could not produce the curios I had taken my friend to see. As to the old bird, as far as I can remember she was about the size of the Cuckoo, but I should say a shade lighter in colour; she was very nicely spangled, a shade lighter, and also, I believe (but this I won't be so sure about) the beak was the same shape as a Parrot's.

These stories I have written are absolutely true as far as my memory serves me, and the incidents referred to have come under my own observation.

A Reminder to Chopwell Members.

SIR,—At the last two meetings of the Chopwell C.B.S. only three members turned up at each meeting, so that no business whatever has been got through this season. If the members desire the Society to continue they had better try and turn up at the next meeting on Sept. 25, at 6.30, in the Club Hall. Subs. are now due. Any person desiring to become a member can have particulars on application.

A Combined Show at Nottingham.

SIR,—I beg to inform you that the Committee of the Nottingham and Notts. O.S. have been compelled to abandon holding the annual open show fixed for Nov. 13 and 15, in consequence of the Mechanics' Hall being occupied by Government authorities. In place of this we hope to be able to arrange for a combined Nottingham Societies' Members' show for Saturday, Nov. 13, if a suitable room can be found. I am asking the other local societies to send delegates to a meeting, when the whole thing can be discussed and arrangements made, and we trust that all members will give us their whole-hearted support to make it a thorough success, and be able to give the bird-lovers of Nottingham something worth looking at, and worthy of local fanciers.

J. G. ROYCE.

In Case of Short Entries.

SIR,—Mr. Chick, in his reply to my letter, seems to infer that if shows are properly managed there will be no need of any safeguard as to shortage of entries. I have been secretary of Plymouth for ten years, and although we have had on several occasions an average of 14 per class, I find that even then it is necessary to protect the Society against short entries in some way or other. We have always given good prize money, and our graduated scale this year is more generous than most scales, as a reference to your advertisement columns will show, but the point I wished to discuss was whether it is better to pay prize money in this way, and keep all classes, or to cancel those insufficiently filled. In Plymouth we have tried all ways to get increased entries, viz., (1) paid prize money first day of show, (2) given 25s. for 1s. 6d. entry fee, and in our Jubilee Show we allowed all classes to stand, but our entry, although perhaps quite as good as most shows, never increased as we expected. It is a remarkable fact, but if you pick up any catalogue you will find that 75 per cent. of exhibits are from exhibitors within 50 miles of the show; the prize money and the reputation of the show seems to weigh less with exhibitors than the length of the railway journey. In 1913 I took the trouble to find out and advertise the train service to 15 of the principal towns in the Midlands and North, showing how birds could get to Plymouth in one day, as our railway service is exceptionally good. We guaranteed prize money on first day, and gave 25s. prize money per class. The result was that we had three exhibitors, showing 12 birds, from the districts mentioned.

Mr. Chick has exhibited at Plymouth in the past, and he must know we have never paid half prize money, so that his strictures do not apply to us. But I am still of opinion that a graduated prize scale for all classes under 8 entries is better than cancelling; of course, 8 and over would get full money.

THOS. POPE.

SIR,—Mr. Pope has raised a question which has agitated the Fancy for as many years as I can remember, but its solution is not yet, that is, a solution agreeable to all. Mr. Pope says at Plymouth they have usually adopted the first solution he gives—Cancelling of classes. This I consider the fairest all round. A class that does not fill well is a loss to the society, and there is not much credit to an exhibitor in winning in such a class. Half prize-money classes are unsatisfactory to both exhibitors and societies, often the latter lose money on them, exhibits are without the chance of winning the cost of entry fee and carriage, and the honour of a win in a half-crown money class is nothing for an exhibitor to crow about.

In graduated prize-money is safety, so far as the society is concerned, but to the exhibitor it is a speculation, and to those of a sporting turn of mind it adds increased excitement and increased expectation if nothing else. Its great recommendation is its all round fairness. If exhibitors support the show well, they reap the benefit; if they don't, then the society is saved from loss; but there is the drawback of a win in a small class, and 1st at Plymouth counts. It did even thirty-four years ago when I first won first prize at Plymouth, and it does to-day. I hope the graduated scheme will work well at Plymouth, not only for the sake of the W.C.O.S., and the exhibitors, but also for the sake of the judges, of whom the oldest and dearest friend I have is one.

At Idle we are adopting the "cancelling of classes," which I think is the better plan, as by its adoption the birds are kept at home in comfort, and the society's money is saved. In cancelling, we shall exercise discretion, and not knock out say an odd poor class in a section which on the whole is good. We shall act as sportsmen. If a whole section is poorly supported then all the section will go. The half-prize money system is often abused, members are urged to cancel entries, and thus bring the classes down to half-prize-money to save the society. This is not playing the game, and we at Idle have decided not to lay ourselves open to that charge. I trust, however, that all our classes will fill; we have issued a classification uncommon in this district, and hope our experiment will succeed.

The Lesser Whitethroat and Nightingale in Devon.

SIR,—A great increase in summer migrants to Torbay has been particularly marked within recent years. The Lesser Whitethroat and Nightingale, both hitherto unknown in these parts, are not infrequently met with, and particularly the former," says Jas. W. Lund in "The Manchester City News."

Is it not the fact that the Lesser Whitethroat nests fairly regularly in Devonshire, and that the western boundary of the range of the Nightingale is generally understood to be the River Dart, a trifle west of Torbay? Perhaps some Devonshire reader will kindly tell us whether the Lesser Whitethroat and the Nightingale were "hitherto unknown" about Torbay.

PHILOMEL.

Idle Show.

A Disclaimer, and an Appeal.

SIR,—A rumour which has become widely spread, and which is likely to do Idle Show considerable harm, is touring the West Riding. It is said that Idle Show is being run by me in opposition to the Yorkshire Union, and with a view to injure the Union shows. The reason given is the unfortunate Halifax incident of two years since. The statement is absolutely false; such an idea has never entered my mind. I have no wish to injure any Union show, or the Yorkshire Union itself. Quite the reverse. Two years ago I stood for a principle, and fought for it. That incident is, so far as I am concerned, closed.

Proof that Idle Show is not being run in opposition to the Yorkshire Union is seen in the fact that it is a mid-week show, and that our schedule gives acknowledgement to the rules of the Yorkshire Union, which it certainly would not do if I was antagonistic to the Union.

Idle Show is the outcome of a conversation between Mr. J. Chippindale and myself. None of the shows in the district are being held on the usual lines. Idle Show has been conceived and is being carried forward in a desire to help the local Fancy in this time of stress. Mr. Chippindale and myself are joint guarantors, and I am acting as show manager. There will be no half prize money classes, as those which do not fill will be cancelled.

The schedule which we have sent out is an unusual one for this district, and I hope that exhibitors of Norwich, Borders, and British particularly will assist me in my effort to show the West Riding fanciers that these sections will support shows in Yorkshire if they are given the opportunity, even in war time.

Owing to the unique character of our classification only one judge, Mr. W. Mundell, has been announced, because our members, myself excepted, have not faith in the filling of the Norwich, Borders, etc. I have faith. I believe these classes and the British too will fill, and if they do Mr. Matt. Broadley will assist in placing the cards. I hope the entry will be such that both Mr. Mundell and Mr. Broadley will have a stiff morning's work. Mr. Broadley will take all Novice, A.O.V., and Selling, if needed.

I hope the result of our effort will be successful. Idle is the only show in the district offering stated prize money this season. On this ground I ask for support, and I would particularly appeal to the Novices and British bird lovers.

Birds in Bedrooms.

SIR,—We in Coventry barely find time now even to read CAGE BIRDS, but I did happen to note in one of your replies to a correspondent what an opportunity was lost of a fine lesson in eugenics. It was a paragraph concerning the keeping of birds in one's bedroom. I thought, Sir, the time had surely gone by when people closed their windows because of the terrible (!) effect of breathing night air. I have about 20 birds of all kinds in my bedroom, but I so contrive that the air we breathe when asleep is at least as pure and fresh as in the day, and your correspondent should certainly not keep his birds in his bedroom under any other condition; it is very unhealthy—for the birds.

S. ABEL.

Red Cross Show at Lochgelly.

SIR,—Would you kindly allow me to draw the attention of fanciers to Lochgelly show, to be held on Oct. 9 in aid of the Red Cross Society. Our classification is of the best: 97 classes, prizes 10s., 5s., and 2s. 6d., for 1s. 6d. entry, including a special in every class. We are also holding a championship class, with £1 for the best bird in the show; 10s. 2nd; 5s. 3rd; 2s. 6d. 4th; the best bird in each section to compete, free. There are also seven trophies, and a list of 120 open specials, including nearly £15 in cash. We are running the show for the Fancy, as all profits accruing from it are to be handed over to the Red Cross, and I would ask fanciers to help us in our efforts to do a little for a good and worthy cause. If any fancier who has not received a schedule will kindly drop a postcard to Mr. R. Muir, sec., Station Road, or to me, at 7, Park View, Lochgelly, we will send one by return. Do it now.

W. GREWAR, Treas.

Herbert J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—In answer to "Yellow Yite" and "Scot," I thought there would be someone write and not be man enough to sign his name. Why hide behind a nom-de-plume? Mrs. Dalton has not trod on my pet corn in any way. I do not claim a monopoly, but I do say this, that what I know about exhibition British Birds has been from practical experience, selecting from the store cage, moulting and exhibiting, and is not book knowledge. How many of the so-called British Bird experts have done that? Why is it that I have won so many prizes and sold hundreds of winners and practically every bird selected by myself? Most of the older exhibitors know whether I know anything about British Birds. Some of them have told me they have envied some of my birds many times. Perhaps "Yellow Yite" has had to play second fiddle to me when I was in the thick of exhibiting.

I have been out of the Fancy for six years, so some of the younger fanciers do not know what I have done on the show bench. I had a perfect right to condemn some of the so-called British bird judges. I did not condemn them as men; it was their ability as judges. I had a perfect right to announce that I was coming out as a British Bird judge (and could do it without blushing). Some judges advertise in the Fancy Press every week. I should think it is the ambition of a British Bird exhibitor to some day come out as a judge, that is, if he has the ability. I was also within my bounds to write to a few societies and tell them that I was coming out as a judge, without (as "Yellow Yite" says) begging for engagements. I could have judged a number of shows, but I was unable to leave my business on Saturdays, and I could have judged several, but my fee was too much for some of the North of England societies, the railway fare being heavy.

At one society my name was brought forward and the secretary was asked to write me to see if I could judge their show, it being on a Saturday, and to know my fee, but before the next meeting a British Bird judge from London wrote to the secretary saying that as he would be coming down to report the show, he would be willing to judge, it being the only show in the provinces that he would judge. They thought all the London exhibitors would follow him, but they were mistaken. I don't think there were any from London. Every man is worthy of his hire, and if I am engaged to judge a show I want a fair pay for a fair day's work.

Re guaranteeing classes, I have guaranteed dozens in my time. I have not put it through the Fancy Press or "Yellow Yite" might have seen it. I don't know whether "Yellow Yite" is a British Bird exhibitor or not (I expect he keeps birds, as he takes in CAGE BIRDS), but just to let the Fancy know that I am going to exhibit a team of my own selecting and moulting, all of them caught during the open season, 1914 to 1915, and just to see if "Yellow Yite" is an exhibitor of any standing, and if he is a sport, I will show ten to twenty specimens (seed-eaters) at two all-England shows, under two different British Bird judges, for £10, against any number that he will like to put down. Or I will show the above team (or part of them) against his, and if he wins more prizes than I do he can take my lot. But the birds that he exhibits must be birds that he has moulted himself. What is more, "Yellow Yite" can come and see my specimens as soon as they have finished their moult, and judge for himself if it is an idle boast. I will let him see that if he treads on my corns I can retaliate and he will find that I am as good as him at anything. When he has won so many prizes and brought out so many champions that have gone right through the show season (and some of them two seasons) and never been beaten, the same as I have, I expect he will think that he knows an exhibition British Bird when he sees one.

The Yellow Bunting is a bird worthy of a class to itself, and the only way to get societies to have it is for those who are interested to guarantee a class at their next show. Now "Scot," I take it you are interested in the bird, so I shall look forward to you guaranteeing a class to help to make it popular.

H. J. CHICK.

The Exhibition Yellowhammer.

SIR,—I think if Mr. Chick were to send some of his experiences regarding the birds he has kept and exhibited, for publication in CAGE BIRDS, he would be doing some good for his fellow fanciers, and I am sure as regards judging appointments a great deal of good for himself. In reply to his attack on Plymouth, I have exhibited at the W.C.O.S. show for the past seven years, and I must say the treatment has always been the same; birds back in good time, in good condition, and prize-money first post on the second day of show. Now Mr. Chick you were rather free with your money last week, let us see if you are as good a fancier as you would have us believe. I am willing to guarantee three-fourths of the British and Mule classes at Plymouth if you will guarantee the remaining fourth. Buck up fanciers, support one of the best-conducted shows in the Kingdom.

J. J. REES.

"Tortured Prisoners."

SIR,—You are evidently not of the fierce and bloodthirsty species of Editor of whom we all have a wholesome sort of dread, else your patience would have been long since exhausted by the effusions from the pen of F. A. Cox. Mr. Cox uses strong and intemperate language in dealing with the poor man's hobby. How does he know that that weather-protected cage which dropped contained a bird at all? More likely the bird which belonged to it (or its price) was inside the drunken man he makes such capital of; but it gave Mr. Cox something by which to gain a little extra notoriety and have his axe sharpened at the same time. He seems to be being effectively dealt with by a number of bird-lovers who, I am sure, don't waste their time writing in defence of "drunken ruffians." As a final touch of inconsistency, Mr. Cox refers to the vanishing Chough, and looks for no further proof than the existence of the bird lover. Can he tell why Robins don't swarm the bushes? Well, these lovely little creatures murder each other. Or why the Skylarks don't dim the sunlight of the summer morning and deaden other sounds by their glorious song? Because the cherished Starlings gobble up both eggs and the young of the Lark.

CLUB REPORTS.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Meeting, Sept. 4, Nelson Temperance Hotel, M. W. Wood presiding over a good attendance. The members were treated to a paper on the Canary, by Mr. R. Haggie. His paper dealt ably with all the various stages. Stock, breeding, moulting, and staging. A vote of thanks to Mr. Haggie terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchinson, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting, Sept. 19, Mr. Farrer presiding over good attendance. A deputation (Messrs. Swan, Waters and Sec.) with power to engage a suitable hall for Members' Show on Dec. 27, having fixed up for the Miners' Hall for that date, this meeting continued same. Classification for Members' Show was made: Nor., 5; Crests, 5; Cinn., 4; Bori., 5; Yorks., 6; Liz., 4; Brit., 5; Mule, For. (single or pairs). Judges, Messrs. Johnston (Wallsend) and J. Clark (Sunderland). Members will be allowed to put price on any bird exhibited. Fee, 6d. per cage. Admission, 3d.—J. Peacock.

LEITH O.S.

First meeting of this Society, Liberal Club, High Street, Sept. 11, Pres., Mr. Jamieson, chair. The meeting endorsed the action the President and Secretary had taken with regard to the public subscriptions, owing to the poor support the collector had received. It was agreed to get the usual posters, catalogues and prize cards for show to be held Nov. 13, in Junction Road Church Hall. Also agreed to have a Gift Class as formerly, and several members promised birds for same. As the next meeting is the last before show it is hoped there will be a large turnout of members.—George W. Brown, Sec.

FIFE C.B.L.

Meeting held in Coaltown of Wemyss, Sept. 7, before a very poor attendance of delegates. Mr. R. Campbell chair. Replies were read from the Fife and Kinross Plainhead Club, and the B.F.C.C. As there were no delegates present from Buckhaven, where the league show was to be held, the few delegates present thought it advisable to abandon the show. Meantime Sec. was instructed to write Mr. Paterson, Methil, asking him to cancel hall. After meeting Mr. Storrar read a paper on Allments of Cage Birds, which was very interesting. A vote of thanks to Mr. Storrar and the Chairman ended the meeting. Next meeting in Dunfermline, Oct. 2, when a full turnout of delegates are expected to be present.—Joe Sneddon, Sec.

GATESHEAD C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 11, Chairman, Mr. Alf. Holden, presided over a good attendance. Classes for our Annual Show were decided: Nor., 8; Crests, 4; Yorks., 7; Bori., 9; Scotch Fancy, 2; A.O.V., 1; Sell, 3; Mules 3; Brit., 9; For., 3; total, 49. Judges, Messrs. F. Laidlow, J. Stewart, J. Nicholson and J. Maddison. A discussion arose whether it would be advisable to have a two-days' show, and it was decided just to have a one-day, Dec. 11. Prizes: 10/-, 5/-, 2/6; fee, non-members, 1/6, members, 1/-; Also decided to get the same hall as last year, Rochester-st. Sunday School. Members elected: Rev. C. R. Appleton, Mr. Frost, Mr. T. Stevens, Gateshead; Mr. W. Smales, Acklington. Subs. are now due. Next meeting, Oct. 11, in Lockhart's Cafe, High-st. Not having a radius, fanciers from far and near can join us, and I will be pleased to send further particulars to anyone who sends for same. Entrance fee, 1/-; annual sub., 2/6.—W. Curry, Sec., 6, Roxburgh-pl., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

WEST BROMWICH C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 7, with an excellent attendance to discuss the business, re Open Show. After members had put before them the financial state of the society, which was considered inadequate for holding an Open Show, owing to the high charge required for a suitable hall, it was decided to again hold an inter-club show inviting the following societies:—Birmingham City, South Birmingham, Walsall, and Wolverhampton. It is hoped that members of these societies will rally round us on Nov. 20, which is the date of show. Mr. J. H. Roe judges, and schedules will be sent to all members in due course. To facilitate the business of society it was decided to alter day of meeting to a Saturday. This, we hope will meet members' wishes, and we trust to see again a good muster at the meeting. Any one wishing to become a member should apply to Sec. at 1, Hayes-st., West Bromwich, who will gladly give any information required. Those joining now will be in time to compete for the valuable shield provided by society for members, novice, and champions competing in their own sections.—W. G. Andrews, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 17, After a long discussion it was unanimously agreed that we hold our open show on Nov. 17 and 18, the show to be run in aid of the Prisoners of War in Germany Fund. In regard to the Carlton Banqueting Hall for the show, also a 45 lbs. challenge cup for the best bird bred 1915, Mr. Banks also kindly offered to let the Society have the use of the staging and bunting, the property of the Welsh National Society. We have increased the classification, and are giving 15 Norwich, 16 Yorks., 8 Bori. and 11 British classes, also selling and Foreign classes. Secretary was instructed to write to the Crest and Cinnamon Clubs to see if they could help us to add Crest and Cinnamon classes. The following members promised to help to the Show Fund: Messrs. Alf. Shellam £1. Smith 5s., Whetton 5s., Ball 5s., Braille 5s., E. J. Davies 5s., Allsopp 5s., James 2s. 6d., Wells 2s. 6d., Gardner 2s. 6d., Philps 2s. 6d., Weeks 2s. 6d., Howard 5s., Bowen 2s. 6d. I am still open for further donations. Will those members who were unable to be at the meeting try and help us; we want to make the show a great success. Now, members, let me have all specials and all contributions by the next meeting, or post on to me as soon as possible. Agreed that Messrs. Whetton, Banks, Davies, Ball, and H. C. Smith act as a sub-committee. The Rev. C. F. Norries was elected a member.—E. Thomas, Sec.

LONDON C.B.A.

General meeting Sept. 14, Red Lion, York-st., St. James. After general business had been transacted a discussion was opened by Mr. Wetchum on "If Canary seed failed, on what would you feed your birds?" This proved a most interesting subject, the members present, of which there was a good number, giving their idea of what would be a good substitute. The majority pinned their faith to groats. Among those taking part in the discussion were Messrs. Wetchum, Dowhurst, Robson, Trower, Pretty and Offord. A vote to the chair ended a very instructive and interesting meeting.—A. Wallington.

NORTHERN BRITISH M. & F.B.C.

The following societies have been granted our patronage: Newcastle, Blyth, Haltwhistle, Hartlepool, and Gateshead. The following specials will be competed for: Silver cup, Mule or Hybrid; silver cup, British; silver cup, Foreign; medal to each section. Three highest birds only to count in each section for cups; all points to count for medals in each section. 1 appeal to all fanciers to join. Membership is open to Northumberland, Durham, Cumberland and Westmorland. Annual sub., 2/6. Next meeting, Oct. 2, Shield's Cafe, Bigg Market, Newcastle, to decide what Table Shows to hold. Subs. now due.—W. Curry, Sec.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE C.B.S.

Special meeting held Sept. 18 last, with a good turnout of members. Announced that for annual show, Nov. 12 and 13, we had received the following prizes: Northern Crest Club, Northern British Bird, Mule and F.B.C. Northern Y.C.C., Open Norwich P.I.C., Border F.C.C., and Northern Border F.C. Decided to give the following classification: Norwich, 15 classes; Crests and C.B., 9; Yorks., 16; Bori., 18; Cinn., Nor. type, 1; Liz., 2; sell, 4; Mules, 2; Brit., 7; For., 1. We hope that fanciers, especially in the North, will give us their support, as we think we deserve same with our classification. Messrs. N. Penberton and J. Wardle were elected members.—Geo. Havver, Hon. Sec.

SHETTLESTON-CARTYNE C.B.S.

Meeting Sept. 18, Houston's Cafe. A splendid turnout of members gave the Chairman, Mr. Keudrie, every encouragement to carry out what we hope will be a great success—the Annual Show—this being our first. The proceeds will be handed over to a local institution, after expenses are deducted. Judges were appointed, and the following classes approved of:—Young Birds: Nor., 6; Scotch Fancies, 2; Cr. and C.B., 1; Bori., 8; Yorks., 2. Old Birds: Fancies, 4; Cr. and C.B., 2; Nor., 6; Bori., 8; Yorks., 2. Nov.: Nor., 2; Bori., 2; A.O. Can., 1. Brit., 8; For., 1; Sell and Gift, 1. New members elected: Mr. J. Shepherd (Uddingston), and Mr. D. McCaskill (Bellshill). Proposed: Mr. R. Gray and Mr. M. McLeod. A hearty vote of thanks to Chair closed a very enthusiastic meeting.—J. Irvine, Sec.

LONDON AND COUNTY A.C.B.

Meeting, Sept. 18, Victoria Hotel, Charterhouse-st. E.C., Mr. F. Harrison presided. The Chairman called on Mr. H. Bell for a few words on Colour-feeding, and he entertained the members for about one hour with a paper as follows:

I have been asked to say a few words about colour-feeding, but I am not going to try to improve on Mr. Hazel's lecture on colour-feeding which we heard here a few weeks back, as that was one of the best lectures on colour-feeding I ever heard. I was once much against colour-feeding, for I like to see a bird brought out a good colour naturally. Where there was one who used to colour-feed in years gone by 20 did not.

It is about 15 years ago, as near as I can tell, when cold or tasteless colour-feed came out. Before then birds that had colour-feed were called cayenne-fed birds. I have never been in favour of the hot pepper, and never will be, for I can bring a bird out a good colour on the cold colour. As I said before, I was once against colour-feeding, and I went on a few years without it, but I found out that I might as well give up showing as try to win with a bird that was not colour-fed against one that had been colour-fed.

If you make up your mind to colour-feed it is no use half doing it; when you start to colour-feed it must be done regularly. Some people are colour-feeding weeks and weeks before I start, and then get sick of it before the birds are properly through the moult. I think that leaving it off too soon is as bad as not starting soon enough. In fact I think that birds which are intended for continuous showing ought to have a little colour-feed all through the winter. When you have been feeding a bird up on eggs and colour-feed, if you take it off you will soon see the bird go back again, and not look so well.

You will have to breed for colour, as all the colour-feed in the world will not bring a bird out a good colour if you do not breed for it. I have over 50 birds, and they all get the same kind of colour-feed. Some of them are coming out a nice colour, and some you cannot tell whether they have had any or not. Keep all your best colour! birds for yourself, unless you have a tempting offer for them, and if you are able to buy a fresh bird to improve your stock try and get a good yellow variegated bird, as that will bring you colour and quality of feather, and will improve your stock for years if you have luck with it, but a good yellow variegated bird takes some finding.

I will tell you how I mix my colour-feed, but I don't want you to alter from the way you are feeding, now that the birds are half through the moult. If you do, you will have them patchy, and that will spoil them. I get one egg, a piece of stale bread, a few biscuits or stale cakes which they make at home (if I can get hold of them) and grind them in the egg mill, and then add two teaspoonsful of sugar, a little maw seed, and about three teaspoonsful of colour-feed. Then I put all through the egg mill about two or three times; the more you mix it the better colour you get. The ingredients named make an ordinary hash nearly full, enough to give over 50 birds a little each.

I should just like to say a few words about the bird fancy in general. I think when the war is over there will be a better prospect for the fancy than ever, as there will be plenty of work, and people will be able to buy birds better than before the war. It is the duty of all fanciers who are not able to enlist to keep the fancy going as well as they possibly can for the sake of those who are at the war, and I think every bird society ought to open a subscription list so that they can start a member with a pair of good birds when he returns from the war.

A big discussion followed, and questions were asked which Mr. Bell suitably answered, and a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Bell. Specials for the autumn were promised by Messrs. Durham, Dyer, Gullers and Gilbert, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close.—W. Gilbert, Hon. Sec.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Answered by CLAUDE T. JOHN.

BEETROOT BEATEN (Rex).—No, beetroot cannot be relied upon to colour feed birds up to the present day standard of colour feeding, but it would be a useful adjunct to assist the natural colour of so-called non-fed varieties, such as Borders. It is one of the things used in the old days before pepper feeding was discovered, but was quite superseded when the modern methods came into use. Neither is hot pepper feeding by any means essential, or even advisable, in these days, as the cold tasteless pepper, as the substance was unfortunately named, will do all that is really necessary. Even for the very highest form of colour feeding only a small proportion of hot pepper need be used, mixed in with the cold. As your birds take the tasteless well you need have no fear of the result, provided only you get a sample with plenty of colour in it. But in any case, as your birds will probably have made some headway with the moult it would not be quite judicious this season to make any material change in your colour food.

BEST FOR SONG (E. G. M.).—For singing purposes only you cannot get anything to beat the pure Roller, especially when properly trained under a good tutor. The runner-up would be a first-cross with either the Border Fancy, Yorkshire, or Norwich, preferably in the order named. The part of your query referring to British birds has been copied out and forwarded to Mr. Norman. Please see his columns for reply, and note that all queries relating to different sections should be written on separate sheets of paper, as they have to go to different persons for reply.

A POSER (Van Oppen).—Honestly, I cannot tell you how much per pair you would have to give to a noted breeder for stock birds in order to enable you to sell their progeny to wholesale dealers at the price you name. It should be obvious that wholesale dealers can only buy and sell according to the face value of the birds, and inherent qualities, or pedigree, must necessarily weigh little or nothing with them. Then, skilled management and mating of stock would naturally bear a far greater influence upon the value of the young you bred than the mere price you gave for the parents. If you study our advt. columns during the season you will find that the price you name is quite as high as many dealers sell the birds themselves, and I have very serious doubts whether they would give this amount for all one's surplus to anyone but a noted breeder whose stock was sought after. A much better plan would be for you to get a pair or two of good stock birds of a well-bred strain, and by careful breeding and occasional exhibiting for a few years gradually work up a reputation for your birds, and meantime dispose of the surplus as far as possible locally and through private advertisement, such as our prepaid columns afford. This, I think, is the only chance you have of getting the average price you name for all the birds you breed, at least, until your birds have made a name for themselves. The best time to sell would, at the beginning, be soon after the moult, but when you had acquired some experience in picking out the birds you did not want for stock at an earlier period, a first selection should be made before the moult commences, and thereby avoid the ordinary risks and expense of moulting them. I do not advise you to attempt colour feeding in the nest. As regards starting with yellow cocks and buff hens, or vice versa, you should certainly start and go on with both, and keep the colours crossed as far as possible; e.g., mate a yellow cock bred from a buff cock and a yellow hen to a buff hen bred from a yellow cock and a buff hen, and vice versa.

BIRD-ROOM HINTS (T. K. F.).—There is no reason at all why you should not fit up cages on both the walls, A and B. They seem to be very well suited for the purpose, and the fact that the birds will be always seeing each other will not hinder them breeding in the least degree when the proper season arrives. Fit up the cages on racks, by all means, and as you appear to be starting from zero I strongly advise you to have all cages similar in size and shape, and to stand separately on the rack, so that if the necessity arose during the breeding season any cage could be removed from the rack for overhauling and disinfection, and be immediately replaced by a spare cage without the change being noticeable. Start the first tier of cages 18ins. from the floor, which, with cages 16ins. high, will enable you to make four tiers, the bottom one being, if desired, made up of large flight cages for keeping stock in winter, or young during the period of growth.

EXTERMINATING RED MITES (H. A.).—Had you named the size and construction of your aviary I might have been of more use to you. If its polish or varnish is a consideration the following will be about the most suitable method for you, and with persistent effort for a few weeks should enable you to get rid of the pest. Keep a small quantity, say a teaspoonful, of paraffin handy in a wide-mouthed bottle well corked, and dissolve in it a penny cube of camphor. Then with a small water-colour brush dipped in this fluid go over every joint, crack, and corner of the cage inside and out twice a week, and at the same time remove the perches, keeping an eye on the ends where they rest on the cross-bars for any stray insects. Well scrape them, and dip the ends in the fluid before returning them to the cage. Do not forget the joints of the doors, and brush the fluid well into any open joint, crack, or vacant wire or nail hole. When the latter are quite freed from the pest they should be well plugged with soft putty, which can be coloured to match the colour of the cage. It is quite useless dusting the birds for this trouble, though it would do no harm to add a few drops of essence of quassia to the bath twice a week for a time, but do not pin your faith to this. Persistent effort with the fluid for some time is about the only method that will in such circumstances enable you to win through.

A GAPER (H. H. R.).—It is just possible that the gaper may be merely the effect of overfeeding, but it is frequently the outcome of bronchial trouble. Its silence just now is of no moment, as this may be the natural result of the moult approaching, if it has not already begun. See that it is not exposed to cold draughts, or sudden extremes of heat and cold, and do not expose it to the fumes of burning lights in the evenings, nor hang it high up near the ceiling. Continue your present feeding, except that you should give the paste only twice a week, and give a little green food daily. In the drinking water every second day for a week add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, tincture of lobelia, and sweet spirit of nitre every second day for a fortnight.

WASTING SEED (R. W. P.).—Although you say only one of your hens wastes the seed in the manner indicated, you should take the precaution to chew a little to see if there is any indication of mustiness, and if there is, the best remedy is to change it for a sample that is sweet and sound. If your present sample is above suspicion, treat as follows for a fortnight or so. For staple give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Give separately each day during the first week, and every second day during the second week, a morsel of bread the size of a large hazel nut soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Twice each week give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and maw seed, and a little green salad daily. Add to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day for a week, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

CREST ITEMS (Embryo).—(1) Beyond the necessary grooming of the crest to make it appear at its best in shape, droop, and radiation, the method of getting Crests into show form does not differ materially from that of any other variety. Possibly you are a little premature in trying to improve the crest, as there may still be "pen" feathers that are not fully developed, which are preventing the proper droop of others that are full grown, in which case the misplaced feathers will in all probability fall into their proper place when the crest is quite fully developed all through. Until this stage is reached I advise you not to attempt to improve it by soaking or heating the feathers in any way, but limit your attentions to gently brushing the crest for a few minutes daily with a small camel-hair brush, working from the centre to the tips and in the direction in which you wish the feathers to lie in order to give the best radiation possible, and being careful to avoid too much pressure on the base of the quills at the centre of crest, which is apt to exaggerate any tendency to a bare centre. When all the quills are fully developed and dried, if there are still any stray ones sticking up in the centre, moisten them with lukewarm water, then get a folded bit of old silk over the tip of the forefinger, warm it at the fire, and gently stroke down the feathers one at a time into the position they should lie, keeping the silk warm, and brushing gingerly and judiciously until the feathers are dry. Repeat this every day or two until the desired effect is attained, or, if this should fail, borrow one of the "better-half's" knitting needles, and after slightly moistening the feather warm the tip of the needle in a clean fire—tolerably warm, but not hot—place it against the under-surface of the feather and gently stroke the feather down over it with the thumb until dry. This needs careful manipulation to avoid extracting the feather. (2) The markings on the feathers you mention are due to slight imperfections in the web or quill of the feather, the cause of which is as yet very obscure. They are of very little moment, as they disappear in a short time, and in any case are quite unnoticeable after the first wash. (3) The specks on the tips of the new quills do not necessarily indicate a delicate constitution. It is more often due to a slight temporary check in the moult, which may arise from a sudden drop in the normal temperature, or even from an unusually profuse cold bath when the bird is rather bare of feathers, and not, perhaps, in the best condition. The condition is not infrequently the origin of the controversial "square feathers." A warm, equable, and slightly moist temperature during the period of feather growth should quite prevent the condition.

AILING NORWICH (H. G.).—(1) The bird will not sing whilst moulting, and apart from the moult I do not think there is much wrong with him. Make yourself quite sure that it is not exposed to cold draughts; do not hang too near the window where the temperature must vary considerably, but keep it in as cosy and bright a position as you can, and throw a light cover over the cage at night whilst it is moulting. Alter the staple diet to three parts canary to one part summer rape, and stop the linseed altogether. Once a week, in addition to the egg food, give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. In the water add, for three consecutive days, six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give five drops each of oxymel of squills and sweet spirit of nitre for three or four days. (2) The trouble is not infectious. If it really arose from being with the hen, it would merely be owing to its being exposed to the same conditions as the hen. (3) From six to eight would be sufficient to winter in the flight cage. One perch at each end midway between top and bottom, and another at each end resting on the front piece, would be better than two only, as it would help to prevent quarrels.

HEAD AND TOE (Scottie).—(1) As you say the toe is quite normal, and only the "nail" part is formed, I would advise you to nip off the nail with a sharp pair of nail scissors to about an eighth of an inch from where the toe joins it. This will probably cause it to bleed a little, so have a bottle of Friar's Balsam handy and apply a drop on the end of a match stick to check it. Slight bleeding will be of little moment, and the advantage to the bird will quite warrant the operation. (2) It is not always that these bald heads are amenable to treatment, but the following for the next few weeks should do all that can be done. Give a staple seed diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, linseed and broken groats twice a week. Every third day give a morsel of bread and milk lightly dusted with flowers of sulphur, and then dusted with maw seed, and on each of the remaining days a morsel of any green salad that is going. On the day following that on which you give the bread and milk, each time add to the drinking water as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence and ten drops of lemon juice. Treat thus for a fortnight, then miss a week, and then resume and treat again for a fortnight, and continue thus for a couple of months.

KEEPING THIN (A. P.).—(1) You should have no difficulty in adding to the substance of your birds after the moult is quite finished and the plumage tightened up. Give a staple diet of three parts good sound canary to one part summer rape, and in addition give separately every third day a piece of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the intervening days give first half a teaspoonful of boiled rape, and next a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle and broken groats, or, failing the latter, chopped sunflower seeds. (2) Do you mean that the one bird is only deficient in colour, or is it not casting its feathers properly? If the former, it is possible that this bird is a buff, and hence seems so much paler than the others. Even if it is a yellow, you must remember that all birds are not equally susceptible to the effects of colour food, and this is doubtless one that is non-susceptible. As the other birds are coming out well, it cannot be the fault of the treatment altogether. On the whole, I think you had better let well alone. If the bird is not dropping its feathers properly, place it in a little warmer temperature and add 20 drops of whisky and five of syrup of saffron to the water for a few days. (3) The seeds sent were accidentally lost in opening your letter. Please note that any sample sent should be securely wrapped in a separate paper or stout little envelope that will withstand the vicissitudes of postal transit. If the seed is canary with the husk removed, and the bird referred to in No. 2 is the culprit, separate it, keep it in a cosy place, and treat it as advised to "R. W. P." in this issue.

CRACKLING BREATH (Dereham).—(1) I am afraid the bird is really in a chronic state of bronchitis, and can only be temporarily relieved. I cannot advise you to attempt to breed with him again, as his progeny will certainly be strongly predisposed to the trouble. To ameliorate his condition now, you had better keep him in the warm room for the time being, and give a little soft food every third day until the moult is quite finished, varying it with egg food, bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, or crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. On the intervening days give first a pinch of mixed seed and a spray of green food, and next a morsel of banana. In the water add every second day for a fortnight four drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, tincture of lobelia, and sweet spirit of nitre, then miss a week, and repeat it for another fortnight. (2) Treat this hen the same as No. 1, but do not breed with these two birds by any means. To do so would simply be asking for trouble. (3) There is no objection to the hen going into the aviary with the other hen, but the cock should not be caged with the hens at all until spring, and only then if wanted to breed. (4) The gold of pleasure and sesame are most useful seeds for the purpose advised, and you should have no difficulty in getting them from any good seedsman who stocks bird seeds. Practically all the large advertisers of seeds in our prepaid columns stock them.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BEST BIRDS FOR SONG (E. G. Miles).—You do not say in your letter if you prefer seed-eating birds or softbills. If the former, the Linnet is the most popular, is not difficult to keep, and has a pleasing song. The Goldfinch is perhaps the next, is of gayer plumage, has a lively, cheerful song, but is scarcely so easy to manage as the former, although some of them live many years as singing pets. Of the Softbills the Skylark and Thrush stand first; the song of these birds is no doubt well known to you. To keep them in health they require fresh soft food daily, and a certain amount of insect food. Whichever you choose, I would advise you to get our little booklet on the bird it will give you full instructions about feeding and general management.

LARK MOULTING BADLY (G. Lowe).—I fear you have not been careful enough in the management of your Skylark, and it is just possible he has been in a draught or allowed to hang in an unusually exposed position. Your best treatment now will be either to place him in an extra large cage, where he can take plenty of exercise, or put his cage in a cosy corner and partly cover it up with a thin cloth; this will make him fret, and possibly start him again in the moult. At the same time feed him rather better than usual, give him some good insecticide mixture, adding a little hard-boiled egg, and be liberal with mealworms or any insects you can collect. Keep his cage perfectly clean, and about twice a week run him into a spare one and gently spray him with tepid water. Do not attempt to make him quite wet, just use the spray lightly.

AILING LINNET MULE (A. W. Elliott).—You do not tell me how you are feeding your bird, but by the symptoms you describe your treatment is not what it should be. Just now is a most critical time with all birds, as there is a great strain on them producing a new set of feathers, and you do not say if yours has commenced to moult or not. You had better give him the following aperient: Dissolve as much Glauber salts in two tablespoonfuls of water as will cover a three-penny piece, and mix with it four drops of syrup of rhubarb. Give this for one day only, and then miss a couple of days, and repeat. Give a little bread and milk daily, slightly moistened with sugar, and twice a week a spoonful of hard-boiled egg and biscuit. Let his seed be three parts canary, one each of teazle and summer rape, and offer a spoonful of Finch mixture twice a week. Let him bathe daily on fine days, and be careful to keep him out of draughts.

KEEPING A MAGPIE.—I am sorry about your Magpie, as you appear to have fed him fairly well since you have had him. I am afraid he is now suffering from acute indigestion and bowel trouble; probably he is weakened through the method in which he was hand-reared. I much prefer a more nutritious and less strong food than he had. In keeping these birds in captivity an aperient occasionally is very necessary, and you do not appear to have given him one, so you had better let him have this at once. Dissolve in three tablespoonfuls of water as much salts as will cover a shilling, and give him for one day only; then offer him daily a little stale bread soaked in hot milk, and well dusted with bismuth. As regards the position of the cage, it would certainly be better if placed outside, but with care and attention to cleanliness there is no reason why you should not keep him as you do now. I have kept these birds under all conditions and had very little trouble with them.

GOLDFINCH MULE NOT SINGING (Berwyn).—After having had inflammation of the bowels and then the moult, you can scarcely expect your bird to sing for some time; in fact I shall be surprised if he does much in that way until the end of the year. You appear to be feeding him correctly, excepting that I would advise a little soft food or soaked seed about twice a week, and a small spoonful of chemical food in the drinking water every other day, boiling the water first, or it will not mix; a daily bath would also assist him.

GROWTH ON WING (S. Potter).—I do not care much for your sample of seeds that you send me, it has 400 much niger, and not enough rape. You had better make up the following mixture yourself: Sound canary three parts, teazle two parts, rape and linseed one part each; this as a staple food, and then use your gold of pleasure, niger and maw as a tit-bit to be given, say, two or three times a week. As regards the growth on the wing, this is probably a cyst, and requires a surgical operation to remove it. If you know a medical man or chemist who would do it for you, it would be far better than attempting it yourself. It is this that makes your bird so bad tempered; no doubt it is somewhat painful.

BIRDS FOR LARGE CAGE (Bird Lover).—Your aviary is really no larger than plenty of Canary-keepers' breeding-cages, so you see you cannot expect to keep many birds in it. Four or five cock British would be quite sufficient, and if you attempt to breed you must give it up to one pair only. Greenfinches would be the most likely of the British Finches to nest in it, as these do fairly well almost anywhere. Of course, they are the commonest of our Finches, and if you would like to make the trial with something more choice there is no reason why you should not make an attempt with a pair of Goldfinches; if these bred with you you would be well repaid for your trouble.

MIGRANTS FOR AVIARY (Rusticus).—In an aviary the size you mention it would be possible to keep any of the Softbill migrants, and with these you stand a much better chance of keeping your shrubs intact than with the Finches, which invariably destroy all living plants, even in quite large aviaries. The following birds have been kept in an aviary all the year round here in Surrey, and the climatic conditions with you would be much the same; and I gather from your letter that your aviary is rather more covered in. The list is: Nightingales, Blackcaps, Whitethroats, Wheatears, several foreign birds, including Gouldian Finches, and all the British Finches. In your place I would make an attempt with the four first on the list. Skylarks have also bred here, but although particularly interesting from an avicultural point of view, they are not very remunerative, as they require plenty of insects, and can be bought cheaply. I am rather interested in your account of the Bullfinches breeding with you as these birds are not generally very successful when in captivity. If you decide to try with the Softbills mentioned above you should secure them as early as possible, and turn them out while the weather is fine.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

PLANT CUTTERS NOT REQUIRED (Rusticus).—Finches (Weavers and Serins, also Red-crested Cardinals, Siskins, and Serins generally) are all very destructive to plant-life, but if the numbers are not too great, and the living green is plentiful, they should not do much more than useful pruning. In a garden aviary, 30 x 30 x 15 feet high, I have about 40 various Finches, and about 20 or more softbills, the latter ranging from a Thrush to a Tanager and Sugarbird. I have rather a prejudice against lilac for an aviary, and prefer such plants as hazel, common broad-leaved laurel, elder, Portugal laurel, evergreen and golden privet, retinosporas, aucubas, and rambler roses, eleagnis, hops, nasturtiums, canary creepers, etc., to cover the internal standards. With such flowering plants as michaelmas daisies, perennial sunflowers, bedding pelargoniums, marigolds, cornflowers, etc., a most attractive effect can be gained, as well as adequate cover for the birds. The question of covering cost is a difficult matter; the results of the various seasons vary, and some pairs may breed and others not. If you want the aviary to be as near self-supporting as possible it is of no use buying cheap, common birds. Gouldian Finches, if you have luck with them, should pay. Among the softbills you could have Gold-fronted Fruit-suckers, one pair of Thrushes (such as Orange-headed Ground Thrushes, or some showy species of Rock Thrush), Black, Blue, Maroon and Archbishop Tanagers could be included, also White-eyes, Sugar-birds, Redstarts, Flycatchers, (not easy to get now). A pair of Diamond Doves ought to more than pay their keep, so also should a pair of Australian-crested Doves. Small birds should be domiciled in the aviary first, and then the large ones introduced as opportunity offers. I have never found hardbills or softbills to take any hurt from part-taking of each other's food. If still in doubt on any point repeat query to that extent.

BUDGERIGARS IN OUTDOOR AVIARY (E. K.).—Your aviary should provide accommodation for fifteen birds all told. Twiggy branches are the best for perches, and you must put up at least half a dozen husks; fix these as far apart as possible, but the openings of the husks must face the light. You will not have much luck unless you have your shelter ("covered-in room") well lighted. Such hardy species as Budgerigars can be allowed to go in or out at will all the year round, but during very severe spells or long continued cold wet weather, it would be well to shut them in at night. If you were to fasten roosting felt over the north and east sides of flight during the winter months it would make the birds more comfortable. It can easily be fastened on with a little binding wire, and be as easily removed in the Spring. For breeding purposes you should only put in three pairs, and confine your breeding stock to that number, as even then during the breeding season your aviary will at times be overstocked. Your best plan will be to dispose of the young as they are able to fend for themselves. The pair you have now can be put out at once, as also can others if you procure them from outdoor aviaries; buy each pair from a different source. Your adult pairs should be rung, so as to be able to distinguish them from their progeny, if you keep any of the latter past the moult. Do not deplete your post with virgin cock; get some ordinary bark from a timber yard, or collect from field or hedgerow if you have such in your vicinity.

GREY PARROT AND GRIT (E. M.).—I should not force the Parrot to eat grit, it is natural to them to take it when they need it, and it will do so if the supply be constant. Keep the bird's bowels moving very freely for the next two months; at the same time the voidings should not be allowed to remain watery-lose; give one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in the drinking-water, as often as may be required to secure this. Roughly the diet of a Parrot should be confined to seed mixture, ripe fruit, and a few nuts; such extras as dry boiled potato, raw carrot, stale crusts, biscuits, and plain cake may be offered to vary the diet, but do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, or any kind of animal food whatever. Keep grit, cuttle-bone, and a thick piece of a branch (the latter for mandible exercise) continually in the cage. If you think the bird needs a tonic at any time put half a teaspoonful of Chemical Food in the drinking water for a time. While the bowels must not be abnormally loose at any time, the least semblance of constipation must be rectified at once. Our "Grey Parrot" Nutshell, 2d., from our Manager, would help you as to general treatment.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A. Lodge.—Thanks for cuttings, which we hope to be able to utilise.

W. P. Beckett.—We have adopted the proceeding suggested by your initials. Your second letter, over the initials "W. R. B.," has accompanied the first. What do you think would happen to the eyes of birds which were sprayed with a solution of camphor in petrol and paraffin?

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex; will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post: it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. J. Williams.—Bird died of pneumonia and inflammation of bowels, caused by poison taken with the food; not mineral poisons, but those developed as the result of warm weather.

Puzzled.—Fatty degeneration of the liver brought about by some error in feeding. Give plain canary as a staple article of diet, with once or twice weekly a pinch of rape only. Avoid egg-food, anyhow, for a time.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE

By H. NORMAN.

The Most Thorough and Practical Work on British Birds ever Produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth. Part I. Hardbills. Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II. Softbills. With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth 2s., post free 2s. 3d., in parts 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

The author, that well-known expert and judge, gives much useful instruction on AVIARIES and CAGES, BREEDING, MOULTING, EXHIBITING, DISEASES & THEIR CURE, SEEDS, Etc., and devotes a separate chapter to each individual variety. Get a copy now; it will help you this coming breeding season.

this book
any more time and money on your birds*

Haphazard methods, which are only foolish in ordinary times, are positively criminal in War time. Many a man wishes he had the time and money over again that he has dropped on his cage-birds. There is no reason why Cage Bird Breeding, so delightful and so scientific a hobby when properly pursued, should not be also a most profitable hobby, too.

The Thing is to Learn from the Experts.

And here is a book, written by experts in every department of profitable cage-bird keeping which you may read and examine for five days without any obligation to order it at the end of that time, if you do not think it will help you. This offer is in itself a guarantee of the value of the book.

But the work has had an extraordinary sale; you must send off the FREE Approval Form below AT ONCE if you wish to get a copy on these excellent FREE Approval terms. For only a very few copies remain to-day; and when these are disposed of it will be impossible to get "CANARIES, HYBRIDS & BRITISH BIRDS" under any circumstances whatsoever.

OUR BUYERS WRITE TO PRAISE IT.

N.B.—These two letters are to hand this week!

MR. JAMES BALL, Atherstone, Warwick, writes:—

MR. S. C. JOHNSTON, Kileronagh, Ireland, writes:—

"This is the most instructive book on the breeding and management of Cage Birds I have ever read; it is entitled to all that the publishers claim for it. I am sure such a valuable book will be welcomed by every bird fancier."

Twitterings.

South Shields C.B.S. will hold its annual show on Dec. 4, writes Mr. W. J. Smith, hon. sec. Mr. H. W. Battye will judge.

Please intimate in CAGE BIRDS that my address is now "Stepps, Glasgow," instead of 27, McLennan Street, Mount Florida, writes Mr. Robt. Hoggie. Show secretaries might take note.

Mr. J. Jackson, hon. sec., Cockerham F.S., writes that the show of the society will be held on Nov. 27, not on Nov. 10, as stated in a Twittering last week. Will other sees. notice?

The postponed lecture by Mr. G. Gamble, of Winchester, on the Yorkshire Canary, will be given on Oct. 5, at 7.30, at the Waterloo Temperance Hotel, Southampton. Owing to the very poor attendance on Sept. 1, writes Mr. W. L. Page, hon. sec. Southampton C.B.S., we were obliged to postpone lecture. Non-members will be made welcome.

Mr. J. G. Torbett writes that there will be 10 classes at Muirkirk show, Nov. 13. Variegated cocks and hens will have separate classes. Mr. D. Hamilton will judge.

We have received the patronage of the following specialist clubs, writes Mr. W. Tallantyre, hon. sec., Halthistle C.B.S.: Northern Norwich P.C., Northern Yorks. C.C., Northern British Mule and F.B.C., Northern Border F.C., and also three medals from the Border Fancy C.C.

The Exhibits for Clapham Show.

I should be greatly obliged if you would kindly notify that our show is only "open to those fanciers who will bring their exhibits to the show and take them away after," as I have had a great many enquiries for schedules from country exhibitors, writes Mr. T. J. Hose, Hon. Sec., Clapham C.B.A. The judges will be: Norwich and Yorks, Mr. P. Rorke; A.O. Canaries and Hybrids, Mr. W. H. Vale; British and Foreign, Mr. H. J. Fulljames.

Birds with a Fine Record.

I cannot speak too highly of the drawing of my birds which appeared on the front page of CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. J. McAndrew. It does your artist, Mr. Norman, great credit. Before the wins at the Crystal Palace, the buff cock stood 1st and special at Langton, 1st Warrington, and 1st and special Wigan, while the yellow had won 1st and special Longton, 1st, special, and CAGE BIRDS Diploma at Warrington, 1st and special Wigan, and several 2nd and 3rd prizes. The Crystal Palace show was my first attempt among the champions. The Buff was claimed at the Palace for £7 7s.

SIR,—We have one member serving with the colours—W. Woodhead, 2nd Fourth West Riding.

HARRY CLEGG, Sec.

Hemsworth C.B.S.

SIR,—The following members have joined the colours: A. Graham, R.F.A.; W. Brown, K.O.Y.L.I.; H. Kendrick, Sherwood Foresters; I. W. Gilling, K.O.Y.L.I.

JAS. HALL, Sec.

Colinton and Currie Parishes O.S.

SIR,—Your idea of getting up a Roll of Honour is splendid. The members of our society are greatly pleased with their own list, and we are paying all the subscriptions of our fighting members, and are keeping them as members. In fact, members who are unable to enlist are looking after the birds of those who have enlisted, and they hope by this means to give them a good start in the Fancy if they are spared to come back safely. We have a total membership of thirty-one, and ten have enlisted: Sergt.-Major J. Dewar, 4th Royal Scots (King's Prizeman), home from the Dardanelles with sunstroke; Pte. Hugh Dickson, Scatforth Highlanders; Pte. James Johnstone, 5th Royal Scots, wounded at the Dardanelles, but back in the trenches; Pte. Wm. Downie,

A.S.C., in France; Pte. Robt. Davidson, 1st Batt. Gordon Highlanders, wounded at Hooge, but has recovered, and is back in the trenches; Pte. Andrew Davidson, 6th Royal Scots, Dardanelles; Pte. Jas. Ferguson, 9th Royal Scots; Pte. Jas. I. Yellowless, R.A.M.C., in France; Pte. Arthur Morrison, Sapper, Royal Engineers, in France; Pte. Peter Rigby, A.S.C.

JAS. NAPIER, Sec.

Halifax C.B.S.

SIR,—The following are the members of our Society who have enlisted since the war began. I wish you would add them to your worthy Roll of Honour: Pte. F. P. Sunderland, 2nd West Yorkshires; Pte. Arthur Crabtree, 3rd/4th West Ridings; Pte. G. H. Fletcher, R.A.M.C.; also Vice-President Pte. Albert Brooks, 3rd West Ridings. The best wishes of all our members are extended to them for a safe and early return to the society.

A. SUTCLIFFE, Sec.

Mr. Wm. Adams, ex-sec. Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S., has enlisted in the A.S.C.M.T. as a smith, and is at present stationed at Grove Park Camp, Lee. His official address is Private Wm. Adams, 117491, E Company, No. 2 Section, A.S.C.M.T., Grove Park Camp, Lee, S.E.

Yorkshire Union New Hand-book.

We have received the year-book of the Yorkshire Union of C.B. Societies. The annual is produced in the well-got-up style which is now so well known. It contains portraits of the President, Mr. J. Butler, and the Secretary, Mr. S. Midgley, the names and addresses of the officials and delegates to the Union, the general rules, the show rules, list of societies affiliated to the Union with dates of their shows, names of judges, and copies of the schedules, particulars of the competitions promoted by the Yorkshire C.C., with list of Patronage Shows, the competitions of the National Green-marked Y.C.C., and much other useful information. The Secretary's address is 10, Victoria Street, Clayton, Bradford.

OBITUARY.

Mr. H. CHEW, LEEDS.

It is with sincere regret that we learn, writes Mr. E. Norton, hon. sec., Leeds C.B.S., of the death of Mr. Herbert Chew on Sept. 20, in his thirty-fourth year, after a very long illness, at the Leeds General Infirmary. Eldest son of Mr. Alf. Chew, of the late firm of Messrs. Chew and Stokoe, Mr. Herbert Chew was a prominent member of our society, and I am sure all members and friends will sympathise with his widow and parents in their sad bereavement.

Mr. J. Walsh, Blackburn, sends us three samples of Spanish Canary seed which he expects to arrive from Spain per the s.s. Ciscar. All the samples are clean, sound, and full, and appear of excellent quality. Mr. Walsh says he will be very pleased to send samples, as per his advt., to any reader of CAGE BIRDS.

I shall be glad if you would kindly announce that owing to pressure of business I have been obliged to resign the secretaryship of the South London Col. and F.A., writes Mr. Geo. Burton. My successor is Mr. J. Luckham, 447, Old Kent Road, S.E., to whom all communications should now be addressed. I thank members for the way they have supported me in the past, and hope they will continue to give their best support to Mr. Luckham in the future.

The Printer Takes a Hand.

We fancy the Twittering of Mr. Hainsworth last week must have raised many a smile, for he was made to say that he could not afford to answer "all" the "two" people who replied to his advertisement. Mr. Hainsworth wrote eighty-two, not two, and it was Mr. Printer who introduced the element of comicality into the Twittering by rendering it as it appeared.

All Exhibitors bear these Dates in Mind

Stall Holders and Advertisers of Stock or Appliances can obtain particulars and prices of space in Catalogue, Schedules, or Show, by applying to the Show Manager.

Mr. Arthur Howard, of J. Howard and Sons, Norwich and London, Bird Dealers and Shippers, will be at the secretary's office throughout the continuation of Idle show, and will be prepared to treat with breeders of Norwich and Yorkshire Canaries who have surplus stock for sale.

Mr. J. Pitchford, Stoke-on-Trent, has forwarded for inspection one of his registered seed boxes as advertised. Besides having the advantage of a perforated bottom and front, the box should be especially useful in preventing waste of seed, as the bent wire contrivance renders it impossible for a bird to scatter the seed when feeding. The prices are very moderate for so well made an article.

WILD FOODS FOR SEED-EATING BIRDS

By

The following article, which treats of the wild foods available for pet-birds during October, is the concluding instalment of the helpful series which has been running in our columns monthly since April. The first article was published in our issue dated April 10, and the intervening ones have appeared in the first issue of each month.

WHEN the page headed September is torn from the calendar, the flood time of autumn weed foods is stayed. Swiftly follows the inevitable ebb.

October finds the knapweeds emptied of their seeds, the rapes and charlock spent and dead. The thistles have taken wing, shepherd's purse and chickweed have run their second course, and milk thistle is done at last. Groundsel still makes growth, and will continue to do so until frost appears. Cornbine and persicaria linger yet, partially depleted of their leaves, and, like teasle, fast shedding their seed, but still worth getting. These are all that are left of September's bounty.

A Food Problem.

Sorrel and docks have long been brown and ripe, dotting the country-side with harsh unloveliness, but their seeds are in no hurry to fall. Nor will they be so till visited by frost. Then is the time to get them for the Bullfinch. So with nettles; late in the year, when they are dry and withered, Bullfinches pull these to pieces, find something, and chew it up. Whether what they find is seed, or the larvæ of some insect I cannot say.

Blackberries, too—late ones which never mature, and which cling to their thorny stems long into the winter—are better for the Bullfinch fed in clusters, dry and shrivelled, than singly, ripe and juicy. Possibly again because of the presence of some unseen larvæ, or it may be (as is, I think, the case with dock seeds) that there is some alteration in their chemical composition wrought by frost. Whatever the reason, these three foods in combination have excellent effect in levelling and "toning up" the breast colour—a point much coveted in Bullfinches. They also do yeoman service in bridging the gap that divides fresh-caught specimens from those domesticated.

Other food stuffs are furnished in October by the trees and bushes. Privet berries, for instance, are changing rapidly from green to black, and these black privet berries bring to the Bullfinch's back its proper colour—a sort of silvery grey-blue. Greenfinches, too, are fond of them, and Chaffinches and Bramblefinches are often inclined to eat a few. They remain on the bushes right through the winter, and well into the spring, and are, in fact, improving all the time.

The Hawfinch's Monopoly.

Haws, the familiar red berries of the hawthorn, which also stand the winter, provide a keenly relished luxury for the Hawfinch. No other seed-eater can make use of these berries, but the Hawfinch has a workmanlike knack of stripping off the fleshy outer covering and cracking the hard "stone" it encloses in order to get eventually at the tiny kernel, which he eats; and he alone amongst the Finches is able to obtain food and enjoyment at the expense of hawberries.

Beechmast, the brown, hard-skinned, three-cornered kernel of the beechnut, is a good winter food for Bramblefinches, Chaffinches and Hawfinches. A little perseverance may be needed until the birds "discover" it, and it is necessary to crush it well beforehand. The fruit of the beech tree is a sort of hard rough pod, enclosing three or four sections of kernel, which fit together after the fashion of the quarters of an orange. When, in October, maturity and ripeness are attained, the pods open and release the imprisoned kernels which then fall to the ground. In years of abundant yield it is easy to scrape together and carry away a supply sufficient for months, but the task should be undertaken in good time, or the bird-keeper may be forestalled by squirrels, doves, wild pigeons, Jays, and other candidates.

And with October here, having exploited wild weed foods, from the humble, creeping chickweed to the stately giant beech, my pen runs dry. Winter approaches; his breath already strikes us chill; perhaps that is what is drying up my ink. What sustenance wild Finches find in winter, who can say? The scarcity of food is palpable. You see them visit many gaunt and withered relics of the autumn. Dead thistles, yarrow, nettles, heather, spurrey, tough old grass, the stubble weeds, and so on. What do they find?

A Mistaken Notion.

Soaked and sodden seeds you will be told offhand by the—in this particular matter—unobservant bird-catcher. "Experts" enunciate the same unthinking doctrine. But rarely indeed will your most diligent probing discover, in the winter, any trace of seed in these plant skeletons. That the chance of finding some dormant form of insect food attracts the birds is far more likely. Not, of course, the lively squirming hordes of spring and summer, but scantier measure of inanimate larval and chrysalide forms of insect life; invisible to us, but well-known to the birds by long-developed and hereditary instinct.

There are many problems connected with the feeding of "seed-eating" birds which yet await solution. How best to provide the proper ratio of nitrogenous (protein) element in their dietary, in a form which shall be acceptable, digestible, and assimilable, is the dominant one. Thoughtful aviculturists have long recognised this fact. Nature solves the problem by providing insects, and those insects which the Finches use as food conform to the three essentials—acceptability, digestibility, and assimilability.

Matters for Reflection.

Keepers of birds are not sufficiently enterprising. They cling too long and too exclusively to old ideas. Egg-food, the ancient hard-worked slave, is of some use, but no one will claim infallibility for it. Milk, in some form or other, may have immense potentialities. Wild foods, many of which are highly nitrogenous, undoubtedly do help; aye, more, they approximate more nearly to what is wanted than anything yet tried. These are things to take into account when you are invited to believe that canary seed, excellent food though it be, is the Alpha and Omega of a bird's requirements. These are matters for reflection when you are told, in connection with "ordinary seed" feeding, that "many die during the process from inflammation or red swelling," an admission which may surely be translated into the death sentence of the "ordinary seed" system.

Liverpool's Own Zoo

A Visit to the Zoological Gardens at Otterspool Park.

By T. JOHNSON (Southport).

IT was the writer's very great pleasure to avail himself of a spare afternoon to pay a visit to the estate of Mr. Cross, the eminent zoologist and aviculturist, at Otterspool, near Liverpool.

Otterspool is a place beloved of the archaeological students, as it bears many visible and legendary connections with the remote ages; and it is through the enterprise and foresight of Mr. Cross that these grand old grounds and house are open to the public at a really nominal charge.

There is an old ruined chalet that would delight the eyes of a sensational novelist; part of the original Otters' Pool which gave the estate its name, and which was so called because of the quantity of otters which used to sport in its pellucid waters, and live on the salmon and Wild Duck which inhabited the Mersey in the days before bricks and mortar had defaced the fair country-side; and—but if the reader is really inclined to the study of the archæa, he could not do better than pay the place a visit and secure the pamphlet which gives the history of the estate from the days of King John.

Rus in Urbe.

However, Otterspool itself is one of those few places which have escaped the landscape-destroying hand of the builder, and as one walks down the valley amidst the giant oaks and beeches, and every now and then meets wild animals grazing and roaming at will amongst the falling autumn leaves, with not a sound except the screeching of the Parrots and the monkeys, one could imagine oneself a second Columbus discovering some unexplored country thousands of miles away from civilization.

Yet, two and a-half miles across the commerce-laden waters of the Mersey is Birkenhead, where a great shipbuilding firm is building things which bring back abruptly to one's mind these stressful days of modernity, and a twopenny car from the entrance to the estate puts one down right in the heart of the busy thoroughfares of Liverpool.

The estate is twenty-five miles in extent, but is so laid out with due regard to its natural outlines that in traversing the grounds one would think it to be quite forty. As we passed through the gates and entered the drive we were struck by the natural beauty of the scene. The drive is almost a mile in length, and is of a winding nature, which leaves one in doubt at almost every step as to whether one is within a few yards of the end. To give an adequate description of the beauties of the estate is far beyond the powers of an ordinary ornithological scribe, however, so I will describe the scene as it appeared to me without any elaborate details.

Something fresh seems to meet the eye at every point. The drive was originally the hed of a stream, but from some fitful caprice of nature it dried up and was made into a drive by the original founder of the house. On each side is solid rock varying in height at different points from a few feet to a hundred feet, forming what the Yankees call a "canon." Wild ferns are growing from the fissures in the rocks, and giant ivy-twined forest trees of almost all shapes and sizes shed their autumn leaves at one's feet. Great rhododendron bushes and dense undergrowth provide shelter and a happy hunting ground for the many and varied wild birds which find it a paradise.

Some of the Inmates.

Mr. Rogers, the genial manager of the estate, who escorted us round the grounds as an assurance that we shouldn't be bitten by a snake or attacked by a rhinoceros, first called our attention to an aviary containing various kinds of Swans, and Canadian, Australian, Cereopsis, Chinese and Egyptian Geese; a cosmopolitan collection, but seeming to agree very well together; they were wired off in the original bed of the otters' pool, which fills up twice each day with the tide. Further on we saw a fine collection of Crowned Cranes and Sarus Cranes, a very beautiful pen of rare birds in grand plumage, sitting up as straight as if each had swallowed a poker.

We walked along the valley, and made the acquaintance of a llama and her young, while further on was a zebra and a buffalo, all at liberty in the valley. We confess to a feeling as of a lamb entering a butcher's shop as we approached the buffalo, but Mr. Rogers brought some of his sophistries to bear on him, and all was well. As a female buffalo loomed in sight at the moment, the thought entered our head that the poor chap was married, which perhaps accounted for his docility.

We now approached a pen of fine Waterfowl, included amongst which we noticed Mandarin, Carolinas, Widgeon, Call Ducks and East Indian Ducks. Then a little further on was a cage containing three very fine conditioned White-backed Australian Piping Crows, a great rarity, Mr. Rogers assured us.

An aviary next attracted our attention containing a beautiful collection of Doves, amongst which we noticed the Bare-shouldered Dove, Aldebran Red-shouldered Dove, Zebra Dove, Half-collared Senegal Dove, Vinaceous Turtle Dove, White and Ring Doves, and a pair of Stock Doves taken from a nest in the grounds, also some Gold and Silver Pheasants.

The next aviary was a well-appointed one, and contained what we might call the "objet d'art" of the collection—a grand collection of Yellow and Green Budgerigars. They were housed in a comfortable aviary without artificial heat, and were the healthiest and the cleanest-looking lot of birds it has ever been our good fortune to see. The aviary was started during the winter with six pairs, and now—well, they were uncountable. There seemed myriads of them. The Green and the Yellow had, in a few cases, interbred, but the young from this pairing were invariably Green; and, in course of conversation, we elicited from Mr. Rogers that he attributed his success in breeding to a special husk, which he regards as a sine qua non to successful Budgerigar breeding.

Three Broods in One Nest.

* During the season there had been one very peculiar occurrence. Three hens had laid together in one husk at different periods, with the result that there were three different broods in one husk at the same time, all of different ages, and all successfully reared. Mr. Rogers has selected a few pairs of Green and Yellow birds, and intends going in for breeding Blues next year, and if results are a fit reward for the enthusiasm manifested, there need be no question of his success. A few Californian Quail were noticed also in this aviary.

Round the corner the staff were building a new aviary, and, in answer to our question about the potential inmates, we were told that it was being built specially for a collection of Pennants, Rosellas, and Cockatiels.

In one of the greenhouses attached was a very fine collection of Cockatoos and Parrots, the Cockatoos numbering amongst them the Moluccan, Salmon Crest, Great and Lesser Sulphur Crest, Citron Crest, Blood-stained, Bare-eyed, Goffin's, Ducorp's, Western and Southern Slenderbills, Leadbetter's, and others. Among the Parrots were the Cut-throat Parrot, Yellow-fronted, the only Vinaceous Parrot known, Muller's, the ubiquitous African Grey, Pionus Parrot, Jardine's, the rare Baure's Parrot, and some others.

There were many Conures in the collection, and amongst them we noticed were the Canary-winged Conure, Nanday Conure, the Cuban, and several with which we were unacquainted. Here was a great and varied collection of Parrakeets and Rosellas, but the palm went to a very beautiful Hybrid between the Mealy Rosella and Redrump. It was in fine plumage, of a gorgeous colouration, which could only be described by an artist, so I will ask the curious to see the bird for themselves.

A cage of the very rare White-cheeked Finch Lark next attracted our attention, and also some Yellow-rumped Mannikins, also rare, but which breed freely in captivity in the Gardens. There were also the Jerdon's Accentor, Weavers in many varieties, and Macaws by the dozen.

Cross by Name; not by Nature.

A brief view of the wild animals, and we were finished with the live stock; but mention might be made of one or two monkeys, very rare, in which Mr. Cross takes a pride. One is the Cross's Monkey, so-called because Mr. Cross was the discoverer of the species; another is the Nigger Monkey, covered with wool, with a perfectly negroid expression of countenance. Both are captivating pets and absolutely without vice; they may be handled at will by a child.

We might mention, by the way, that many of the Parrots and Cockatoos were talking, and although the people visiting them daily are a cosmopolitan crowd, we didn't notice that the birds had picked up any words that were not exactly circumpect, or any which were using what the old lady called "unseen langwidge." All the same, we were rather glad to escape from the Parrot house, for while we were there they were making as much row as a packed meeting at election time. They must have taken umbrage at our good looks; or was it feeding time?

In the office we were shown a part of the daily correspondence, and one commission especially struck us as peculiar. It was an order for a Russian bear, a snake, and a pair of Lovebirds. Surely a queer mixture. We wondered if they were to be sent all in one box.

A review of this description would be incomplete without an appreciation of the services to aviculture of the owner of this wonderful collection. As sure as we can tell almost any bird by its chirp, so can we tell what a man is from his conversation, and as we talked with Mr. Cross we were assured of his real love of all things living. We were struck by the manifest enthusiasm of him as he talked about his wonderful collection and their little peculiarities, their tricks, and their absurdities. He is known the world over to be in the forefront among zoologists and aviculturists, and a true lover of pets and animals of all descriptions, and pages could be filled in an attempt to express an adequate appreciation of his services to aviculture.

The public in the immediate district of Liverpool have much to thank him for in this latest enterprise of his, and they, as well as people and fanciers farther afield, will do well to pay the estate a visit. The Liverpool cars run past the gates, while the Great Central Railway has a station right in the centre of the park. Teas and other refreshments at moderate prices are provided for parties, and these are especially invited.

Extra Classes for British Birds.

SIR,—The Committee of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. have decided to give three extra classes for British Birds at the annual show Nov. 6-8, viz., Greenfinch, Yellow Bunting (cock or hen) and Bramblefinch or Chaffinch. A friend interested in the Yellow Bunting, Bramblefinch, and Chaffinch offers 5s. special for the best bird in each of the latter two classes. Fanciers are earnestly requested to support the Committee's decision, so that the classes may be repeated at future shows.

Proposed Border Fancy Show in Edinburgh.

SIR,—The committee instructed me at the patronage meeting of the Border Fancy C.C. that in the event of the Scottish National show not being held our members should be postcarded to get their opinion of running a club show, open to all comers, on the Scottish National dates, that is the last day of December and the first of January, 1916. Before this appears in print I hope to have every member of the Club supplied with postcards, as I hear that the Scottish National show will not be held owing to all the large halls in Edinburgh being in military occupation, and I trust that they will be returned as early as possible, and not later than Oct. 9, so that necessary arrangements can be made. I may say that during the whole time of the National this section has been one of the best paying, on an average right through, and I for one think the members would be quite safe to run a show at New Year's time, as it is arranged that the general meeting is to be held in Edinburgh on New Year's Day.

Herbert J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—I take it that in the third paragraph of his last letter Mr. Chick is making reference to myself and to Nottingham show. His grievance seems to be that I was elected as judge in preference to himself; further, he insinuates that I got the appointment because I was going to report the show, and that I did the work for less than "fair pay for a fair day's work." My inclination is to tell Mr. Chick to mind his own business, but I well know that he is by temperament quite unable to do any such thing. I realise, too, that he has no doubt told the same old story to scores of other fanciers. I should like to say, therefore, that there is not an atom of truth in his insinuations. I have never touted any society for a judging engagement (Mr. Chick is welcome to the monopoly of that kind of thing), and I have never officiated as a judge without being well paid for my work.

As a matter of fact I dislike judging (unlike Mr. Chick) and have for a number of years inserted a paragraph in CAGE BIRDS that I was unable to accept engagements, and I have turned down scores of offers. The particular Nottingham fixture to which Mr. Chick refers would have been turned down, too, but for the fact that I have a special regard for many of the society's officials and members, some of whom are old friends and lent me a helping hand many years ago when I was badly in need of it, consequently when I was asked whether I could judge the show in the event of being elected, I replied that I should be pleased to do so. Why the committee should elect me in the face of Mr. Chick, I really can't imagine. Anyway, they possibly gained nothing (as Mr. Chick seems anxious to make clear) for the entry was only moderate. If it delights Mr. Chick to think that I was the cause of the moderate entry, then I am the last to wish to deny him this little pleasure. At the same time, it is a fact that more capable judges than myself have met with even worse support at Nottingham. Why, puzzles me, for no show better merits success than Nottingham, always well managed and liberal with its prize-money and specials.

With regard to reporting, if I have been doing this it has never made the slightest difference to my judging fee. I have been down to see my Nottingham friends on several occasions and never written a line of the show report. Further, for a long time now the shows I have reported each season can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Now, Mr. Chick, tell readers the exact amount of the fee I was paid for judging at Nottingham and the amount you yourself offered to judge for, then they can see how much "sting" there really is in your insinuations—and, also, how little truth!

No Show at Elgin this Year.

SIR,—Would you kindly mention in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, that after careful consideration of all circumstances, our Committee have decided not to run an open show this year. I am sure many fanciers in the North of Scotland will be sorry to hear of this, as I believe ours was the only show held in the district last year. However, we can only hope for a speedy termination of this awful war, when things will be back to normal, and shows be held as in the past.

A Taming Secret Wanted.

SIR,—I am anxious to know the secret of thoroughly taming Canaries, so that they will perch on one's finger and make themselves generally familiar, losing all sense of fear. I have succeeded in getting a bird to take hemp-seed from me, but "thus far and no further" seems to be his dictum. A friend of mine, travelling by tube, once saw a man on the platform with a Canary perched on his coat collar, and each time he "shoo'd" the bird off, it would return to his outstretched hand and run up the arm back to the coat collar; and all this on a railway station. What is the secret? Perhaps some of your readers can say.

In Appreciation of the Late D.A.S. Longden.

SIR,—It has been suggested by a few friends of the late Mr. D. A. S. Longden, Swansea, that the present would be an opportune time to appreciate, in some form or another, his untiring efforts on behalf of the Fancy generally, and Wales in particular. A long illness necessarily means considerable expense, and it has been decided to open a subscription list for the benefit of his widow and children, towards which a donation of £2 2s. has been promised by Mr. W. F. Lloyd James. Subscriptions, which, with your permission, will be acknowledged through CAGE BIRDS, should be forwarded to the undersigned.

The Exhibition Yellowhammer.

SIR,—I was surprised at the animosity shown by Mr. Herbert J. Chick in reply to Mrs. Dalton's article on the Yellowhammer. Has he, Mr. Chick, a past grievance? If so, the medium of a fancy paper is a poor way of settling it. Or does he think it time his name was pushed before the Cage Bird fancy again? Judging by some illustrations of British birds, in a book I have before me, with Mr. Chick's name appended, I should take him to be an exhibitor of the first water, and not one who would try to belittle a person's article because it did not fall in with his idea of things. Also, why should he try to open a discussion on wild seeds versus mixed seeds, if not for the above mentioned reason? Even the merest novice knows that Nature's food, as provided in the fields, will beat anything in the way of prepared mixed seed. No, Mr. Chick, give us fair criticism in reasonable terms, but at least be polite to the ladies, for they are all too few in the fancy.

SHEFFIELD.

SIR,—Mrs. Dalton, writing in your issue of Sept. 18, is not quite right when she says that sixteen entries is something new as regards Yellow Bunting classes. I find that as recently as 1913 there were twenty entries at the Crystal Palace and twenty-one at the Scottish National. On looking up old show catalogues and reports I see these classes were usually well filled in the past. Neither is she quite consistent in the same letter when she writes: "I naturally concluded that when my bird won these prizes that my method of feeding, etc., was worth consideration"; and later, on stating that she claimed this bird at Swansea show. To the one who had all the trouble of moulting and colour-feeding the bird, most of the credit should be given. In discussing the points of the exhibition Yellowhammer we want more than "size, abundance of yellow, with a most distinct V, and prominent eye and cheek markings." Do not thigh and back markings; breast and body colour, with pureness and depth of yellow on the throat, with freeness from black flecks on the same, absence of "gaiters" on the legs, combined with perfect steadiness, count for something? The Yellowhammer, being a late breeder, is a late moulter, though a quick one when once he starts; therefore I cannot see the object of starting colour food in June. Has Mrs. Dalton only a "few obstinate" cases of these birds refusing colour food? I am informed that Yellowhammers are most difficult to get on to it. I cannot write from experience, as I always show my birds in their natural colour, and I have time and time again proved that if you have good natural colour, combined with the points mentioned above, your bird will win in the best of company. Artificial colour is in many cases a blind, and the British-cum-Canary all-round judge sometimes falls into the trap. Let us therefore leave "digital excrescences," wagers, and personalities alone, and discuss with all friendliness that most beautiful of British Birds, the exhibition Yellowhammer.

W. F. LLOYD JAMES.

SIR,—If Mrs. Dalton's birds were not on the bench at the Horticultural Hall, then the two that were entered in Mr. W. H. Dalton's name must be different birds, and they must be two different exhibitors. I credit myself that I am able to prepare an exhibition specimen with any exhibitor, although I don't say for one moment but that there are other exhibitors quite as capable as myself, and I give them credit for it. No fancier ever put a Yellow Bunting down better than the late Tom Ride, of Leicester, and I could mention others. No exhibitor ever beat me for condition and staging; if they beat me it was with a better specimen. All credit to them. It was an incentive to me to try and get a better one than the one that beat me. Mrs. Dalton says that when her birds won these prizes she naturally concluded that her method of feeding, etc., was worth consideration. The bird that was depicted on CAGE BIRDS' front page won the prize at the Horticultural Hall for another exhibitor, from whom she bought it, so the credit of moulting it and getting it up into condition belongs to Mr. Jones. If Mrs. Dalton will get some fresh caught birds and moult them, put them on the bench and defy all comers, I shall then know that she knows how to moult and feed them to perfection. Anyone with a deep pocket can buy winners and exhibit them and win with them. Mrs. Dalton says that the Yellow Bunting should be "yellow" because its name denotes it. I say that practically the only yellow that should be on an ideal specimen is the head and neck, with the distinct black V mark on the head and the distinct black cheek marks. With reference to Bathgate Show, I tender my apology to Mrs. Dalton. I had no catalogue of the show, and I saw no mention in the Fancy papers of her birds arriving late. I sympathise with her that her birds had not a run for their money.

The Lesser Whitethroat and Nightingale in Devon.

SIR,—When I was a lad living at St. Mary Church, Torquay, we had the Nightingale nesting there. I well remember staying out very late one night to hear the 'Gale' (one had been heard singing in a spinney up Warberry Road, off St. Mary Church Road). There were dozens of people up there to hear it the night that I went. Re the Lesser Whitethroat, I have found several nests of them when I was a lad at school. I have a friend living seven miles out of Torquay who catches a few every season.

Specials at Lochgelly Show.

SIR,—We received notification of the patronage of the Y.C.C. of Scotland too late for publication in our schedule, and I should be obliged if you will allow me to say that under this patronage the following cups will be in competition at our show: Silver Challenge Rose Bowl for most points at patronage shows. Three nominated birds in young bird classes to compete; entries must be marked Y.C.C. Bowl, and ring numbers given. Cup by Mr. Heggie: Points with 4 highest birds at patronage shows in 1915-16 season, birds need not be nominated; 1st prize 7 points, and downwards to 7th prize 1 point. Novice Rose Bowl for most points throughout the season by novices in unfledged classes; 3 highest birds to count. Entries must be marked "Novice" on entry form, and ring numbers given. A list of other specials has been sent to all members.

R. MUIR, Sec.

In Case of Short Entries

SIR,—I was extremely pleased to read Mr. C. A. House's letter and agree with his remarks about half prize-money, but I think the cancelling method has its drawbacks, even from an exhibitor's point of view. I well remember in my earlier days in the Fancy having a showable specimen of a Cinnamon, and as I always like to send two birds for safety on the railway, I usually entered a Norwich that had a possible chance of a vhc, but little of winning a money prize. Very often I found the Cinnamon class cancelled, with the result that I sent nothing. Again, a fancier often enters birds in accordance with the size of his cage cases, and if one or two classes are cancelled he often keeps others home, rather than send insufficiently filled cases. For these reasons I still think that a graduated prize-money that gives reasonable return for an ordinary entry, and extra money where classes are extra large, as Plymouth is doing, is the best way to run a show. I must thank both Mr. House and Mr. Rees for their good opinion of Plymouth show, and may tell the latter gentlemen that two of our members are guaranteeing a Linnet and a Greenfinch class for our show this year.

THOS. POPE.

SIR,—In answer to J. J. Rees, I may say that I have written many articles on Selecting, Moulting and Exhibiting British Birds. I have also lectured on British Birds before the members of Manchester and N.C.O.S., Nottingham, Sheffield, Leicester, and other societies on several occasions. I have always been ready to give advice to young fanciers. Perhaps when I have a little more time I may be able to write one or two articles. I did not wish to attack the Plymouth Society in any way. I have known many of the members for a number of years, and they are all real good fanciers. They always carry the show on in a proper way. Birds are looked after and returned by proper trains, and prize-money is paid promptly. I was taking exception to the graduating scale of prize-money. Personally I don't think it is desirable, but they are going to try it, so we shall see the result; I trust it will be better than I anticipate. Re guaranteeing classes, I have promised several already. I think you will find one or two British Bird fanciers in the Plymouth Society who will help you to guarantee all the classes. I trust the Plymouth fanciers will have a good and profitable show. HERBERT J. CHICK.

Club Reports.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting held at headquarters, Sept. 25, Mr. Wareing in chair, and a good attendance of members. Passed that all Rollers to be eligible to compete at P.R.C.C. shows must be British rung; also that all alien enemies' names be struck off P.R.C.C. list of members.—W. Johnson, Assist. Sec.

ABERSYCHAN C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 27, Queen Hotel. Owing to the lack of the members it was decided not to have an Open Show this season. The extra rate of postage would mean double expense, also.—W. T. Couch, Sec.

SCOTTISH ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Sept. 22, Mr. T. M. Arnott chair. Agreed to change date of Members' show from Dec. 18 to Nov. 13 to suit Mr. Tomlinson, who is to judge same. Next meeting Oct. 13. Agreed to hold Open Show in Saltcoats in January, date to be fixed later.—J. Macdonald, Sec.

BURNLEY C.B.S.

Re-union and concert, Sept. 25, Mr. J. Hayhurst presiding, the Aegean Glee Party entertained a full assembly splendidly. Members and fanciers that did not attend missed a real treat. We shall shortly have a lecture by a popular fancier and judge. Will fanciers wishing to join our society send in their names to J. Moorhouse, 102, Nairne St., Burnley.

WIGAN ROLLER CLUB.

Meeting Sept. 11, Legs of Man Hotel. Mr. Smith presided over a very good attendance. Mr. Wetherby and Mr. Dickenson were elected members. Definitely decided to hold our open contest Dec. 17, 18. Messrs. Massey and Kilshaw will judge, and we earnestly appeal for the support of all Roller fanciers to make our first venture a success.—P. Greenall, Sec.

WEST STANLEY (Victoria).

Meeting, Sept. 12, Mr. J. Armitage presiding. We had a good turn-up of members. Decided that we have no catalogues and that we accept Spratts' offer for prize-cards. It was passed that we make the first entry 7d. and additional entries 6d. Will members get as many specials as possible and attend next meeting when the stewards will be elected for the annual show, Dec. 4, 5.—R. Hutchinson, Sec.

BURNLEY O.S.

Meetings held Sept. 9, 10, 22, at Star Inn, Church-st., Mr. Hargreaves chair. The business under discussion has been the amalgamation of the C.B.S. and B.O.S., but it was decided that we go on as at present, and that we try to build up our society, as we have made good progress in the past. We shall be pleased to see a few more novices roll up and enter the society. Next meeting Oct. 6. All members are requested to attend.—T. Chadwick, Sec.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting, Headquarters, Sept. 8, Chairman Willmot presiding before a moderate attendance. Resolved after a lengthy discussion that the young stock show take the form of a table show, as the majority of the members have not had the time at their disposal to devote to the birds which they require, and the results of the N.F. shows have proved that most of the members have had a poor season. Classification to be as N.F. shows, entrance fee 8d. Judge, Mr. J. Burke. Entries close Nov. meeting night; show, Nov. 14, at Marlboro' Hotel.—G. W. Bayliss, Assist. Sec.

EDINBURGH C.B.S.

Meeting Cairn's Memorial Hall, Gorgie road, 21st Sept. Mr. Wm. Thomson chair, and a fair turn-out present. Sec. gave report of F.F. show held in July, which showed a balance of 8s. 3d. to the good. Agreed to hold a table show at October meeting. Classes: Nor., 4, Crest or C.B., 1, Bord., 3, Scotch Fancy 2, A.O.V. Can., 1, Mule or Hyb., 1. Sec. to find judge for same. Agreed to approach the Western O.S. for use of staging for annual show. Leith Printing Co. were favoured with the posters, prize cards, etc. Sec. was inducted to write to Dalkeith for estimate for catalogues, and to get admission tickets from Hyde's. It is to be hoped there will be a good turn-out at next meeting, as there is important business in connection with annual show. J. C. Charlton, Sec.

BARROW C.B.A.

Meeting, Sept. 22, Mr. G. Large presiding. A real good meeting was held and a great amount of business was gone through. Decided to abandon the tea and concert for the presentation of cups and medals owing to the great amount of work in hand for the back-end show. The presentation will take place next meeting night at the club house, Gardner's Restaurant, so let us have a real good turn out of members. The largest schedule ever given by the Society was drawn up. Fifty classes: Yorks., 12; Bord., 10; Nor., 15; Scotch Fancies, 2; Mule or Hybrid, 2; Brit., 5; Sell., 2; Gift, 1; A.O.V., 1. With a schedule like this at 11/- per class there should be a good turn out at the "widow's show" at Barrow. Plans are being formed to make this a record, and members are all in good spirits for a real success; all should rally round and help to push up to the final: D. M. Farlane, Hon. Sec.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

PONTEFRACT.

Open Linnet contest Woodman Inn, Horsfair, Sept. 25; 18 birds entered, four minutes' time singing, and some very good singing was done. 1, Beard; 2, 3, Pugh. Open sing Sept. 26; we had a good muster and some lovely singing was heard for three minutes' time singing. 1, 3, W. Nelson; 2, Wingham.—J. Beard, Assist. Sec.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnets contest, Sept. 18; 11 birds entered: 1, 2, Watkiss, 78, 72; 2, B. Nelson, 73. Sept. 25: Between 40 and 50 members and friends turned up to hear 26 birds sing for 3 good prizes given by Mrs. Parker, and some very good time was done. The winners were: 1, W. Nelson, 133; 2, Watkiss, 80; 3, Morley, 73. Don't forget the last Sat. in October. We are giving 41 and a copper kettle. Entrance 6d. per bird. This is the last open sing for 3 months, and it would please the donors very much to see all the best birds in Yorkshire compete.—Walter Dobson, Sec.—(Advt.)

LEEDS.

Leeds Linnets and Canary F.A., Albion Hotel, Saville Green, York-road. Open contest for quality Linnets singing Sept. 26; 12 birds sang. 1, Hayes; 2, S. Johnson; 3, Bell. Judges, Madden and Smith. Sept. 26, 10 sang. 1, Buttery; 2, Sissons; 3 shared Sissons and Wood. Judges, Madden and Crane.—W. Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Open contest for quality Linnets singing, Sept. 25, Clarence Hotel, Skinner Lane; 22 birds entered, and some good singing was heard: 1 and 2 shared, Binns and Concliff; 3, Binns; 4, Concliff. Judges, Messrs. A. Bryan, T. Summers, T. Butterfield. Sept. 26: 18 entered for three prizes: 1, T. Chippendale; 2, Parker; 3, Warran. Judges, Messrs. T. Summers and C. Cooper.—W. Lipman, Hon. Sec.

Leeds Quality Linnets Singing Club contests, Plas-ters' Arms, Skinner-lane, Sept. 25; 17 birds competed, and some very clean quality singing was heard. 1, C. Lorrman; 2, 3, Turner. Judges, Alf. Lorrman and R. Ridyard. Sept. 26, 22 entered. 1st and 2nd shared J. Chippendale and Turner; 3rd, Lorrman; 4th, Thompson. Judges, Alf. Lorrman, N. Solomon, and Ridyard.

A committee meeting was held same evening. Present: C. Lorrman, Alf. Lorrman, Wright, Dearlove, Turner, Chadwick. We propose to start counting marks for the gold medals for championship match at Whitsuntide from Oct. 3 contest. Members please note, and let us all come together as we did last year. Twenty-eight attendances entitle members to box benefits of the club. We were pleased to see Jack Chippendale amongst us again.—F. Turner, Sec.

In the Courts.

A bird dealer named Womack was charged at Middlesbrough on Aug. 27, with having in his possession nine Redpolls and four Thrushes, in contravention of an order in Council affecting Middlesbrough, and with causing them unnecessary suffering. Mr. A. E. Lauriston prosecuted on behalf of the R.S.P.C.A. He said that the Society's inspector found the birds in a shockingly neglected condition. Womack pleaded not guilty, and said that the cages were clean, but admitted that the birds had not had any clean water between the Wednesday and Saturday. He was ordered to pay costs on the first charge, and was

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for postage must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Deal birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

C. W. and Miss F. E. H.—Replied to by post.
LARGE SCALES (Max).—It is quite natural for birds to have large and coarse scales on the legs and feet when they are getting old. Coarse scales are indeed a fair sign of age, though some birds get them much earlier than others. You cannot remove them entirely, but when they appear so coarse as to be troublesome to the bird you can improve matters by first soaking the legs in tolerably warm water—not too hot to be borne with comfort—in a teaspoonful of which you have dissolved a piece of common washing soda the size of a small pea. After bathing for, say, ten minutes, try one of the scales by gently pressing against the lower edge with a blunt match stick, and if it lifts and comes away readily remove it and repeat the process with the others one at a time. Be careful to use no force, and by no means cause any bleeding. If the scale will not come away easily, soak the leg a little longer, and try again, and if it is obstinate after several attempts, dry the legs, smear on a little boracic ointment, and return the bird to its cage, and try again two or three days later. Do not in any case remove a scale that has not a fairly well-developed new one beneath it.

PERSISTENT RED MITES (E. C.).—The probability is that your failure to eradicate red mite is due to your either overlooking to deal with the nail, hook, or whatever it is, where the cage hangs, in the same thorough way you deal with the cage itself, or perhaps you do not deal with the cage properly when you change the bird from one to the other. It is utterly useless merely to change the cage once a week with the idea of getting rid of the pest. Assuming your cages are ordinary singing cages which you could re-stain and varnish should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battley's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." with little trouble, I advise you to proceed as follows, and am quite sure it will prove successful. Dissolve an ounce of camphor in half an ounce of methylated spirit, and each week when you put the bird in a fresh cage well clean the debris from the vacated one, carefully probing any open joints or cracks with a pin if necessary to remove, as much as possible of the pest, and burn at once; then paint the cage thoroughly all over, inside and out, with the spirit, using a small paint-brush, and working the fluid well into all cracks and joints. Scrape the perches clean, brush over with the fluid, then bake them in a hot oven a few minutes. Treat the place where the cage has hung with the fluid in the same way, killing any mites that may be seen about the wall. Three days later give the cage another dressing with the fluid, and again at the end of the week, just before returning the bird to it, which you may do as soon as it is dry. When changing the cage, give the wall, etc., another dressing. Now treat the cage freshly vacated in the same way during the next week, and for a couple of months persevere with this treatment of both cages as they become vacant. By that time you will be rid of the pest root and branch, and may then redecorate the cages, and give them only ordinary attention. Allow the bird to bathe freely, give a morsel of bread and milk twice a week for a month, and add a pinch of Epsom salts to the water for two or three days. The bare patch under the wing is probably quite natural. All Canaries have a bare patch there.

TO DISTINGUISH SEX (G. W. Temple).—(1) I'm afraid you have not examined our bird books very carefully not to have found this information in them. In "Canary Breeding for Beginners," for instance, it is dealt with fully, and also illustrated on pages 29 to 31, and it is also dealt with in some other of our handbooks. The differences are very slight, and comparative, so that it needs close observation and experience to distinguish them with certainty, and even the most experienced are not infallible. Compared with the hen the cock is bolder and more jaunty in carriage, has a larger and more bolting eye, stouter neck, richer colour on the throat, butts of wings, and at base of back; the under tail coverts are fuller, giving a more graceful curve of outline from the abdomen to the under surface of tail; and the appearance altogether is more pushful and debauch. The voice is more liquid and mellow, and when he sings the throat swells and palpitates very perceptibly as the notes are produced. The song is the most reliable point for the novice to be guided by. (2) There is no way of distinguishing the age of a bird to a year or two after the first two seasons, but you can form some judgment whether a bird is old or very ancient by the scales on the legs and feet. A young bird has the legs and feet quite smooth, the scales small, and fitting quite close to the surface, and the claws short and fine, with almost needle-like points. As it gets older the scales increase in size and coarseness, and the lower edges grow up from the shank in a more or less unsightly manner, while the claws grow thicker and longer, and occasionally require nipping off, so that they are quite blunt in an old bird.

SEED SAMPLES (Seeds). (1) Call it "German rape" if one likes, but this hot mustardy stuff is certainly not summer rape, and the latter is what you require for use as a portion of the staple diet. The sample is probably charlock, or wild mustard, and being clean and a good quality would do very well as an item in a seed mixture, but for general use try to get a sample of summer rape, which is milder and nutty in flavour when a little is chewed in the mouth. (2) Considering the time, the canary seed is a very good sample, and the quality is very good, but it is certainly rather dusty. This, however, should be easily remedied by sifting it. At this time we must be a little tolerant of slight imperfections, and thank our good fortune that things are still as bright as they are with us.

HAND-REARING YOUNG (Mrs. Forrest).—It is much too late to think of continuing breeding operations this season, as the moulting season is now getting well advanced. You can get an appliance called a "fill-up" feeder for hand-feeding young birds, which you may see advertised in our columns during the breeding season. With this you would simply reduce the ordinary egg-food to the consistency of thick cream by the addition of a little water or milk, warm for preference, during warm weather, to avoid the possibility of the milk being used in a sour condition, place it in the feeder and feed to the youngsters about every two hours from dawn to dusk. For an hour or two each day mix in the food a little finely minced greenstuff, but see that it is minced finely enough to prevent it choking the nozzle of the feeder. If no feeder is used you would adopt the same method, but make the food to the consistency of a soft paste, so that you could give it in morsels from the end of a tiny spatula-shaped stick.

WHAT IS RED MITE? (Mrs. E. C. Phillips).—Your request to know exactly what red mite really is and how it originates sets me thinking whether the bird really has red mite, as you say. Red mite is a tiny insect that is parasitic on birds, but does not live upon their bodies permanently. It is nocturnal in its habits, hides away in cracks, crevices, etc., in or near the cage by day, visits the bird by night, and feeds by sucking the blood from its body in the same way as the female gnat will do with humans if it gets a chance. It is an Acarus, and its scientific cognomen is—sorry to inflict it upon you—Dermanyssus avium. That is what it is; it originates, of course, by procreation. It is quite easy for a cage to become infested by hanging near another that is infested, or by using in one that was not so perches or any appliances from an infested cage. It is the cage that requires looking after to eradicate this pest, and not the bird. For different methods of dealing with it see replies to "E.C." in this issue and "H.A." in last issue.

YOUNG DYING (Disappointed).—Your feeding seems to have been somewhat faulty, in keeping the young too exclusively on soft food over too long a period. As you say you have "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which you have found very useful, you should certainly have avoided this error. Read and digest Chapter 13, especially the latter part, and Chapter 15, and you will doubtless discover your mistake and be better prepared to avoid it next season. As you have no more young now, and it is quite too late to think of allowing the parents to nest again this season, it is useless repeating here at present what you will on careful study find given in much more detail in the book you have than could possibly be given in space available at the present time in this column.

J. O'Reilly.—Replied to by post.
VARIED (G. C.).—(1) It is rather a delicate matter to select any particular strain of Rollers as having the most changes in their song. I should imagine this distinction is more properly applied to individuals rather than strains. But taken as a whole, I fancy the so-called Seifert or St. Andreasberg, would give you most satisfaction. I should say there is nothing to choose between these strains, though individuals of either might excel the other. The Glucke is a term applied to a strain which excels more or less in singing Glucke rolls, and is no indication whatever that the birds possess a great number of changes. (2) Sorry, but cannot lay my hands on address. Possibly Editor may do so. (3) The canary seed is small, but bright, clean and sweet, and of good quality. The rape is a kind of bird rape—the exact species I do not know—but is quite good, and mild, so I see no objection to its use if you have any difficulty in getting a good sample of summer rape, which is barely half the size of the grains of the samples you sent.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

AVIARY FOR BREEDING (A. Harrison).—Your aviary appears to be built on quite a good principle, and you would find that any of the British birds could live in it quite comfortably during the winter. If you wished to give them a little more protection, you could fix a temporary shutter or screen over half of the front during very severe or stormy weather. (1) As regards your birds, I think you would do well to try for Mules, with just a pair or so as a sporting venture for Hybrids. Your collection could be the following:—4 hen Canaries, 1 hen Bullfinch, 1 hen Greenfinch, 2 cock Goldfinches, 1 Linnet, 1 Siskin. With these you would be almost certain to breed Mules, and if the Bullfinch or Greenie went to nest, and the eggs proved fertile, the young ones, if reared, would be interesting and valuable. (2) As regards foods you would require to feed them pretty liberally, watching the Goldfinches to see how they fared, as they would be the most likely to feel any neglect of their proper diet. Your stock mixture would be four parts good canary seed, two parts teazel, and one part summer rape; then if you can procure a good brand of wild seed mixture you could use this every other day, giving a spoonful to each bird, and on other days a little hemp, maw and niger. A handful of good sound sunflower seeds every day would not hurt them. For further particulars on feeding you had better procure our British Bird Manual, or the Nutshell booklets on the Goldfinch and Bullfinch. The birds would not require nests or boxes to sleep in during the winter. If you place plenty of perches in cosy corners, high up near the roof, they will use them in preference to any other quarters.

CONCERNING A BLACKBIRD AND LINNET (N. V. Charles).—I am glad to hear my previous advice has been useful. As regards your Blackbird I fancy his fondness for the new food causes him to eat rather heavily, so I would advise you to offer just now plenty of ripe fruit, or even a little decayed apple or pear; failing these, give him an aperient occasionally. Your cage should be large enough for him to take a fair amount of exercise, which as you may imagine has much to do with a bird's general health. An occasional romp in a good roomy cage does a world of good. A big packing case with a wire netting front to it answers admirably. A bird can soon be taught to run from one cage to the other. (2) You need not trouble about your Linnet failing to appreciate hemp; as a rule birds are rather too fond of it. Try him with a little shelled sunflower. The wild seed mixture is quite all right, but see that it is genuine wild seed that has been properly harvested. If you have occasion to write again you had better send me a small sample. Hen Linnets are frequently used in hybrid production, and there is no reason why yours should not mate next season, either let her fly with her selected partner, or let her see him occasionally during the winter months.

should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2, "Linnet," No. 3 "Siskin," No. 4, "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin," "Chaffinch," and "Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 9 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 12 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 10 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

TREATMENT OF AN OWL (A. D. Pontypool).—I scarcely know which Owl you refer to as a "Hoop Owl," unless it is the Common or Barn Owl. This bird can be kept in confinement in almost any kind of cage. If a large one it should have a box or partition in one corner for the bird to retire to during the day time; if not, the cage should be stood in a dark corner of the room. In a state of nature the Owl lives upon rats, mice, small birds, large beetles, and occasionally fish. When in captivity all these should be supplied; failing them, some meat from the butchers. If let loose at night, in a shed or outhouse, infested with mice or beetles, he will soon clear them off; I knew of one that was given its liberty in a kitchen where beetles were pretty numerous. As pets, I fear the difficulty in keeping them supplied with suitable food is greatly against their popularity.

TROUBLE WITH CHOUGH (C.P.O.).—My experience is that birds with overgrown or deformed beaks to any abnormal extent are usually not very robust in constitution, and what you say about yours bears out this rule. It appears to me that if you want to keep your Chough in good health for any length of time you will have to be a little more liberal in your treatment. I would advise you to make the scalded Melox crumbly with the addition of some best quality insectile food instead of what you are using, and occasionally give him a feed of the insectile food without the Melox, mixing with it a little mashed potato with a lump of fresh dripping incorporated with it. I would also advise you to try him with a little cod liver oil, but do it gently; mix just a drop or two with a little food, and if he takes it gradually increase the quantity. This will improve his health and put a little flesh on him. Continue to supply him with scraps from the table and occasionally a freshly killed small bird or mouse, partly plucking the bird before you give it to him. For some reason or other the Chough suffers from this crossing of when in captivity. You cannot do better than attend to his general health and occasionally trim the beak.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

A RARE AMAZON (D.S.).—I cannot at the moment give you any more information re Chrysotis chloronota than the Brit. Mus. Cat. of Birds. It is a reasonable assumption that your bird, if correctly named, was a first importation; but as it so closely resembles C. festiva it may have appeared and passed unnoticed as the Festiva Amazon. Unless more direct evidence of appearance can be found, however, your bird must be awarded the palm of being first arrival. The distinction between the two species is certainly a notable one, but capable of being overlooked sometimes in the living bird by the uninitiated—the lower back and rump of C. festiva are bright red, in C. chloronota these parts are green; but you must note the compiler of the B.M.C. confesses to not understanding the single skin he had to study, as the only other skin had the parts green and red. Neither am I aware of any English name. It is usually left to travellers, natives and bird keepers to supply these, as Latin only is used in scientific nomenclature. The first opportunity I get I will make a search of records, and if I can discover anything further will insert a note.

FOOD FOR CUTTHROAT (Cutthroat).—There is only one Cutthroat, but there is a local race which is slightly larger, but save for the slightly increased size it is a facsimile of the ordinary species, making allowance for the variation common to every species. Your bird is a cock; the hen has no red band nor dark patch on the breast, and is also a little greyer in colour. White millet and canary seed in equal parts will meet the simple needs of this bird, together with greenfood (while it is in season nothing is superior to seeding and flowering grass); of course, the other essentials, grit, cuttlebone, and water, must be regularly supplied. I take it your bird is in a cage, and a millet spray once a week will give it exercise, and also be a wholesome change. While not really necessary, a teaspoonful of preserved ants' eggs will also be appreciated, and tend to its general well-being.

BUOGERICAR WITH WARTY GROWTHS (Regular Reader, G. K.).—The trouble is not what you think, but at the same time I do not care to guess. It is one of those cases where an examination is necessary for a complete diagnosis. With a bird of such small value it would be best, I consider, to painlessly destroy and have a post-mortem made. If you wish to try a cure, isolate it at once and keep its bowels moving quite freely (not abnormally loose) by an occasional dose of fluid magnesia (one teaspoonful in the drinking water as required). Diet: canary, white millet, and spray millet; greenfood, and a little milk-sop. It may not eat the latter at first—about a tablespoonful daily will be sufficient. This can be made with either sponge cake or stale bread, condensed milk, and boiling water; when stirred, add ten drops of cod liver oil emulsion and stir again—the sop must not be really sloppy. If there should be any excision from the growths, then these must be cleansed with warm water and the plumage dried with a soft cloth, afterwards anoint any sore slightly with zinc ointment.

A FEATHER PULLER (R. Pulvercraft).—A bird that has had this habit for five years is a fairly hopeless case; still, with patient perseverance, an improvement, if not a cure, may be effected. You must continue the treatment given in our previous reply. Diet: seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, and such extras as stale crusts, plain cake, biscuits, little dry boiled potato, and raw carrot. Keep a piece of cuttlebone in the cage as well as continuing to supply the mortar rubbish; also keep the water in the cage continually, and supply a thickish piece of a branch for the bird to exercise its mandibles upon. If it will eat it, moisten a dry crust with sweetened hot water, and then lightly dust it with flowers of sulphur; supply this daily. Do not give any tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Be careful to keep the bowels moving freely, and you can give a little chemical food occasionally in the drinking water. Also once or twice a week a small piece of plain cake lightly spread with cod liver oil emulsion. It is a case, apart from the general treatment given in this and previous reply, which must be left to time and nature.

AVIARY OUTSIDE WINDOW (P. I. I.).—I really consider you have sufficient to stock your aviary, especially when breeding commences, for, even with getting rid of the young so soon as they are able to fend for themselves, your accommodation will be overstocked while the young are being reared. Still, as you want a bit of colour variety, get a cock Red-crested Cardinal and a pair of Grey Java Sparrows. These will do on the Budgerigar menu, if you add a little ripe fruit, a few sunflower seeds, and an occasional mealworm for the Cardinal. It will not hurt the other birds if they help themselves to these extras. You see it is not only the birds you have to allow for in your space, but there ought to be two husks for each pair of birds, making eight in all, which will considerably lessen the space of your aviary. Use only twiggy branches for perches.

GREEN AVADAVAT (E. P. M.).—You should get our Nutshell "Avadavats," 2d. post free from our manager; it will give you all details re treating this charming Waxbill. The colouration is: upper parts olive-green, with the rump and upper tail-coverts golden-green; tail black; beneath it is bright yellow, duller on the abdomen, with the sides of the body white, transversely barred with black; beak dull scarlet; legs dusky flesh-pink. The hen is similar, but she is slightly duller in colour, and a wee bit smaller than the male.

FAVOURITE CANARY HYBRIDS.

The Goldfinch and the Greenfinch are the most frequently used of all our British Finches in the production of Canary Hybrids (or "Mules" as they are popularly called). Birds of either of these crosses are remarkable for their beauty of plumage and their sweet song. They make charming pe's, their needs are very simple, and they live to a good old age. Their exceeding popularity among bird-keepers is, therefore, easily to be understood.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us, failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale has effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

WHAT I HONESTLY BELIEVE

to be by far the finest collection of Norwich Plainheads for sale in England, both in quantity and quality, for amongst them are birds of colour, quality of feather, and correct type. Birds that can win, and that, properly matched, are certain to produce winners. To those wanting Hens that later on will cost four times the money (that is, if procurable at all), I advise to have one or more on approval at once. They are not a "scratch lot," bought up here and there by advertisements in mine or other names, and then offered as so-called strains. These birds can be seen, or particulars given. The prices of above are:—Cocks, 10/6, 15/6, 20/6, 30/6, 40/6. Hens, 5/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/6, 30/6. Pairs correctly matched to produce best results by me personally, 15/6 to 70/6. Other good, honest Norwich at following prices:—Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/6. Hens, 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6. Pairs matched to produce best results, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/6, 20/6; approval. Cages, to hold one bird, 3d., to hold 2 birds, 4d. Three good Hens of any above varieties, or mixed Norwich, Yorkshire, Border, or Roller, 5/6 the three; real bargain. These prices will not last long. For all others, see detailed Current Price List.

MARVELLOUS TALKING GREY PARROT

No bird existing attains the perfection in talking, mimicking or whistling, has the same understanding or good company as the Grey Parrot; other Parrots chatter, shriek or talk in a manner; none have the social equality, the sympathetic companionship, the affectionate personality or trust, as the Grey Parrot. Do not be satisfied with something else, insist upon an African Grey with a red tail. On offer, a grey talking Parrot, saying the following, and many other funny sayings: "Elsie, Elsie come here, Mother's very pretty pet. Get ready for school girls, Come to Polly, Come on, Hello, Hello: What's the time mother, Good morning, Good night, Pretty old Poll, Scratch me, Kiss Polly, Drink for Polly, Put Polly out, Chick, chick, chick, Shunt up, Bow-wow, Get out," whistles part of a tune, barks, imitates children, fowls, etc., "Hello, Frank, Rats, You rat, Polly Polly Pops, Ta-ta, whistles sailors' hornpipe right through, Hello Joe, Are you there, Alick come here, Hello are you there, Come on Alick, Come here mother, Let Polly get out, Give poor Polly a kiss, Now then Alick, Shut up, scratch, Give Polly a bath." Established over a century. (480)

Club Reports.

SOUTH MOOR (Social Club).

Meeting, Sept. 26th, in Club Room, Mr. Taylor, chair, and a big turn up of members. Decided that sec. and chairman see about timber for our show, Nov. 6th and 7th. Letter was read from G. Teasdale, who is serving his country in France, and the members decided to send a parcel of cigarettes and other luxuries.—Geo. Lane, Sec.

CODNOR PK. AND EASTWOOD.

Meeting, Oct. 2, Three Tuns Inn, Eastwood. Mr. I. Parson, chair, with a splendid attendance. The business in hand was arrangements for annual open show. A very nice lot of specials were promised, and although it has been rather a poor breeding season with some of our members, everything promises for a splendid show. Four new members were made and we are expecting a good meeting at our next, Oct. 16, at 7, at Three Tuns, Eastwood.—Smith and Lees, Secs.

W. STANLEY (Empire) F.F., &c.

Meeting, Oct. 3, R. Peart, chair, and a good turn up of members. We got through a lot of business for the annual show. Stewards for cage birds elected: W. Gowland, G. Lane, M. Hall, H. Roxborough. Decided to accept Mr. Knott's offer of Christmas cake for the show; we were also offered by Mr. W. Brown a Belgian hare for a guessing competition of the live weight, and Mr. J. Masterman kindly gave a rabbit for the runner up. Schedules will be ready by Oct. 9. Members please call or send for one. Entries close for pigeons, Nov. 6, other varieties, Nov. 14.—R. Hutchinson, Sec.

GLASGOW AND WEST COUNTIES

Meeting 3 Oct., headquarters, 122, Ingram Street, Mr. P. Pettigrew presided over an excellent attendance. Many items in connection with annual show were gone through, and everything augurs well for a successful exhibition. New members elected: J. Barrie (Kirkintilloch), H. Fox, D. Cohen, and H. Henderson (Glasgow). The latter we are pleased to see taking up the feathers again. Business being over, the Chairman called on Mr. Adam to read his paper, which was an exhaustive treatise on Breeding, Moulting, and Colour Feeding, and was thoroughly appreciated by the members, who indulged in a friendly discussion on many of the points raised. Next meeting 6 Nov., 122, Ingram Street, at 7.—J. H. Adam, Hon. Sec.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.S.

Meeting, Maria Stewart Hall, Crosshill, Sept. 29, Mr. Heggie chair, and one of the largest-attended meetings for some time past. New member admitted: Mr. J. Black, 12, Anderson-st., K.P. The club having received the patronage of the Y.C.C. for annual show, 9 open classes for Yorkshires were classified. The patronage of the S.P.C. was also applied for, but we were unsuccessful. Without it, however, we decided to run 8 open classes. (Fanciers please note.) Mr. Byron promised to give gold medal for best bird in hall. Mr. Heggie gold medal for best young bird, and Mr. Jeffrey gold medal for 2nd best young bird. Mr. R. B. Cairns a handsome special for most points. The above specials for confirmed events only. An appeal from the chair for birds for the gift class met with a liberal response. Mr. R. B. Cairns promised to give a washing exhibition at next meeting, and it is hoped that the young members of the club will take advantage of this and turn out strong. Vote of thanks to chair brought the meeting to a close.—A. K. Hunter, Sec.

VALE OF LEVEN C.B.S.

Special meeting, Sept. 21. Decided to hold annual show in Dalmonach Hall, Bonhill, Nov. 20. Judges: Canaries, except Yorks., Mr. McLeay, Kirkintilloch; Yorks. and Brit., Mr. C. Campbell, Glasgow.—J. Hannah, Sec.

LEIGH C.B.S.

Very successful table show for natural colour Canaries, Sept. 29. It was very gratifying to see that a fair number turned up, representing three varieties. Mr. J. Hamer judged and gave every satisfaction. 1, Walkden (Bord.); 2, Charles (Yorks.); 3, Spily (Yorks.); vic, Collier; lic, e, Ordish (Nor.). R. Charleson, Sec.

BEAMISH C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 2, Bird Inn, High Hold, Mr. S. Elliott, chair, with a fair turn up of members. Stewards elected for show: W. Gowland, J. Stanger, R. Coates, and A. Young, with Mr. S. Elliott show manager. Decided that one young be nominated for special for best young bird bred by a member, current year. Next meeting, Oct. 16, a week before show, and we would like to see a good turn up of members, as our show is the first in the district. J. H. Elliott, Sec.

CHOPWELL C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 25, Mr. M. Simpson presiding before a moderate attendance. Decided to hold members' show Nov. 20, and to ask Mr. W. Curry and Mr. W. Tomlinson, our late Sec., to judge. Eighteen classes provided: Norwich 3, Yorks. 2, Bord. 3, Mules 1, Brit. 7, and For. 2; fee 1s. per cage; prizes 6s., 4s., 2s., full prize money on six entries. Hoping we will be able to hold a good show and to give our judges plenty of work. Next meeting will be a week earlier, Oct. 15. Will all members please try and attend.—W. H. Chester, Sec.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE (East End)

Meeting, Sept. 29, Halls' Cafe, Benton-road, Mr. Parker, chair, Sec. announced that he had booked the Assembly Rooms, Byker Bridge End, for annual show, Nov. 26 and 27, the same hall as last year. Resolved to add a natural colour class each for Norwich and Yorks., thus bringing our classification up to 12 classes. Now if members will only do their bit and collect at least one special I have no doubt we shall have as successful a show as last year. I shall be pleased to have a return of same at next meeting, Oct. 27. Schedules will be ready in two or three weeks.—J. W. Contts.

HALIFAX O.S.

Meeting and washing exhibition, a splendid turn up of members present. Mr. F. Burdick showed the novices how he washed his birds, and Mr. S. Rolfe gave the champions lessons. While the birds were drying the classification for the annual open show, Nov. 19 and 20, was confirmed as follows: Open, 6 Yorks., 2 Green Yorks., 6 Nor., 6 Brit., 2 S.H. Open Novice (25 3s. limit): 6 Yorks., 1 Green Yorks., 4 Nor. Prizes, 10s., 6s., 4s., 2s., with 16 entry. Resolved to give half of the gate, including ticket money, to the relief of the Local Comforts Fund for Men on Active Service. Men in uniform to be admitted free.—H. Clegg, Sec.

SCOTTISH CRESTED C.C.

Meeting in Glasgow, Sept. 25, Mr. John Noble (Kilmarnock) presiding. Correspondence and apologies for absence were read from Messrs. Adamson (Kilmarnock), McNaughton (Larbert), and Whitton (Broughty Ferry). Applications for patronage, etc., were considered, and the following granted: Glasgow, Cowdenheath. A short discussion took place on the advisability of holding a club show this season, and it was ultimately decided to instruct sec. to make arrangements (if at all possible), for holding a show at some suitable date and venue. Members elected: Messrs. R. S. Spence (Edinburgh), T. Martin (Uphall), Forsyth, Service, and Duns (Berwickshire), T. McVicar (Holytown). Vote of thanks to chair terminated meeting. I appeal to Crest fanciers for their support of club at this time, and shall be pleased to receive subs. of unpaid members.—J. Young, Hon. Sec.

RICHMOND (Surrey) C.B.S.

Meeting, St. John's Hall, Sept. 27, Mr. W. Phipps chair, and a good attendance. It was arranged to hold an evening show on Nov. 8, at 6.30, with classes as last annual show, with the addition of three classes for Borders, and six classes for members who have never won two firsts at any club show. Sec. was instructed to cancel or amalgamate any classes failing six entries; fee 6d. first cage and 4d. per cage after; entries close Nov. 3. Catalogue 3d. which includes entry to show. Stewards elected: Messrs. Harris, Snow, J. Phipps, W. Phipps, and Farmer. Sec. was instructed to write to several gentlemen with regard to specials, and he would be pleased to hear from members who can get a special or two for the show. No matter how small, any special would be acceptable. Next meeting Oct. 25, when we are to have a "Question night." Members please keep their eye on CAGE BIRDS Notice column for notice of meeting, as no postcards will be sent.—Geo. Birch, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting in Manchester, Oct. 2. We had a very fair turn-up of members, great pleasure being shown in getting our President amongst us. Patronage has been given to Manchester and N.C.O.S. and London O.B.A. for Lancashires and Lizards. Decided to give patronage to Cardiff under certain conditions. The members had all been balloted in regard to a scheme for all members of L. and L.F.A. gaining prizes at patronage shows to be paid full prize money from a fund collected from our members for that purpose, and it was decided not to proceed with same, as under present conditions it was not considered feasible. Sec. was instructed to write each member not present proposing a scheme, which will be given a trial at Manchester show, and if successful will be repeated at other shows. I am sorry that Messrs. Ollershaw, sen., and G. Naylor, both Lizard fanciers, have decided for the present to sever their membership. It is to be hoped it will not be long before we see them again. Mr. Sam Howard was elected a member. This should give a bit of a lift amongst the novice Lizard members. Members not having any enamel can have same sent on by applying to me for same. Large tins 10d., small tins 5d. each. It was discussed that we have two or three shows in connection with shows in the district, and secretary was advised to write the sec. of the shows concerned. Plenty of room for new members. Subs., 5s. yearly.—J. Rukin, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH MOOR C.B.S.

Meeting, Sept. 25, Mr. W. Cresswell, chair. Mr. R. Whitfield was elected a member. Stewards and doorkeepers were chosen for annual show Oct. 30. It was decided to have another meeting on Oct. 16.—G. F. Bates, Sec.

LEEDS ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Lockhart's, Briggate, Oct. 2, Mr. Walton chair, and a good attendance. A splendid schedule was drawn up for our annual show, and as we have engaged the best room in Leeds for the purpose and judges of the standing of Messrs. G. Wareing, J. Lyons, and J. Tomlinson, we are looking forward to a record entry. Decided unanimously that we accept no alien enemy's entries on any pretext whatever. This, I think, is a decision that nobody can disagree with. Members kindly let me have specials as early as possible.—H. Best, Sec.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Special meeting, Queen's Head, to finally select the judge for our annual show at the above inn, Nov. 27. Mr. Hy. Seely, Choppington Colliery, was elected. There was a poor attendance of members present for such an important meeting, but I hope that they will turn up better at our next meeting to settle the classes. Any member not being squared up by Oct. 9 is not eligible to show, so, members, rally up at next meeting, usual date, and get the show satisfactorily arranged to suit all.—R. H. Dixon, Sec.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Headquarters, Seven Stars, John's-lane, Wolverhampton. Mr. Willows, chair, and a fair attendance. New member elected, Mr. Keeley, Sneathwick. Letters were read from Mr. Fisher and Mr. Lester, both being unable to officiate as judges, through pressure of business; after discussion Mr. Willows and Mr. Jacquemin were unanimously voted to judge at our next show, Nov. 4 and 5. All classes will stand as last year. Meetings will be arranged to take place each fortnight until further notice, commencing at 7.30.—J. W. Thomson, Hon. Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting was held Sept. 27, Church Institute, Padlington Street; Mr. Curtis, chair, and five members present. Correspondence was dealt with, and Mr. S. Richards was elected a member. A judging competition in Norwich Plainheads was held, 35 birds being staged in two classes: yellow 16, and buff 19. Members were evidently anxious to get the opinion of that well-known Norwich fancier, Mr. J. Hodder, who acted as final judge. After the awards had been given Mr. J. Hodder fully explained his reasons for so placing the birds, and from the few questions asked, his final decisions were no doubt satisfactory to the various owners. A very hearty vote of thanks was unanimously accorded Mr. Hodder for his kindness in attending. A silver-mounted pipe for member making most entries was presented to Mr. W. Knight. At next meeting, Oct. 11, there will be a cage-making demonstration by our esteemed chairman, Mr. A. W. Curtis.—F. Thynne, Asst. Hon. Sec.

FOREIGN BIRD EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

The executive of the League met on Sept. 26, and decided to hold this year's club show at the Horticultural Hall, on Dec. 10, 11, and 13. About 33 classes, including selling, have been provided, and, unless unforeseen circumstances prevent, the judges will be as follows:—Parrots, Mr. Chas. Cooper; Seed-eaters, Mr. R. J. Watts; Insectivorous and Fruit-eaters, Mr. S. W. Townsend. A good list of specials in addition to the prize-money of 30s. per class have been provided, and at this show four Club cups, to be won outright at the end of the season for most points in each section will be in competition. Points for the Fruit and Nectar Feeding Cup will only count at such shows where a class is provided for birds of the kind. Cheltenham, Sheffield O.S., and Reading shows have also been granted these cups, which are for competition as follows:—Most points in Parrots throughout the season, ditto for Seed-eaters, ditto for Insectivorous and Fruit-eating birds, and ditto for Fruit and Nectar Feeding birds (which comprise only Sugar and Sunbirds, Humming Birds, Flowerpeckers, and Spider Hunters). The Club's diploma for the first appearance on the show bench of a bird is also offered at all the fixtures mentioned, and at the Horticultural Hall Mr. Rosslyn Mannering, has generously offered a guinea special for the rarest Foreign Hybrid, to be awarded irrespective of the bird's merit as a competitor in its class.—A. Silver, Hon. Sec.

The Revival of the Evenly-Marked Yorkshire.

By OSCAR E. BROOKS.

It is not customary to pair two perfectly marked birds together, for the reason that this process generally tends to overdo the markings, and more often than otherwise the progeny are for the most part heavily variegated. A cock having tolerably good eye markings should be mated with a hen possessing good tail and wing markings, or vice versa. In the ordinary way, however, it will be found much the better plan to rely on the male bird for the improvement of markings. This being a somewhat disputed point, I offer no argument, but merely support my opinion with knowledge derived from actual experience.

Now a word of warning. From the very beginning weed out from the stock all birds having splashes of green markings on top of the head. "Why?" I hear someone ask. For this reason, ticks on the head are of a most inherited nature. They run through generations, and still persist in returning, and once they become properly established in a strain they are most difficult to breed out.

Some folks have an idea that birds bred for even marks should not be colour-fed, but with this I disagree. To my mind nothing looks finer than a six-pointed yellow Yorkshire cock that has been judiciously fed for colour, so that the body feathers have assumed that beautiful orange hue so aptly described as a "ball of fire," and, moreover, I do not think that the intensity of the markings themselves is injured by colour-feeding, provided it is properly carried out with the aid of the right materials. That is quite another subject, however, so I do not propose to deal with it here.

Before I conclude my article, which has been written with the express desire to offer a plea for the restitution of this beautiful variety, I would like to sum up briefly the several points in its favour, and I think the reader will then agree that they by far out-class any that may be advanced to the contrary.

To begin with, although I admit every man has his own ideas, and rightly so, yet I venture to say that there are very few who do not consider the typical even-marked Yorkshire one of, if not the handsomest of Canaries. Secondly, we have the great amount of interest and fascination afforded by the difficulties one has to meet in breeding, and what is more, as they are hard to breed, and consequently, good ones few and far between, they are rendered all the more valuable, and the honour of breeding them the greater.

Last, but not least, while every nest can not be expected to contain a perfect technically marked specimen, yet if the strain is a good one, and the art of pairing thoroughly mastered, they will all be well marked, and, what is of infinitely more consequence, will be capable of handing down their good qualities to the offspring of which they themselves may be destined to become the parents.

The Shows.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 2, Lockhart's, Briggate. Mr. W. A. Wilson, chair. Messrs. G. Yelland, H. Simms, E. Middleton, kindly volunteered to act as stewards at the November show, and Messrs. C. Fryer, J. W. Sanderson, and W. A. Wilson, as door-keepers. The rest of the evening was taken up with a very interesting table show, judged by Mr. J. Chambers, who gave entire satisfaction.

SKELMANTHORPE.

The Skelmanthorpe C.B.A. held its eleventh annual exhibition of Canaries on Oct. 2, in the Workmen's Clubroom. The room is an ideal one having plenty of light, and being free from draughts, and could accommodate a big entry. 27 classes were provided, but unfortunately 11 had to be cancelled, and entries in the remaining 16 classes totalled only 175, but equality was quite up to the standard of previous shows. The strongest classes were the unfledged classes, 46 birds being entered in the three champion classes, and 52 in the three novice. A valuable cup was given for the best unfledged bird in each section. The winner in the champions was L. Dyson's cl. yellow, one of the most promising youngsters we have seen; it has plenty of length and stands correct. The novice winner was A. Taylor's cl. buff, a bird of correct type and quality, and shown in best of condition. The President, Mr. J. Helliwell, is a real fancier, and the society is very fortunate to have such an able sec. as W. Everett, who, although only young, as a fancier, is quite able to control the working of a show. He was ably assisted by P. Hirst, and the show stewards, Milton, Peel, and Percy Taylor. The society possesses about the best lot of working members ever seen, mostly all of them took part in unpacking, repacking, and sending away of the exhibits. The prize money was paid out to all winners who attended. The gate was very poor. The judge, Mr. R. Halliday, Shipley, gave general satisfaction.

Twitterings.

We are holding our annual show on Nov. 20, writes Mr. A. J. Notley, sec., Helton-le-Hole C.B., etc., S.

The Cumnock C.B.S. has been obliged to alter its show date from 27 Nov. to 11 Dec., writes Mr. Alex. Wyper, Market Place, Auchinleck. Will the Scotch fancy men of Ayr and Kilmarnock take note that we have opened our show to these districts for Scots fancy? The membership fee is 2s. 6d., and information will be gladly given by the sec.

Mr. John McLay, Kirkintilloch, has kindly consented to judge the Plainhead Crest and C.B. sections, and Mr. G. Brown, Leith, Borders, British, and Foreign at the annual show of the Falkirk Good Intent C.B.A., writes Mr. W. Clarkson, Sec., on Dec. 11. Intending members please come forward to our next meeting Oct. 30 in Temporary Hall, Graham's Road, at 7.30.

Schedules of Liverpool Show have been posted to all previous exhibitors. Anybody who has not received one please apply at once, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, Hon. Secs., 68, Brunswick Road, Liverpool.

As I am about to call a meeting of the Welsh C.B.C., writes Mr. A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec., 66, Clare Street, Merthyr Tydfil, I shall be glad to receive members' subscriptions and applications for new members; sub., 3s. per annum. Will all societies wishing to obtain our patronage please make application to me not later than Thursday, Oct. 14.

Plymouth Wants Entries.

As will be seen from the show advertisement on page 159, the entries for Plymouth Show are not what they should be. Possibly exhibitors are dilatory in sending in, for only 100 entries were sent in 50 classes when we heard from the hon sec., Mr. Pope. Entries will be accepted up till first post on Sunday, and exhibitors should support this the first important show in the south.

A Neat Cuttlefish Holder.

Mr. F. Coxon, Burnopfield, kindly sends us a piece of cuttlefish bone pierced with a piece of wire which projects about an inch on each side, and accompanies the same with the following note:—"Bring a reader of CAGE BIRDS for many years, and knowing the trouble to keep the bone from falling out, I send you a piece of cuttlefish with the wire in. I put it inside the cage above perch, and catch the wire into cage front at each side, it is an absolute fixture; I have had some pieces in for months."

The Bird-Keepers' Roll of Honour.

A. WOOD, Sec.

Ashington and Hirst C.B.S.

SIR.—The following are members of our club who are serving with the Colours:—J. Locke, Northumberland Fusiliers (killed in action); J. Anderson, Northumberland Fusiliers (in training); D. Reavley, R.A.M.C.; T. Mansel, regiment not known. The following are other fanciers who are serving with the Colours from Ashington, but were not members of our club when war broke out:—G. Watson, Northumberland Fusiliers; F. Barron, Tyneside Scottish; Ed. Floyd, R.A.M.C.; J. Holmes, Northumberland Fusiliers; A. Carr, Tyneside Scottish. Our members congratulate you on the idea of a Bird Fanciers' Roll of Honour, as it will always keep before us the names of fanciers who have responded to their country's call.

C. F. YAPSON, Sec.

Queen's Park (Kensington) C.B.S.

SIR.—It is with great pleasure I acquaint you of the following members of our Society who have answered the country's call, and shall be glad to see these added to your great Roll of Honour:—Messrs. S. C. Bonniwell, W. N. Smith, F. Deacon, H. R. Lowe, and C. C. Hills. It is hoped all will have a safe and speedy return, and to those of our members who are working long hours on munition work and unable to attend our meetings and shows, we extend our wishes for an early return, and promise them a hearty reception.

H. J. RATCLIFFE, Assist. Sec.

Mr. "George" (J. G.) Ramsden, the only son of Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the well-known Crystal Palace show manager, is a Gunner in the Royal Field Artillery.

Mr. Osborn Wellings, the son of Mr. Alf. Wellings, the well-known cage-bird judge, is serving with the colours. He joined the 18th Lancashire Fusiliers on Jan. 18.

We have, in addition to the above, received the following names of fanciers who have enlisted:—

Private G. G. Grant, Inverness, 1st Lovat's Scouts, Mediterranean Force.

Private Peter Grant, Inverness, 4th Cameron Highlanders, British Expeditionary Force.

Bad for the Hoopoe.

A Hoopoe has killed itself by flying against a moving train between Thirsk Junction and Sessay, near Islebeck. It is in nice plumage, and has a very fine crest. The bird is now being set up by a local taxidermist.

Clapham's Prospects Good.

If the entries come in as well as the application for schedules have done, writes Mr. T. J. Hope, Hon. Sec., Clapham C.B.A., we should have a good show. Unfortunately we have been unable to obtain so many promises of specials as usual, but, of course, this is owing to so many of our fancier friends being otherwise engaged.

Don't Forget Newcastle Show.

I beg to make an appeal to fanciers to support our open show on Oct. 23, in the Co-operative Hall, Benwell, writes Mr. J. W. Reed, hon. sec., Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S. We are only having a one-day show this year, not two days as in past years. We have been unable to get our usual hall owing to it being used as a military hospital, and none of the other large halls being available we decided to try and keep the interest in the Fancy going by taking the Co-operative Hall, Benwell. The Elswick Road cars pass the door, so that visitors to the town can easily get to the show. The hall is near the Elswick Road terminus. I have sent schedules out to hundreds of fanciers, and will gladly forward one to any who may have been overlooked, if they will kindly apply as in our advertisement. Entries close Oct. 18.

We hear that the collection of foreign birds at the London Zoological Gardens has been enriched by the addition of no less than eleven examples of the rare Wilson's Bird of Paradise. The bird is a native of the two Papuan islands, Waigiu and Batanta, and is remarkable for the almost entire absence of feathers on the crown, the bare places being a beautiful blue in colour. The two elongated tail feathers cross each other, and then curve outwards in a circle. The birds were brought to this country by the well-known collector, Mr. E. A. Pratt.

The Arful Sparrow.

The "Referee" tells a story of a Sparrow that perched on a table laid for tea in Ranelagh Gardens, and concludes as follows:—"Now, one dish contained buns, and one of these delicacies was near the edge of the dish. For this the little bird made. He put his breast against it, pushed it on to the table, and so, with a series of vigorous shoves, on to the ground, where his friends and relations proceeded to help themselves, he coming down and joining in the feast, which he had so kindly and ingeniously furnished. If I were a bird I should certainly take up my residence at Ranelagh."

Birds and the Crops.

"Smallholder," writing to the "Agricultural Gazette," says that he is quite sure that birds rob him of from £15 to £30 worth of produce every year, and the editor, in an article bearing on the subject, remarks that, "taking the whole of the United Kingdom, it would be perfectly safe to put the amount (of damage to crops by birds) at between £15,000,000 and £20,000,000 per annum. It is quite certain that some concerted action by the farmers is needed, not only for their own protection, but for the national good."

The Chiffchaff's Farewell Song.

This week the Chiffchaff—after being silent for many weeks—has resumed its song. But it is not the powerful outburst we hear in April and May; it seems only a weak imitation of the song we love to hear in spring, and it is hard to recognise it as a Chiffchaff at all. It is a sign that autumn is upon us, that soon the delicate little songster will be wending its way to Africa to spend the winter there; and the silent woods will be the poorer for its absence. With what pleasure we shall welcome it back next spring—a sure and certain sign that the winter is over and the upward flow of the sap has begun. Just now there is a touch of melancholy in the plaintive attempt at a song bird-lovers know so well.—"Belfast Northern Whig."

The Chough on an Irish Isle.

Describing in "Country Life" a visit to the island of Rathlin in the autumn of 1913, Miss Maud D. Haviland writes:—"The Raven, Peregrine, and Chough still breed in Rathlin, and almost any evening small parties of the latter species could be seen playing together along the face of the cliffs. Reared upon these storm-swept crags, what the Chough does not know about wind currents and 'air pockets' is not worth knowing. It is a fine thing to see a score of these birds chuck themselves—no other word describes their action—over a sheer precipice four hundred feet high, fall headlong down towards the sea, then, checking their giddy parachute in mid-air, soar up to the brink again to repeat the performance. The grace and freedom of their flight is not excelled by that of any other bird. Long may this beautiful and much persecuted species find a stronghold in the 'Fortress of Ireland.'"

The Affairs of the Crested C.C.

At the invitation of Mr. Thos. Heath, a few members of the Crested C.C., met on Sept. 29, at 2, York Street, St. James's, London, to consider the present condition of its affairs, and to decide upon the taking of such steps as might be found desirable. There were present Mr. J. Robson, chair, and Messrs. Broad, Clarke, Crabb, Heath, Shepherd, Warrington, and Watcham. Mr. Heath reported that he had received no answer to any of several letters sent to the Hon. Sec. In his last letter he had invited the hon. sec. to attend the meeting, and had requested him to bring or send the books of the club. He had received no reply, and the books had not been sent. The books had not been audited since December 1913. After letters from several prominent provincial members had been read, it was proposed that a deputation wait on the hon. sec., but it was ultimately agreed that Mr. Clarke be asked to interview the hon. sec., and this Mr. Clarke promised to do forthwith. It was decided to call an extraordinary meeting of the club for Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 2, York Street. Mr. Heath kindly promised to undertake pro tem. the duties of hon. secretary, and his offer was enthusiastically received. A vote of thanks to the chair and to Mr. Heath for the trouble he had taken closed the meeting.

Migratory Greenfinches.

The arrival in April of migrant Greenfinches in large numbers has more than once been referred to in this column. During recent weeks we have been observing the return migration, and vast numbers of birds have gathered together for departure in willow beds and other places. In one spot many Tree Sparrows were with the Greenfinches, and the piping of Bullfinches was heard near at hand. On another occasion the willow beds rang with the twittering cries of Redpolls. In fact, many quiet places with suitable cover are alive with varied feathered creatures these early autumn days.—J. J. C. in the "Manchester Evening News."

Parrot Returns via the Chimney.

An extraordinary story is told by "W. W. H." in "The Scotsman." A Parrot belonging to the writer escaped from its cage, soared high in the air until he became a tiny speck, and ultimately spent the night on the mast of a ship in a harbour a mile away. The writer says that three days afterwards "On entering the dining-room, we found the Parrot cold and stiff, soot-covered, and bedraggled. He had fallen down the chimney, and had only had sufficient strength left to drag himself through the fender on to the soft, woolly rug, where he had died. The house is situated in a thickly populated part of the town, and the bird had never been outside before, so surely this revealed a great homing instinct."

The Value of Advertising.

I was pleased to see the picture of my Marsh Tit on the front page of CAGE BIRDS this week; it was the only time I exhibited the bird, as I sold him soon after. My sister had one of these birds in an outside aviary in our garden for 2½ years, where it lived quite happily with a mixed collection of British and Foreign birds. It may interest you to know that although your paper only came out yesterday I have already sold the 17 birds I advertised, many at 9 yesterday morning, and have had to return postal orders for birds already sold.—J. A. E. Smyth, Catford.

"From my sixpenny advert in CAGE BIRDS I have had about 40 replies. I could not write to all of them, so should be very pleased if you would kindly thank them through your paper. I always get good results to adverts in CAGE BIRDS."—J. A. ROBINSON (Rushden).

"It says something for your paper—CAGE BIRDS—that I had letters from all over the place in reply to my advt., and it cost me money for stamps to send several P.O.'s back. I think people might send stamped envelopes when they are answering adverts. I wish you every success with your paper."—F. BROOKS (Bath).

"Owing to receiving so many replies to my advt. in CAGE BIRDS of September 11th, I could not write and thank all. I had letters from all over England, Scotland and Wales, and I hope you will oblige by thanking all enquirers." H. FOWLER (York.)

"Please find room in your highly-esteemed paper, CAGE BIRDS, to express my thanks to the many inquirers re my recent adverts. I received 42 replies, and found the task of answering them quite beyond the time at my disposal. Circumstances have compelled me to relinquish the interesting hobby, but my earnest hope is that it is only for a brief period."—A. G. LEWIS (Kettering).

WHAT OF THE 1915 SHOW SEASON?

AT the beginning of another show season, the second during the war, we have communicated with some of those whose opinions should be of interest to bird-keepers, and we have pleasure in publishing some of the answers already received. Others have yet to come to hand, and we shall again revert to the subject. It will be noted with pleasure that the opinions generally are on the bright side, and there can at least be no doubt that the outlook is immensely more favourable than was the case a year since. The vitality of our hobby under the stress of the past twelve months has been nothing short of astonishing, especially considering the great percentage of bird-lovers who have, in responding so bravely to the call of their country, had to relinquish bird-keeping for a time, and we may look to the future with justifiable confidence.

A Good Time Coming.

The trade in birds appears to have been adversely affected through the difficulties of importation. There is, however, a bright side even to this. The importation of foreign Canaries is now restricted to the comparatively small number which come from friendly countries, and the value of Views from Liverpool.

THE show season has opened this week in most parts of the country; whether it will be with a flourish of song or otherwise, CAGE BIRDS will tell us next week. Twelve months ago shows were cancelled by the score, the Cage Bird Fancy not being the only section to be pessimists. Those societies that stuck to their guns reaped a rich harvest for their pluck. In many instances societies were robbed of the only halls in their respective towns fit for a show, hence they had to cancel. On looking through many papers connected with other hobbies, I find the Cage Bird Fancy is far ahead in holding open shows this year, and this speaks volumes for the grit of the working man. I am of opinion that the shows this year will be far in advance of last year, and when each secretary has got his house in proper order he will have a good balance to show his auditors.

A Gentle Hint.

Those societies that have a balance in hand are practically in duty bound to run a show; the motto "Business as Usual" is now "Business better than ever." There is plenty of money about, and we have all had a fair share of it. If all societies will look at their classification from a business point of view, and only put on classes that have filled in the past, they won't go far wrong. Unfortunately some varieties seem never to pay, and are only put on because some of the exhibitors are decent sorts. Now is the time to ask these gents to guarantee their sections, and a little coaxing will do it, just a little Teddy Grey touch.

Support the Shows.

The most important part of the show is the prize-money, and in my experience I have found that quite 80 per cent. of exhibitors never think how much money they are going to pick up. As long as they can get in the cards, that suits them. Very few make money out of showing; in fact, very few take up a hobby thinking it is going to pay, so I think societies can with confidence bring their prize-money down a bit. Fanciers like to get rid of their surplus at a decent figure, and if the shows are not supported, the birds will not be wanted. No doubt one excuse will be the transit of birds to and from shows. The train service, that is the passenger service, has altered very little from the old times. My society (Liverpool O.S.) has had to handle in the past birds from Ireland and the Isle of Man at the docks, and exhibits from all corners of England, Scotland, and Wales. We had no trouble last year, and we are assured by the Associated Railways in Liverpool that live stock will be received and dispatched as before. This applies all over the country; it is only the goods traffic that is congested, so exhibitors need not be afraid to send their best specimens. Another excuse may be—why run a show while all the young fellows are at the Front and will take no interest? Against this, just think over the friends you have who are exhibitors, and you will find the majority are past the recruiting stage. They are not all on munition work, and if they were, time would be found at night to pack

English-bred Canaries must rise considerably as a consequence. This will be all to the advantage of those who have stuck to their guns, so, to speak, and no difficulty whatever should be experienced in disposing of surplus stock at remunerative prices.

Meetings and Shows Galore.

That the various societies throughout the country are still very much alive will be apparent from a glance at our "Club Notices" columns. The announcements of meetings to come were never more frequent, and the majority of these announcements last week and this refer to arrangements for forthcoming shows. A charity show is announced to be held at Glasgow to fill the New Year void caused by the absence of the Scottish National from the season's fixtures, and London also will have its great show at the Horticultural Hall. It is aptly pointed out by one of our esteemed correspondents, Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, that societies which held shows under the adverse circumstances of last season had no reason to regret their spirited action, and we join in his belief that when a review of the forthcoming season comes to be written it will be found that the 1915 shows have done even better.

the birds off; they love a flutter now and again, and good birds are never kept at home.

Enter Early.

The only worry, and it is a worry, to the Secretary is the printing of catalogues. Compositors cannot be got, our printer tells us, and we must give him the copy two days earlier this year, or we get no catalogues until Sunday. Now this can be obviated by exhibitors themselves, if they will send their entries early. They know how many they are going to enter, and it is easy to get a P.O. on Saturday and post right away. This will give the societies a chance to get the copy away by Monday morning. Late entries are a nuisance at the best of times; they ought to be returned this year. A point wherein the societies can help the exhibitor is by commencing to pack up early, and have all railway birds away before 6 p.m. Local birds, which are always a great attraction, should be left until last. In conclusion, societies need have no fear of running an open show, because exhibitors will be falling over one another to enter birds. There seems nothing much on, except "a bit of trouble over the water."

J. W. METCALFE.

What Plymouth's Secretary Thinks.

I am afraid it is somewhat a difficult matter to gauge the prospects of the coming show season. The wholesale abandonment of shows of last year is bound to make itself felt, and I am strongly of the opinion that all societies who are holding shows this year are helping to keep the Fancy together, and that, even should this year's shows result in a slight loss, nothing but ultimate good can accrue, and nothing but holding the shows will save the hobby from going further back. We are now getting in our entries for Plymouth, and, allowing for the well-known procrastination of bird fanciers, there are evidences of a fair show, but I am afraid we shan't reach some of our previous years' figures, neither do we expect to. I can say this, however: Whatever the financial result may be, the Fancy in Plymouth and District is already showing more go and enthusiasm. Many fanciers who keep varieties which need colour feeding have dropped this necessary adjunct to success on the show bench, thinking that shows would be scarce, and the game not worth the candle. Perhaps non-fed classes would meet the case?

There is one disturbing fact in the South of England, that is, the apathy of the S.N.P.C. and the C.C.C. If a specialist club is worth anything it should be up and doing now and give a lead to the exhibitors, but with the exception of the S.B.F.C., who are certainly alive, and, to a limited extent, the S.Y.C.C., we hear nothing about these clubs.

A Suggestion for the Common Good.

As a member of the Committee of the late lamented Cage Bird Union, I am somewhat loth to suggest any governing body for the Cage Bird Fancy, but I feel strongly that if the secretaries of the different societies, including the specialist clubs, could be banded together somehow, the Fancy would greatly benefit as a whole. Vexed questions could be debated in the same month at different societies' meetings, and a summary of the views of all of them might be sent by the secretary of—shall we say, "League of Cage Bird Secretaries" to CAGE BIRDS for publication once a month. Again, it might help in a better distribution of varieties of birds. For instance, Plymouth has Plain-heads, as everyone knows, but what about Lizards, Lancashires, and other varieties? It is similar with other bird centres. It might also help in giving accurate knowledge of best trains to send on birds to shows, each society doing its best for any society holding its annual show. Should this idea find favour with members of the Fancy, I shall be pleased later on to further elaborate the matter.

THOS. POPE.

A Note from Bradford.

Personally I think any society with a good schedule will get good support. I come to this conclusion from the number of applications I have had already for birds that can win at open shows. I may also add that Saturday's post brought me several applications for schedules of our open shows though advert. of same only appeared in the Friday's issue of CAGE BIRDS.

I should like to point out to fanciers at large that it will be to their credit to support any society holding an open show for the simple reason that societies which in the past have relied greatly on the generous support of local gentry can scarcely expect the same liberality till times become more settled.

W. HELLIWELL.

Traders Busy.

We are fairly busy at the present time, although the National Crisis has thrown many difficulties in our way. Our two shipments of Tasteless Pepper from Spain have been delayed some weeks in arriving, but we are pleased to state we have been able to keep our customers' going from the stocks we hold. We are very much hampered by the railway companies not being able to deliver and despatch seeds in consequence of preference having to be given to Government requirements, but on the whole our customers are assisting us by realising the position. Many of my bird catchers have joined the Colours, and we are not receiving many birds, particularly Goldfinches. Four of my cage makers have joined the Colours, but we are pleased to state we have been able to keep orders going from stock. The prices of materials, such as metal, wire, solder, wood, etc., have very much advanced, but we are putting all our specialities in as low as we possibly can, and I am doing my utmost to meet the wishes of many of my old and esteemed customers.

J. WALSH.

What Mr. Ramsden Thinks.

I have been so fully occupied in business that I have had very little time to devote to the Fancy, but from what I have seen and heard in my travels, I believe there is a general feeling amongst traders and subscribers not to support shows during the War. Certainly there will be no shows at the Crystal Palace during the continuance of the War. At the same time, there are plenty of fanciers who are above military age, and it is up to these men, and the wives of men in service, to carry on the Fancy until we have peace, and return to normal conditions again.

Societies that can see their way clear to hold shows ought to be supported by every fancier able to make an entry, no matter whether prize-money is fixed, graduated, or on the sliding scale. It surprises me to see correspondence over a few coppers of prize-money. Surely if the Fancy is worth carrying on in these times, the grumblers should stop grumbling, and do their bit cheerfully.

J. W. RAMSDEN.

Foreign Trade Somewhat Hampered.

We find the importation of Foreign birds a difficult matter just at present, and the sale rather restricted. Of course, many of our best fanciers are with the Colours, and have therefore laid aside their hobby for the present, and as some good exhibitors are also fighting for their country, the sale of rare birds is not very flourishing just now. We believe that many of the cheaper birds could be sold, but for the difficulty of getting them to this country, this making even the well-known kinds, those which are cheap in normal times, very expensive for the present.

Take for example Senegal Finches, these in ordinary times we could get from the West Coast of Africa and have them shipped to an agent in Bordeaux or St. Nazaire, who would see to their cleaning, food and water, give them a rest, and then send them overland to Dieppe, and across the Channel to England, the whole of the journey taking about six days. Now the overland route is stopped, and the only way to procure this class of bird is to send someone personally for them, and in this case the journey by sea would take eleven days each way; besides this there would be a stop of about eight or ten days in French West Africa, and probably a long wait for a boat to England. A man may have to wait from two to three weeks for a homeward-bound steamer, and this of course adds to the expense. Freight dues are high, travelling expensive, and even the bird in itself has advanced in price, so that for Senegal birds, which in normal times could be sold from 2s. to 5s. a pair, we should have to ask from 5s. to 20s., and even then the journey would not pay us as well as when the birds were cheaper. The one reason for this is that it is very little use bringing over the more expensive birds which were the class of stock to make a trip pay. Cheaper kinds of birds suit the small country dealers best, as they are pretty inexpensive and easy to keep, but within the last twelve months many of the small dealers have given up business because of the added cost of the birds which should be the cheaper kinds.

Goldfish, also, we find very difficult to import. These mostly came from the South of Italy, and in ordinary times they are sent overland through Switzerland, where we have an agent at Chiasso to change the water and then forward the fish direct to London. Now that the overland route is stopped, they have to be brought most of the way by sea, and whereas a year ago we could sell small goldfish at 4s. to 6s. per 100, we have now to charge from 20s. to 25s. for the same quality. Eighteen months ago our output of goldfish amounted to about 14,000 per week, now, even if we could get sufficient, we could not sell more than five or six hundred.

Another very saleable article in pre-War-time was mealworms. The trade in these was a German industry. These people bred them by the ton and entirely cornered the market for them. There are not enough bred in England and Holland to supply more than a very small portion of the English market, and here is a fine opening for an industrious Englishman to commence. He should, however, be prepared to go thoroughly into the matter and make up his mind to work for a while without making much profit.

DE VON & Co.

HOW MANY EGGS IN A SKYLARK'S NEST?

By JOHN CRAIG (Beith).

THIS is not a conundrum, but I see there is still some doubt as to the number of eggs laid by the Skylark in each clutch, for a lady says: "I have been making some inquiries of the young man who brought me the little Skylarks last year, and others who work in the farm fields, and I find that five eggs is the usual number for a Skylark, sometimes six, but often only three or four young out of them," so I will endeavour to throw some light on the subject.

As a matter of fact, some farmers do not know the difference between Skylarks' eggs and those of the Meadow Pipit. The Meadow Pipit lays fewer threes, more fours, more fives, and more sixes to the clutch than the Skylark. I will prove beyond a doubt that with the Skylark three and four are the usual clutches, and not five.

Mr. Robert Kennedy, Beith, who is a present-day bird watcher, has seen in the last twelve years eighty-one Skylarks' nests, forty-four with three eggs, thirty-three with four eggs, and four with five eggs.

My own experience is practically the same. This extends over fifty-five years, and I am still in the field. I could produce more proof if it was needed, but I think the above should convince the most sceptical that three and four are the most common clutches; in fact, the evidence is overwhelming.

I am aware that clutches of six are sometimes reported, but one of the sixes referred to was said to be two clutches. I have seen a Blackbird's nest with ten eggs, but it was proved that two females had laid in the same nest, and I have also seen a Corncrake's nest with nineteen eggs, but it was noticed that two eggs were laid in the same day, so there can be no doubt that two females had laid in the same nest.

With further reference to the clutches of the Skylark, a certain writer believes that most of the threes are imperfect clutches—at any rate, he said so; but I am inclined to think he was trying to get out of the difficulty, as he had committed himself on the point before, and the evidence was so strong that he got uncomfortably cornered. He will find it an impossible task to prove that most of the threes are imperfect clutches. No wonder that some books are unreliable for reference.

It is fifty-one or fifty-two years since I found the first Skylark's nest with five eggs.

I will give an instance to show I took a keen interest in the subject even in those days. When I was a boy I used to work beside some men who were in the habit of going out for a smoke. When the men returned after one of these occasions they told me they had found a lark's nest with five young ones, and I said I would soon find it. I then went out and looked about to see where the men had been resting, and I came across a place where the grass was pressed down. I lay down on the same spot, and in a few minutes a Skylark appeared with food in its bill, and I soon found the nest. When I returned and told the men I had found the nest they would not believe me till I told them where it was.

That is more than fifty years ago, and since then I have seen several Skylarks' nests with five. I have seen two Skylarks' nests on the roadside, one in a young plantation, and two under a whin bush, and this year I found a nest with three eggs, entirely surrounded by gorse or whins, and one with three young ones on an almost perpendicular hill side. When a Skylark is soaring and singing I can tell whether the bird is ascending or descending without looking at it by the different style of the song, and I have often timed this species when beginning to soar and sing till alighting. I timed one which sang for forty-two minutes. I have also heard several singing for thirty minutes, and many from only five to fifteen minutes.

Some writers maintain that the Skylark does not perch upon a hedge. I have often seen it perched upon a hedge, but it prefers to perch upon clipped or cut hedges, often upon a whin-bush, and sometimes upon young trees, but it seldom perches upon a tree of any great height. I saw one perched upon a tree about fifteen feet high, and one upon a tree about twenty feet high, and I have seen several perched upon the ridging of a house when their young ones have been in a cage hung on the side of a wall for the old birds to rear.

There has been much discussion also about the number of eggs laid to the clutch by the Yellow Bunting. In the last twelve years Mr. Kennedy has seen sixty Yellowhammers' nests, twenty-seven with three eggs, thirty-two with four eggs, and one with five eggs; and my own experience is practically the same.

The first Yellow Buntings' nest I found with five eggs was in 1897, one in 1900, and another in 1903; and Mr. Kennedy found one in 1906, three years between each of the clutches. Since then I have not seen or heard of a Yellowhammer's nest with five.

It was stated that birds laid more eggs to the clutch thirty years ago than they do now, but that theory, like many others, will not hold water. I can go back more than fifty years, and the Skylark and Yellow Bunting laid the same number of eggs to the clutch then as now. In the last twelve years Mr. Kennedy has seen 13,554 eggs altogether. Of course, these include the eggs of many different species.

I have moulted some of the best Linnets, Redpolls, Bullies, and Greenies that have appeared on the show bench, and I can assure fanciers that my birds have had during the moult as much wild food as I could give them, and I have with few exceptions found no trouble in keeping them in vigorous health. As I write I have by me a flight in the middle of which is a large bundle of seeding dock, and the Linnets and Redpolls are busily engaged in extracting the seeds, to their evident pleasure, and, I may add, are coming out a grand colour. A pan containing the ordinary seed mixture is supplied, and to this they also do justice.

Let us take, for instance, the Bullfinch and Greenfinch. It is seldom you find a cage moulted specimen as bright and pure in colour as you do a F.M. one. How do you account for this? After careful consideration, the only conclusion I can come to is that it is caused by the lack of the seeds they would be able to obtain in a wild state, and in a great measure to the lack of open air. Some fanciers may take exception to the latter remark re open air, but after experimenting with birds moulted in their own cages in the open air day and night (of course protected from rain), I have found that my birds thus moulted were much better in colour than those indoors. The only objection to this method is that the birds get rather unsteady, and require a few weeks indoors before you can exhibit them.

Regarding Mr. Chick's statement that many catchers moult Linnets and Goldies as well as any one on hard seed in their hop cages, I cannot entirely agree with him. That many a champion has been found moulted in a catcher's hop cage I will readily admit, but Mr. Chick does not tell us how this is. Any one who has had any experience with catchers generally has a look at the catchers' call birds, for the simple reason that most, if not all, of them, when handling the birds in taking them out of their carrying case, feel a bird that is larger than the ordinary ones, and in nine cases out of ten they give him a cage to himself, and if he is what they term a "pretty" bird they keep him, and, being larger and more vigorous, he comes on to call quicker, and is taken out along with the other call birds and given a little tit bit now and again. Hence the reason that so many good ones are picked up in hop cages.

That some of these birds, owing to size, or some other point, may beat some better cared for specimens, I am not going to argue, but I do say that if a fancier gets hold of one of these birds and moults it the following year he can improve it beyond all recognition. Is this not so, Mr. Chick? Another thing Mr. Chick does not tell us is that, in addition to their ordinary seed, many fanciers colour feed their British birds (Linnets, Redpolls, etc.), yet I very much doubt if they can even by this method turn a Linnet or Poll out a better colour than with wild seeds.

Regarding the Hawfinch, I have never found any trouble caused through giving them green peas. True, I only gave them two or three pods each per day as a treat, along with any other wild food I had by me, in addition to their ordinary seeds, and for several years I successfully exhibited them.

The greatest drawback to a town dweller is to find the time in which to go out to the country and collect the wild seeds. I happen to be one of the fortunate ones that live in the country, and can gather the wild seeds, berries, etc., almost at my door, and at threshing time it has often struck me that if fanciers were to get into touch with a farmer in their district he would be pleased to give them a sack full of wild seeds, sufficient to last them twelve months. Get rid of it he must, or it will increase a hundredfold, and the usual method a careful farmer employs is to burn it.

To be a successful exhibitor you must get colour into your birds, either by artificial feeding or natural feeding. If the former method is used, my experience has been that the birds do not survive as long or look any better than when fed for colour with wild seeds. With colour food in many instances you have trouble to get the birds to eat it, many having to be forced into it, whereas all this difficulty is avoided with wild seeds.

Linnets, as Mr. Chick says, are liable to get red swelling, but I have found they are not so liable to develop this if they are allowed plenty of flight. It is only reasonable to infer that a bird taken from the open, cooped up in a little cage, and put on hard seed (probably being caught at a time when wild food is difficult to get), overfeeds himself, and in such a case inflammation quickly sets in and proves fatal. A few drops of buckthorn in the water twice a week I find very beneficial in these cases if taken in time.

Late Nest of Swallows.

SIR,—On a visit to the schoolmaster at Frowell, Notts., on Oct. 1, I was surprised to see Swallows feeding young in the nest over the bedroom window. I thought you might find this interesting for CAGE BIRDS, as I think this is very late.

An Open Show in Glasgow.

In Lieu of the Scottish National.

SIR,—An open Cage Bird Show will be held in Glasgow on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 next. The show is to be run solely for the Red Cross Society's Funds, and it is hoped that such a deserving object will be a great success. This step has been taken owing to the Scottish National having to postpone their show this year, because of a suitable hall not being available. Fuller particulars in CAGE BIRDS later.

On Taming Canaries.

SIR,—In reply to F. Dean's letter in this week's CAGE BIRDS, I should like to say that, so far as I know, there is no secret in taming Canaries if you begin to feed them before they have their eyes open, or very soon after. I have tamed a good many, and I find the pleasure they give quite repays one for the trouble. Mine are perfectly tame, sharing the breakfast table, and even going into the garden with me. If I would let them they would simply live on my shoulder. They will sit on my work when I am busy sewing, and amuse themselves with the cotton. One I reared I had many years, which shows hand-rearing does not curtail their lives.

The Exhibition Yellow Bunting.

SIR,—In reply to "Sheffield," if he is a member of either of the Sheffield societies I would come over any meeting night and have a debate with him on any exhibition British bird or birds he likes to mention, and I will leave it to the members to give a decision whether I showed animosity to Mrs. Dalton's article without cause. Sheffield can invite all the novices in and around Sheffield to come, and we will see what Sheffield and all the merest novices know about moulting British birds for exhibition on Nature's food. I should be delighted for Sheffield to give a special invitation to all the lady fanciers in Sheffield to come to the meeting, and I will do my best to be polite and to treat them as ladies.

H. J. CHICK.

The Chough in the Isle of Man.

SIR,—Mr. Cox, in his letter to CAGE BIRDS, speaks of the vanishing Chough in England, Wales, and Ireland, and says that the last specimen will soon be exterminated by the bird lovers. Now, I know little about birds in those countries, but I do know something about the Isle of Man and its bird life. Fifty years ago the Chough was almost as plentiful around our rocky sea coast and on our mountains as the Jackdaw is to-day, and as little thought about. The Raven, too, was everywhere to be met with, as was also the Carrion Crow.

At the time of which I write the greater portion of the mountains were common lands, i.e., the public were allowed free pasture. Smallholders or crofters were plentiful, and every person who could afford kept sheep. Live stock did not get the same care and attention as they do to-day. Sheep scab, foot rot, grubs, and other diseases were almost allowed to take their own course—it was a case of the survival of the fittest. The consequences were that everywhere you went on the mountains you would see dead sheep, and they were left to rot where they fell, becoming one seething mass of maggots. These maggots found their way to a piece of ground suitable for them to hibernate and pass the winter. On the mountains one would see patches of grass of a greener shade, denoting that something bad died near about the place during the summer months. Now, sir, these little green patches on the mountains were the Choughs' winter food supply.

Why Not Hybrids at South Kensington?

SIR,—I noticed that there are a number of stuffed Canaries, some old winners, at the South Kensington Museum. There are, of course, also interesting cases of Albinos, but I did not see any Hybrids. Would it not be a valuable addition to the collection if the owners of good specimen Hybrids, who are so unlucky as to lose them, were to forward the bodies to the museum? I have not inquired, but I imagine they would be gladly accepted.

A. H. SCOTT.

Who is Right?

SIR,—A correspondent to "The Times," writing on the ravages of birds, says: "It is a pity, especially in war time, to see this great destruction of human food which a comparatively infinitesimal sum of money and a little organisation by the Board of Agriculture would prevent. I do not think the County Councils can do what is useful without the support of the Board of Agriculture. It is true that County Councils can withdraw protection from some kinds of birds, but the relief which that step affords has been proved to be practically nil."

I fancy that the principal argument of the supporters of bird protection has been that without the protection of the Wild Birds Acts and their extension by local councils, birds would soon become extinct through the greed of bird-catchers. Surely there seems to be some contradiction here?

LORGNETTE.

A Message from the Dardanelles

SIR,—Owing to the numerous letters which my wife is receiving at my home address for birds, etc., I hope you will let me say that I cannot oblige at present, as I am doing my bit in the Dardanelles. I disposed of my live stock last August, except a few for stock, but if I get through this war I hope to start business again and give satisfaction and quality to my customers as I have done in the past. Up to the present I have had a rough time, but keep on smiling and looking forward to having a happy time amongst my feathered friends. I have often thought of the pleasures one derives from his pets whilst I was hid in my dug-out, listening to the Linnets singing amidst the booming of the artillery and the shrapnel. I have found Linnets, Larks, Magpies, and also a snake about a yard long, all killed by stray bullets and shrapnel. Bird life is quite plentiful on the Peninsula, and I am sorry that I cannot have a stroll when we are out of the trenches, so as to have a look into the trees and hedges, but we are not allowed to leave our rest camps on account of shell fire and stray bullets from the firing line. Several chaps in my battalion have managed to secure Blackbirds from the nest, and are rearing them on milk and eggs, and wholemeal biscuits. I saw a French artillery gunner with a bird resembling the Indian Mynah following him about quite tame and docile, but, owing to his lack of English, I could not get to know how he became possessed of it. Flies during the day and insects at night cause us a lot of worry. Swallows are very plentiful, and there are flocks of Carrion Crows and odd Vultures coming over our lines regularly, also Barbary Doves. I hope to send you a full description of the bird life here later on, as we advance further up, when we shall be able to have a ramble round and take notes. I should very much like to know of any other CAGE BIRDS readers who are at present out here. I expect I shall be leaving hospital and going back soon to have another go at the Turks. This makes my third time of being wounded; two bullets in the shoulder, and one in the fingers, and at present I am just getting over an attack of dysentery. If you have any old copies of CAGE BIRDS I shall be very pleased to distribute them. I wish you and CAGE BIRDS every success.

Moulting British Birds on Wild Seeds.

SIR,—I also have read with considerable interest the splendid articles by Mr. Chas. Prior that have appeared in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, during the last few months, and I note Mr. Chick's letter referring thereto. As a fancier of some twenty years' standing, a few words from me on the above subject may be of some interest to young fanciers.

Reading Mr. Chick's letter, one would naturally come to the conclusion that Mr. Prior had advocated moulting British birds entirely on wild seeds, but unless I missed an article, he has never made this statement; in fact, I can hardly realise that a fancier of his experience would do so. What I understand Mr. Prior's articles to convey is that the addition of these wild foods to the diet of British birds is beneficial to them at all times, and especially during the moult. This, of course, is an undoubted fact.

That you can moult some birds a good colour on ordinary mixed seed I do not doubt, yet this does not prove that had these birds been given a plentiful supply of wild seeds their colour would not have been enhanced. I do not doubt Mr. Chick's statement that a bird moulted entirely on wild seed, and then thrown back on ordinary seed, would develop the red lump, and probably the hump as well; indeed, the fancier who had an ordinary stock of British birds, and the time and patience to collect enough wild seeds sufficient to moult his stock on them

The more plentiful, the better for the Chough. He is not a carrion bird, but without carrion he cannot exist.

Live stock keeping in the Isle of Man has undergone a wonderful change in my own time. About forty years ago the Manx Government bought the common lands from the Commissioners of Woods and Forests, and let them to large sheep farmers. After this came the appointment of inspectors to look after all live stock, and each year the laws of the island have become more stringent with regard to reporting and suppressing disease in animals. As far as possible, every animal that dies has to be buried, a serious blow to the Chough. Forty years ago the bird was known as the Keg, and I don't believe that it or its eggs were interfered with by any person. From this date they began to fall off in numbers, and 18 to 20 years ago were almost as scarce as they are to-day.

The Raven, too, has become rare; you may walk all day and hear the croak of one Raven only. As for the Carrion Crow, he has disappeared altogether. Now, sir, in my opinion the bird lovers have nothing to do with the disappearance of the Chough, but the altered conditions of things on the island have been the sole cause. I might state that the summer food of the Chough is ants' eggs, on which he also feeds his young.

Then, again, take the Goldfinch in the Isle of Man. Up to about 15 or 16 years ago the Isle of Man was a paradise for the Goldfinch. No person troubled to cut thistles, docks, or any other weed. In May and June in almost every orchard you would see the Goldfinch housekeeping. In August and September it was a beautiful sight to see them in a field of thistles, flitting from thistle to thistle with their yellow wing-bars glinting in the sun. All that has changed. You might now walk all day long without seeing a Goldfinch. The insular Legislature passed the "Noxious Weeds Act," which compels all land holders to cut down all noxious weeds before the 1st day of August of each year. These few facts are, to my mind, conclusive evidence that the disappearance of the Chough is due to the altered condition of things, and not, as Mr. Cox would have us believe, the "Bird Lovers."

Hamilton's Open Show Deserves Success.

SIR.—The fanciers of Hamilton and district from their show last year handed over to the provost (Provost Moffat) the sum of THIRTY-FOUR POUNDS in aid of the War Relief Funds. The same fanciers have decided to have another open show on Saturday, Dec. 11, when the whole proceeds will go to the funds of the "Red Cross" and "Local Relief." Take a note of the date, brother fanciers, and make a resolution that as far as you are concerned, the effort will not lack for support. Help the brave lads fighting our battle at the Front, and add to the comforts of their dear ones left at home.

WALTER S. WILSON, Hon. Sec.

Herbert J. Chick on Himself—and Some Others.

SIR.—In answer to Mr. Weston, I might tell him I am not given up to telling untruths; what I stated was quite true, as far as I am concerned. I did not ask for the information, one of the members called on me and told me what was said, and I expect his word is as good as Mr. Weston's. I did not ask how much Mr. Weston got for judging Nottingham show, nor did I want to know.

Mr. Weston says "his inclination is to tell Mr. Chick to mind his own business, but I well know that he is by temperament quite unable to do any such thing." The time is quite vivid in my mind when Mr. Weston could not tell the truth, nor could he mind his own business. Perhaps since he has learned to do both. I well remember the Leicester Ideal show managed by Mr. Weston, and he managed it so well that it was the last. I fail to see how a man could judge a show of British Birds, or anything else, for that matter, if he dislikes judging. Is it because he is conscious that he has not got the ability to judge, and comes in for severe criticism, and is handled rather roughly by exhibitors who attend the show that he has judged?

HERBERT J. CHICK.

[We have allowed Mr. Chick a deal more latitude of expression, seeing that his remarks concern a member of our staff, than would otherwise have been the case, and with Mr. Weston's reply, given below, personalities must cease.—EDITOR.]

Dear Sir,—Mr. Chick made an entirely unprovoked attack upon me, and is now obviously very angry because I dared to resent his remarks. He can easily learn whether the insinuations made by himself are based upon truth. He lives in Nottingham, and has only to call upon the secretary of the show in question, Mr. Wilkinson (or possibly it was Mr. Royce). I believe, in fact, that he actually has seen one or other of these gentlemen. Hence, probably, his reason for dropping the above items like hot potatoes, and attacking me on other personal grounds. I do not care one straw for Mr. Chick's opinion of myself or my ability as a judge. I can at any rate say this: That as long as I remain interested in the cage-bird hobby I shall not put myself forward as a heaven-sent genius, neither shall I descend to pulling to pieces other fanciers and slinging mud at other judges. I have always found exhibitors (with perhaps one or two melancholy exceptions) true sportsmen in every sense of the word. And that is all I have to say to Mr. Chick.

G. E. WESTON.

On the Ethics of Colour-feeding.

SIR.—With the advent of another show season may I be allowed to make a few remarks on the question of colour-feeding? I am told that in certain Canary classes colour-feeding is a sine-qua-non if one wants to "be in the money!" As I am not very much interested in Canaries, I don't much mind. The Canary is purely an artificial production, so let the Canary fanciers pile up Pelion on Ossa, and produce any colour they like. But I do feel concerned about our Foreign birds, of which I am the very happy possessor of quite a few. I shall never forget the first time I saw, with the eye of a bird-lover, the common Red-collared Lorikeet, and to a less extent the ever popular and charming Pekin Nightingale or Robin. I felt the Creator had indeed thought out something wonderful. But when in after years I went to a show and saw Lorikeets and Pekin Nightingales quite unlike mine, I could not help asking myself "Is it right?"

I quite agree that both birds would appear to some, if not to many, enhanced, but to my mind that is not the question. To me it seems that we should endeavour to show wild birds as they are, and as their Creator intended them to be, and not as we would have them to be. I can see no broad difference between colour-feeding and touching up with some dye. One is applied internally, and the other externally, for we read of "iron to fix the colour." This is an expression obviously borrowed from dyeing. Apart from everything else, I doubt if it is good for the bird. It must affect the liver and kidneys, if nothing else, and, I fear, to their detriment. Colour-feeding is at best a trick, a dodge, and very artificial at that. I plead for a bird on the show bench as fit and as perfect as human care and skill can make it. But in the name of common sense let us have a bird that is natural, and not touched up by art, remembering the motto at the Haymarket Theatre—"Summa ars est celare artem." (The highest art is to conceal art). Therefore, don't let us change our wild birds, either Foreign or English, into painted avian Jezebels.

SIMPLICISSIMUS.

Intelligence in Birds.

SIR, The enclosed newspaper cutting, headed "Feathered Surgeons," may interest some of your readers, especially when we are having such an instructive discussion, through the correspondence columns, on "Intelligence in Birds."

"Snipe and Woodcock have often been taken with a mass of feathers on one of the legs. This mass, when examined, has always been found to cover a broken bone. The feathers have been carefully and neatly twisted round the part where the limb was fractured in such a way as to prove that they had been put on intentionally as a bandage or splint; and the repairs have been made quite as skillfully as if performed by a qualified surgeon. A well-known naturalist actually watched a woodcock, through his glasses, drag a broken leg to the margin of a stream. There the bird took some clay, and, after working it into a paste with its beak, smeared it round the leg in layer after layer, adding a number of downy feathers which it plucked from its own back and breast. When the operation was finished the bird stood still for more than an hour, no doubt to give the plaster time to set. Wounds on other parts of the body have also been found plastered in the same way."—"Shields Gazette."

C. WATERS.

SIR.—As bearing on the question of intelligence in birds, the following story communicated to the "Spectator" by B. Balfour-Melville may be interesting. The writer says: "There was a time when our suburban garden was much infested by cats—to the great disgust of the birds. When we heard the well-known cry of expostulation from the Blackbirds, we and the dogs used to run to the rescue and chase away the intruders. So often this happened that at last the dogs would, without our intervention, answer the appeal, and rush with tumult from the house to find the enemy when they heard the particular note of alarm. One day my sister was walking in the garden when she heard a Blackbird telling her that danger was near. She followed the call till the bird showed her a cat sound asleep on the roof of an out-house. When this momentarily harmless foe was dislodged the call continued, and the bird led my sister for some distance to a plantation, where another cat was found sound asleep, also among the bushes. This cat being disposed of, the bird was quite content. We were immensely flattered to find that our small friends realised and appealed to our power and willingness to help them. They were absolutely wild birds, not pensioners."

ONE INTERESTED.

SIR.—Mr. Teschemaker is continually making assertions without adding proof or evidence in support. I didn't say that humans never died of grief; in fact, I don't know whether they do or not. What I did say was that if humans were to die of grief they would be written down as of low intelligence or non compos mentis. And now Mr. T. assures us that a human cannot die of grief. Will he give us his authority for the statement, and tell us how the dictum was arrived at?

I looked forward to reading his letter this week, thinking it might contain some substantiation of his wild quotations from Lubbock and Fabre, but the ground he has taken up must be untenable, as he vouchsafes no further reference. A long letter of generalities may look well on paper, and may please the superficial reader, but it doesn't blind the observant follower of a controversy.

Miss Fithie's letter proves birds to be possessed of just that amount of intelligence which everyone admits them to have. Her Parakeet's performance is really only an every-day occurrence with Parrots. Many of them manifest too much intelligence to die of grief. How does a bird find its nest? Because it knows just where it is. A wild bird knows its way about its own little sphere of activity just as well, or even better. Their actions are not haphazard, but Mr. T. wishes to prove that birds can think and reason, and that they know the difference between right and wrong. That we are not going to believe—at least not without better evidence than he adduces.

T. JOHNSON.

On Keeping and Exhibiting British Birds.

By
G. MORTLOCK
(Stoke Newington).

A lecture given before the members of the London and Provincial O.S., on September 16th, 1915.

WHEN I have any birds likely to be useful for show I cage them off in a good-sized cage, one on which I can hang a bath, and here I might say that you will never get a bird in the essential show condition unless it bathes. Some birds do not take very readily to the bath, and in that case I keep their water on without changing for three or four days, and then hang on a bath of nice, fresh water, and it is ten to one they turn in, and after that you will have no trouble. Some birds will not go into the bath, but stand on the side and dip their head in. If you get one like this you must use the spray, for bath they must have.

Flights Best for Moulting.

Now in moulting birds. I have moulted them in the dark, and in the open, in small cages, and in large flights, and of the lot I favour the large flight. If you do not overcrowd them, they come out harder and come into bloom quicker than the bird that is moulted in the dark, as he finishes softer in plumage and has to be hardened off afterwards.

There is another important thing in getting your birds into condition. When you fanciers who live in London get a day in the country when there are plenty of wild seeds about, don't forget to bring as much of it as you can home and thresh it out. If I am out seed gathering I take a sack, and if the seed wants harvesting I lay it in the sun and then thresh it out. You would be surprised how much your birds will repay you for this little extra trouble, but don't overdo the wild seed diet, or when your stock runs out you will find that you will have a job to get your birds back on the stock mixture. Then again, don't be afraid of a bit of green-stuff in season, in the winter sweet apple is very much appreciated by all kinds of British.

I mentioned a short time ago about moulting birds. No doubt some of you have had a bird get stuck in the moult. The reason of this is, I believe, either draught or weakness of the bird's system. I have found it a good practice to give them a dose of Epsom salts, put them away wrapped up in a dark, warm cupboard in the kitchen, or a box in some warm corner; add a bit of saffron to the water, and give them a good spray until you see they are dropping feathers. I have found one of the small cages best for this, as the bird has then no difficulty in finding his seed and water. Before your birds go into moult, see that their nails and beaks are trimmed.

Should they be Colour-fed?

Some fanciers agree with a bit of colour food for British; I don't. I believe it is better to moult British Birds in the open with a good supply of various wild seed and the all essential bath. I remember talking with a gentleman at one of the Crystal Palace shows with reference to colour food for British, and his opinion was that if colour-fed birds were allowed to compete and win, stained birds should also compete and win, the only difference being that one had the colour inside and the other out, and I might here say that this gentleman was the owner of a first prize bird.

Another important point to study is the colour of the show cages. Those of you who are beginners should go to some of the shows and see how some of the winning birds are shown. Take notice of perches, their size, and distance apart. If your bird has been used to a certain jump, see that your show cage is the same, or train your birds to the jump of the show cage, for the bird will show himself much better when he has confidence in his jump. Then again, some birds may require washing for shows, but if they have fairly large cages where they can use their wings and bathe, in my opinion washing is unnecessary. Do not over-show your best birds, because the knocking about on the railway journeys takes a lot out of them.

Different judges prefer different styles of birds. Years ago we used to think the best kind of Goldfinch for showing was the long smoky type, but to-day most judges go for the thicker and larger bird, so much so that in some cases one would think they should be wrong classed. I have in my catching days taken a good few out of the nets, but have never taken any so large as I have seen win; possibly I was not lucky enough to find the spot where the large ones were feeding.

I would like to say that I think the fancier who selects and moults out his birds and shows them successfully is deserving of greater credit than the fancier with the long purse who buys them already fit for show, without the trouble and risk of moulting, but at the same time the latter class of fancier is very useful, for there are plenty of working men who may be lucky enough to get a first-class specimen, and to whom a pound or two through the sale may be very acceptable.

I do not know if any of you have ever tried hand-rearing British. In my early country days I have hand-reared most of our hardbills very successfully, and a good few softbills, but the great difficulty with the softbills was finding them proper food. To-day, with the number of food specialists who pack food for softbills, there is no trouble to keep them for years in the best of health. Hand-reared birds I find take kinder to cage life than young which are hatched out under Canaries. I have had British thus reared just as wild as fresh-caught birds, and in many cases just as hard to steady.

In my opening remarks I said it was more to the novice I wished to speak, and I must say that he has a much greater advantage when starting than I had. To-day we have a paper whereby the beginner can gain knowledge, so that in a very short time he may compete with and whack some of the oldest, but years ago men had to work it out for themselves, and anyone who did know a thing or two kept it to himself. The true fancier is the one who tries to enlighten his fellows.

WITH FEATHERED FRIENDS IN ARGYLESHIRE.

By DAN
MCARTHUR
(Edinburgh).

Contd. from p. 103

NEARLY hidden by furze bushes, and difficult to get a look at—their movements were so rapid—were the Stonechats. The Blue Tit, familiar to all, is seen regularly flitting about the fir trees. He is a cheeky "bustling wee body," and everyone has a soft side for him, I think. The Wren—"the little brown bird" of our youth, and "the Robin's wife" of many an old tale—is also often in evidence. His little upright tail spots him at once. His song is delightful, and, considering he is one of our tiniest native birds, very loud indeed. The colour of the Greenfinch harmonises so well with the foliage that one missed him often. Less cheerful than the Chaffinch, he is clumsier built, and looks like a Mule often. Tramping from the summit of Kerrera to the ruins of Gyle Castle, an Owl was disturbed out of his sleep, and dashed past us, blinking in the sun, from under an old moss-covered peep-hole in the ancient walls.

Hedge Sparrows and Common Linnets Scarce.

The Corn Bunting was seen several times, also his prettier relative, the Yellowhammer. This is a bird that is not always appreciated as he should be, for he is one of our handsomest hardbills. His habits are almost as hurried as his song, and he takes some steadying for show purposes, but a good one is well worth keeping. The Linnet didn't seem to be too plentiful, though, with hay cutting going on nearly everywhere, there was no lack of stubble to attract him. The Hedge Sparrow—the Robin's first cousin—was common enough. He is really a Warbler surely?

Of Song Thrushes there was no lack, and though silent just now their beauty makes the Mavis always welcome. Their sombre friend the Blackbird was also everywhere, and his indignant alarm note was heard regularly as we approached, as with an angry flap of his tail he hurriedly made his exit. The Wagtails were seen now and then among the streams inland. These sprite-like birds show the value of their protective colouring when flitting about the banks. It is delightful to watch their dainty manner of picking their way among the chuckle-stones, and to see how quickly they come and go after their food.

Like the poor, the Robin is always with us, and no bird is more welcome. His song is one of the few that gladden winter-time. There seems to be an unwritten law everywhere—a mixture of affection, sentiment and superstition—for his special protection, and I believe he knows it. I spotted one nest simply made in a corner of a wire-netting fence on the road over the hills to Connell Ferry from Glencruiten. It is perhaps a selfish motive that makes our smallest birds the least afraid of man.

When the mist lifted off the mountains at Glencoe, a Skylark was heard trilling high up in the loneliness. Though he soars high to sing, his rest is always on the ground. The weather never seems to affect him (or the Robin) much, and for nearly ten months of the year he gives us of his best in song. In May and June one hears him at his best I think. A splendid cage bird, he brightens many a home in the crowded tenements of our great cities. The Missel Thrush is not too common. One I came across, perched on the top of an ancient hill-fort of our forefathers—monarch of all he surveyed—was a real beauty and well worthy of the name "the storm cock."

Leaving the main road lined with stately larch (all lichen-streaked), silver birch, copper beech, with fir and pine trees in between, a green path leads you through long dark plantations (with tops so close the sun barely shines) to a wooded hill. The soft note of the "Cushie Doo," as we Scots call it, or Wood Pigeon, is heard. A herd of Highland cattle, with shaggy hides and great curved horns, gaze at you with big, sad eyes. Countless rabbits scurry away at the sound of your footsteps on the dry bracken and the crumpled heather, their little white tails betraying them. It is amusing to see some of the little ones tumble all over the place in their hurry to escape, while others sit upright in curiosity and munch contentedly.

A Strange Combination of Pets.

On the banks of a tumbling little burn an occasional glimpse of the Dipper (or Water Crow) is had. To watch him dart down and dive from some moss-covered stone and listen to his pleasant song, with the Swallows (which are still warbling a little) shooting, skimming and curving overhead wiles a quiet hour away.

The old crofter I met near Loch Feochan had an unusual trio of birds. A Green Plover, a Robin, and a Jackdaw! They had all been injured when he caught them, but like "the broken soldier" in Goldsmith's beautiful poem, "Sweet Auburn," they "remained to stay" and their captivity was a pleasant one. They got a bath in rain-water, and a shovelful of rubbish out of the leaf heap in the garden (full of "wee creepin' beasties") daily to pick over. I might say that the rain here is not the sooty kind one gets in commerce-laden towns.

The birds I did not see were the Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Siskin, Redpoll, Whitethroat, and Ring Ouzel. One must go further North to see the first three, and though the others breed in the shire (to the best of my knowledge) I never came across any.

On my road to the Pass of Glencoe from Ballachulish Pier, I came across several of our representative Game birds, including the Red Grouse (a purely British species by the way), the Capercaillie, in handsome garb (nearly extinct less than half a century ago, but now well distributed), and the common Pheasant. This tramp of eighteen miles was a "gey dreich" one. It rained all the time, and, though it was soft mild rain, a winding path between the huge towering hills was inches deep with rich, red Highland mud of a gluey consistency. The water was running too fiercely to venture to ford the river in order to get into the Inn, and as a good lady near by refused to sell me anything to eat, though her table was covered with newly-baked scones (may her next lot burn!), I had to tramp back to the village again. Even then I had to fill up a form before I could be served.

Seeing a little girl with a big milk picher nearly as big as herself, trying to open a gate and hug some "brown wriggling thing" at the same time, I went over to help her, and found it was a wild rabbit. She had taken it out of a snare, and was going to keep it instead of her "Teddy." Kind-hearted little girl, I fear your Bunny would end up in the stew-pot—in these hard times.

On several of the fresh water lochs there were Moorhens, Coots, Wild Duck and plaintive Plovers to be seen, and an occasional water-rat, who quickly took cover in the reeds and peered cautiously at you, his little nose nervously trembling. The ditches on many of the roads near the towns are being energetically scoured for Spaghnum Moss for use in our military hospitals, by Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, and others who wish to do something for our wounded heroes. One meets few people on these tramps this year. The war has called many away, and the motor-bike has weakened the ranks of the tramp I fear. One ignores the law of trespass altogether in Scotland, of course, and soon becomes efficient in surmounting barbed wire fences, mossy dykes, rippling brooks and sea-swept crags.

August is, of course, a fairly silent month with the birds. That never-failing songster the Robin is still heard, however, and his clear treble greets you everywhere. His migrations later seem to be only local. The Lark and the Wren are also August songsters.

One's nerves get a sudden shock now and then when nearing a cottage door, as three or four dogs are sure to rush out and greet you with staccato barks. They are sure to be collies (of no pedigree save utility) or West Highland Terriers (shaggy, white and bandy-legged), and if your looks pass muster they will eagerly leap all round you with joyous noise. There were miles of grand wild food on the common ground here in the thickest profusion. A regular forest of giant Scotch and milk thistles, tall rats-tails, various hardheads, and seedling grasses of all kinds. I gathered enough to do me till next summer, and my few hardbills are working overtime to get through it. A handful of such foods provides not only natural food for caged birds, and reduces the expenses, but also exercise which is important, as the road to the seed tin is too easy sometimes.

The path has many beauties besides these "utilitarians," and with bluebells, poppies, towering foxgloves flanking you on either side, the glorious scent off the hawthorn hedges, the vivid crimson of the ash and rowan berries, clusters of wild raspberries (just at their best) and clumps of hazel nuts (not yet ready alas!), the drone of myriads of tiny insects, and the hum of the bee, with gorgeously clad butterflies flitting round you and the trill of the Lark high in the sky, one carries away a beautiful memory to brighten dull winter days!

Exhibiting the Yorkshire Canary.

by Mr. G. Snead, on September 11th.

I AM put down on the syllabus for a lecture on "Exhibiting the Yorkshire Canary," but as colour has something to do with showing, I think I will start with colour feeding, and then it will follow on from my lecture of April 10, published in CAGE BIRDS of April 24 and May 8. I left off then where we had got the young birds on hard seed. When the young birds are from eight to ten weeks old I add just a little colour to the egg-food to get them used to it for about a fortnight. Then I get it stronger and stronger till I have it at full strength, and then stop using the egg-food for mixing the colour.

A Colour Food Recipe.

I make a loaf from six eggs, 4oz. of sugar, 4oz. of mutton fat (rendered down), 1oz. of baking powder, and 1½ lbs. flour. Mix eggs, sugar and fat together, then the flour and baking powder, then mix all together and bake in a slow oven. This I grind up as wanted. To make the colour food I take a teaspoonful of colour, tablespoonful of the powdered loaf, tablespoonful of white bread-crumbs, teaspoonful of sugar, tablespoonful of water, mix all together, and let it stand awhile; then I put it through the mill. I give them a teaspoonful of this in the egg glass each day.

The young birds eat this readily without having to take the seed off. I think this food does the birds good, will help them through the moult, and build them up. The moult is a very serious time, it really is a fever, and if you see any of them going at all wrong stop the colour food and give a milk sop. Next day, egg food; next day, just the yolk of egg; and by then they are generally all right, and you can gradually add colour till you get them on to the full strength again. If the old ones do not eat the colour food, take the seed away, and they will eat it; if not the first day they will the next, and then you can put the seed back, and you will rarely have any more trouble.

Do not disturb the birds more than is absolutely necessary during the moult, for many a good bird has been upset and even killed through being disturbed when in the moult. Never move a bird from one side of the room to the other at this time, especially old birds.

To Induce the Moult.

If you have a bird that is not dropping into the moult at the proper time, put it into a cage with one that has dropped, or even in a cage in which one has been moulted, for I personally believe it is infectious. If that does not set it off, get threepennyworth of saffron, scald it, and when cold bottle the infusion, then it will be ready for use when required. Just make the drinking-water a pale yellow with this each day till the moult starts, and then occasionally for a few days longer. Do not run the birds out while they are right in the moult, but wait till the tail is at full length and properly set.

Begin to stop the colour-food a little when you see it has only the head to do, but even when the head seems to be finished you should give colour food occasionally for a week or two longer to make sure. At the time you begin to stop the colour food give a teaspoonful of linseed once a week, this helps to put a gloss on them. To harden up, put a tablespoonful of sulphate of iron in a bucket of water, and fill the drinking glasses up with this. It is one of the finest things known for hardening, not only Canaries, but any kind of bird, and it also helps to set the colour.

When you have got them through the moult the training begins. Do this by degrees, hang the show cage on for a few days, then run them into the show cage and put them straight down on the work-table. Do your work, and then put them back in their stock cages. Next day run them out again, do a bit of your work, then pick them up, put them back on the table again, and gradually handle them more and more till they are quite steady.

To keep them in show condition I give them the egg food the same as when feeding for breeding. The making of this was described in my last lecture. When you send birds to show, see that the show cages are perfectly clean, plenty of seed in cage-bottom, and in the seed trough; the perches clean, and right side up, tickets tied on right end of cage, water-tin in case, and be sure to see that your birds get to the show in good time. I like mine to be there the night before, so that they can be unpacked and get used to the room, and have time in the morning to dip their heads in the water-tin and be dry again before the judge comes to look at them.

When I get them home from the show I leave them in the case all night, take them into the bird-room on the following morning, and add a drop of whisky to the drinking-water—a teaspoonful to a cup of water.

Various questions were asked, amongst them being the following:—Do you give the bath while going through the moult?—I do not give the old birds a bath till they are through, but I give it to the young birds when they are about three-parts through.

Do you believe in milk-sop?—Yes; I think there is nothing finer, especially in the moulting time. A milk sop is good at any time, even when the birds are quite well; it gives them a good clean out, and keeps them in good condition. Milk sop for sick birds I have already dealt with.

Do you mix anything with the colour feed other than as you buy it?—I mix 5lbs. tasteless with ½ lb. hot Natal.

Do you cover cage up during the moult?—No; if the sun gets on them I run a curtain along the front of the cages about a yard from them, and well above them, so that the birds do not get the full force of the sun.

Is colour feed better new or a year old?—I do not think there is any difference, providing you have kept it in an air-tight tin.

After this, the talk became general, and various experiences were expressed by members present, even to Canaries as homers. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Snead for his most able lecture.

A Few Words on Red Mites.

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

AFTER a time the number of mites gradually decreased, and on Aug. 15, after watching for some time and not seeing one on the move, the tube was laid aside, and not examined again until August 18, when it was opened and the strip of paper withdrawn. Three mites were then discovered running about in the tube as full of energy as ever, and the tube was again closed, without even the strip of paper for further observation.

On August 25, the latest observation, these three mites were gaily running races round the tube. The colour of the mites has not varied since hatching, not less than 15 days ago, and is of a whitish-grey. In size they are rather smaller now than when hatched. "And no wonder!" did the reader exclaim. Verily, it is a problem how and upon what they have lived thus far, and still appear to be "going strong," like Johnny Walker.

The experiment with the second tube was intended to throw some light on the value of quassia baths. A small teaspoonful of finely chopped quassia chips was well macerated in about a fluid ounce of water, thus making a solution considerably stronger than any quassia bath would be used in actual practice. The tube was filled with this solution, and after standing for a time the solution was poured out and the tube laid aside to dry without any rinsing or wiping. Thus, when quite dry a microscopical trace of quassia would exist all over the inside of the tube. Five mites of various sizes were introduced, and sealed up on August 13, no strip of paper or anything of any description being enclosed with them.

On the morning of August 14 a number of ova were found to have been deposited. On August 15 the first young were hatched. The period of incubation in this case seems to have been a trifle shorter, and as the weather was becoming rather warmer and more settled it adds some colour to the theory that in hot weather it may be reduced to as little as 24 hours. The adult mites have been left undisturbed, and ova, which hatched out in due course, continued to be deposited for several days, and there are now quite a little crowd of immensely active mites, whose peregrinations are extremely energetic at night, by which they show a fidelity to their nocturnal habits even in these uncongenial surroundings. At the time of writing, August 25, the activity of both old and young is quite unabated, but, as in the other case, the young have slightly decreased in size, and the adults have lost much of their former full blooded and plump appearance.

The London Cage Bird Association, the National British Bird and Mule Club, and the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League stick to their Guns.

LONDON is not to be without a great Cage-bird Show this season, for, notwithstanding the conditions prevailing, and despite the fact that a deficit upon last year's show had to be discharged by the three societies concerned, the joint annual show of the London C.B.A., the British Bird and Mule Club, and the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League will be held as usual at the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, and we are sure that all bird keepers will have seen with great satisfaction the advertisement to that effect which appeared in our last issue.

We need not go into details at present, especially as many of these are given in the letters which we have pleasure in publishing below, but we would in all sincerity point out that it is the individual duty of every owner of an exhibition bird, whether it be a Canary, Hybrid, British Bird, or Foreign bird, to acknowledge the public spirit of the three societies by supporting the venture with every possible entry. All information appertaining to the show will be published in our columns as received, and exhibitors should be on the look out for this from week to week.

SIR,—In spite of the fact that we have been and are passing through serious times, I think it is the duty of fanciers who are not prevented by circumstances from taking active part in warfare, to maintain as far as is possible the status of their hobby; not only because such a recreation helps to relieve the strain, which is more or less incumbent upon all of us, but because livestock of any kind requires something in the shape of a good show to maintain its intrinsic value. Because of this a number of London fanciers have given up considerable time, accompanied naturally by expense, in order that at least one good open exhibition should be held in London during 1915.

That such an exhibition cannot reasonably be expected to produce a monetary profit is more or less a foregone conclusion. On the other hand, if the interest in our hobby is allowed to abate it is quite possible that those who keep or have bred birds will not find them of much value, and those who may depend directly or indirectly upon the hobby commercially, i.e., providers of live stock may suffer more than they have already done. Therefore an arrangement has been made by which the usual International Exhibition of Cage Birds will take place at the Horticultural Hall, Vincent Square, Westminster (see advt.) on Dec. 10th, 11th, and 13th, 1915.

This exhibition will be conducted upon entirely new lines, viz., the Canary section will be managed solely by the London Cage Bird Association; the British and Hybrid sections by the National British Bird and Mule Club; and the Foreign section by the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League. The respective hon. secretaries will each have his section solely under his personal control. Each section will have its own staff of judges, stewards, and helpers, and the hon. sec. will conduct all matters connected therewith. All other matters will be under the control of a show manager. This position has been allotted to me, and I hope, all being well, to bring about such arrangements that no shortcomings are likely to occur, and I feel sure that the body of helpers who are giving their services to make this show a success will so act that there will be no reasonable cause for complaint. If exhibitors and advertisers support the venture as far as lies in their power, I think I can state that they will in no way regret it, because arrangements have been made that in event of illness or any other matter preventing an official from carrying out his duties, someone has been provided to fill the breach. All prizes and sale money will be paid out within fourteen days, and exhibitors who may sell birds, if visiting the show, will be able to claim the purchase money between stated hours.

Whilst expressing my indebtedness to all those who have assisted and are assisting me in the management of this fixture, I crave the attention and interest of all readers of CAGE BIRDS, and I ask them to send the results of their handiwork to this exhibition and to persuade everyone they can to come and see them.

ALLEN SILVER, F.Z.S.

SIR,—With your kind permission may I point out to everyone interested in Foreign birds that their help is required to make a success of the exhibition which is to take place on Dec. 10, 11, and 13. Enthusiasts have made it possible to provide an extensive classification for Foreign birds, and the League which is taking the section entirely under its wing will endeavour to do everything possible to meet the requirements of intending exhibitors. May I ask all Foreign bird keepers, who may not be prevented by other circumstances, to respond by doing one or all of several things, viz.: Show as many birds as they can. Induce fellow bird-keepers to do the same. Visit the show. Special prizes will be welcomed, and will help largely to encourage interest. If these be sent now they can be included in the schedule. This year Lovebirds will have a class to themselves, and Conures, Small-billed Parakeets, and Cockatiels will compete together, this change having been made possible through the kind help of Messrs. Maxwell and Frost. The extensive classification provided gives keepers of all kinds of Foreign birds a chance to win, and the respective merits of the birds competing should this season be accurately judged from an exhibition point of view, because the judges chosen (see Club Report) have had long and successful careers as exhibitors of the respective groups of birds themselves. Two good shows have been held under the League's organisation, and even in these times let us hope that we may get together even a better show.

ALLEN SILVER, F.Z.S.

SIR,—As will be seen from your advertisement columns, the Great Cage Bird Show at the Horticultural Hall will be held on Dec. 10, 11, and 13, and on behalf of the London Cage Bird Association I ask your permission to appeal specially to Canary exhibitors to support their own section as they should, considering the risk the joint societies are undertaking in again venturing on a great open show. Last year a great deficit had to be covered, so it is up to them to take their own share in ensuring that that deficit is negated this year.

It is a particularly anxious time for me personally, as this will be my first open show since my election as sec. of the London C.B.A., the society which is controlling the Canary section, but with the willing help of my esteemed friend and co-worker, Mr. P. Johnston, and other officials of the society, who are much better known to the exhibiting world, every assistance will be given Mr. Allen Silver in his capacity of show manager to assure the success of the venture.

The old maxim "Many can help one," surely applies here, and as there will again be no Palace show this year, Canary exhibitors should grasp the opportunity and help to make the exhibition the greatest bird show ever seen, and at the same time take their share of the generous fruits which will be offered. The patronage of all the Canary specialist societies has been obtained, classification will be liberal, there will be no amalgamation of classes, and no class with more than nine entries will be cancelled.

I also appeal to fanciers all over the country to make the utmost endeavour to pay the show a personal visit. Any old official in the show world will tell you to what an extent a good "gate" contributes towards success, and certainly no more delightful hall could be desired for such an exhibition, or as a place in which old friends and former opponents may foregather, and at the same time form new acquaintances. In conclusion I may state that the gentlemen forming the sub-committee of the joint societies are not the men to brook any delay in bringing the financial affairs of the exhibition to a speedy close, so there is no opening for scruples on that scale.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

NOT YET SINGING (W. Morris).—It is rather early yet for birds to resume singing after the moult. Some birds have, of course, got over the moult and are singing again now, but these are rather in the way of being a little exceptional than otherwise. Between these and the latest beginners, about the end of January, there is a very wide margin, which gives your bird plenty of time to think the matter over. He will resume more quickly if you keep him caged alone in a moderate-sized cage. Place him in a bright cosy position, where the temperature is fairly equable, but see that it is quite free from cold draughts, and do not allow it to hang near or over burning lights in the evenings. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and maw. For the next fortnight give also every second day a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar. Give a morsel of some green salad daily. For two days add to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and after this give instead four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of columba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a week.

A TRIO (A. C. W., Dalston).—(1) When short of accommodation it is quite feasible to keep a group composed of British cocks and Canary hens together in a flight. Neither cocks nor hens will take any harm from the association, and in cases where one is going to try for Mules with the birds the following season, it is rather an advantage, as it accustoms the birds to each other and makes the road to successful mating easier. (2) The cocks will sing more or less when kept under these conditions, but you will not get the best in song out of them. For the latter purpose you must cage them up singly; that is, the cocks. The hens will in any case be all the better for having the run of a large flight through the winter. (3) Yes, mixed cocks in flights will sing more or less, but the same remarks apply here as to No. 2.

C. M.—Replied to by post.

IS IT CAPES? (W. H.).—I should greatly doubt the bird being affected with this scourge of the poultry yard unless there were really some badly affected poultry close at hand, and even in that case a caged bird should not become affected without some careless management. Do not get probing its throat any more. It is far more likely that it is troubled with some bronchial trouble. Treat the bird for this in the way that has been already advised by post, and if there is not a great improvement in about a month, please write again, repeat particulars, and do not forget to say whether there are really any gape-stricken poultry about the vicinity. Meantime, as an additional precaution, boil all water before use, keep food and water vessels scrupulously clean, and do not give any green food gathered from ground to which suspected poultry have access.

SHELLING SEED (U.S.A.).—It is due to digestive trouble. If you could keep these birds in a comfortable temperature for a time it would help them considerably to pull round, but do not over-heat them. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Give separately every second day a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk, drained, and sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, teazle, niger, and maw, and a morsel of banana. Stick a cube of hard common salt in the wires for a time for them to peck at when they like. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day for a week. After this give instead six drops each of tincture of gentian and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight. If not well in a month, write again, and I will advise you further.

BLOOD PERCENTAGE (J.A.W.).—(1) It is quite possible for a bird with 62½ per cent. of cinnamon blood to be quite heavily variegated with cinnamon colour, or even with less than that percentage. Still, in the particular case in which you say I gave 62½ as the percentage of cinnamon blood in my last reply, I think you must have stated the case rather differently this time, as it appears that youngster would have 75 per cent. instead of 62½. Thus, the young from a hen with 50 per cent. of cinnamon blood mated with a 100 per cent. cock would have 75 per cent. cinnamon blood. The young from this mating, and birds with 100 per cent. green blood, would have 62½ per cent. green and 37½ per cent. cinnamon. From the heavy marked cinnamon cock and the clear hen with 100 per cent. green blood you would probably get variegated cinnamons and greens, more or less heavily marked, and in this case all the cinnamon marked birds would be hens. In the other case, the hen with 75 per cent. green blood, mated with a cock with 100 per cent. cinnamon blood, would produce young with 37½ per cent. green and 62½ per cent. cinnamon blood. (2) I know of no book dealing fully with blood percentages, except in a general way. The subject is dealt with in Part XI. of "Our Canaries," by the late Mr. J. North, who is probably the greatest authority we have had on this particular matter, and you could not do better than try to get that number.

INSECTS, AND NOT SINGING (G. L.).—The cause of the bird's condition is undoubtedly the insects, with which it must be badly infested. The first step towards treatment must be to exterminate these pests. Allow it to bathe freely, and add a few drops of quassia essence to the bath three times a week for a week or two. In addition to the staple diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it every second day for two or three weeks, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Four times a week give a spray of some green salad, or sweet fruit when the former is not available. In the drinking water add a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea and ten drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and every third day in the next week.

POWDERY PLUMAGE (A.S.P.).—It seems much more likely that the bird's condition is due to its being run down by the moult than that it is the effect of red mites. At the same time, you would be well advised to keep a sharp eye on the cage to prevent any increase in the pest. Touch the ends of the perches and any spot that seems a likely harbour for them with the fluid already advised twice each week, until some weeks after all trace of the pest has disappeared. For the rest, keep the bird in a fairly warm place, that is, quite free from direct cold draughts, and treat as advised in my reply sent you by post.

NOT MOULTING (H.R.).—First of all give the hen a vapour bath, as you may have seen described in these columns on many occasions. Then remove the bird to a rather warmer room, not necessarily overheating it. Keep a light cover over the cage. Add to the drinking water every second day 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece, and on the alternate days give a piece of bread and milk the size of a large hazel nut dusted with flowers of sulphur and then sprinkled with soft sugar. Continue this treatment for a fortnight, and then if the bird has not commenced to drop feathers, remove it back to the colder room, and stop giving the sulphur, and be careful to see that the bird is not exposed to direct draughts. This latter move should set the moult going in good earnest, and when it has made a good start you may take the bird back to the milder room to finish. In case it has commenced to shed its feathers freely by the end of the fortnight after the first move, allow it to remain until it has shed all its feathers and is tightened up again in plumage.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

A ROOM AS AN AVIARY (A. M. Cook).—Your room could be used very nicely for birds. You had better fasten up the fireplace to prevent accidents, and it would be necessary to ventilate the room in some way; you could partly open the window, of course covering the opening with wire, and if the wind and rain found its way in, you would then ventilate by the doorway. For this purpose you would need a wire door to use on such occasions in place of the usual one. This wire door could be hung by hinges on the door post so as to work in an opposite direction to the proper door, so when one was open the other could be shut. There is no reason why you should not make use of the small window in your sitting room, although I am afraid you would find it rather draughty at times. (2) If the ash tree and shrubs are in tubs or large flower pots, they could easily be moved about, or even taken outside when the room was being cleaned. (3) As regards birds, I would suggest the following: Six hen Canaries, two hen Goldfinches, one hen Bullfinch and one hen Greenfinch, three cock Canaries, two cock Goldfinches, one cock Greenfinch, and one cock Linnet. With this collection you would breed some Canaries, and possibly one or two of the British hens would nest, and there would be just a sporting chance of Hybrids. (4) With all Canary hens and British cock birds you would be almost certain to breed a fair number of Mules, but I think you would find the mixed collection more interesting. (5) You can let them fly all together during the winter; they will not nest too early in the spring, unless you force them with stimulating food. (6) As regards food, when you have decided upon the birds you will keep, send me the list, and I will advise you further.

A BLACK MULE (E. Panther).—You omitted to send your address, which is contrary to our rules; kindly send it on a postcard. In my time I have seen about three specimens of Mules that have been mounted on black, or nearly so, and all these have been Goldfinch-Canary crosses, so that yours is not an isolated case, although somewhat rare. As for the value of it, I do not think you would obtain more than for an ordinary specimen, unless someone particularly wanted it for a collection of rare-feathered Hybrids.

FINCHES AND SOFTBILLS IN AVIARY (T.J.J.).—The following method of feeding would answer your purpose. Stock mixture: Canary three parts, teazle two parts, summer rape one part. Make another mixture of niger, maw, and gold of pleasure, and give a spoonful per bird three days a week, and on other days a spoonful of wild seed mixture. Offer a little hemp daily just for the benefit of the Goldies, and a good handful of sound sunflowers. Do not give them both at the same time, but let them have one in the morning and the other later on in the day. (2) As regards the Nightingale, if he will persist in roosting outside, you should place some good thick evergreens for him; these can be in tubs or pots, and placed in any particular spot he favours. If you are afraid of the cats, I think your safest plan would be to shut him in with the others. It will not make any difference to his singing. Choosing any particular spots to roost in is simply a habit with birds, and even when at liberty they will quickly take to another if disturbed. Nightingales do not confine their singing to the hours of darkness, many of them sing equally as well in the daytime, but unless one is well acquainted with their music it is not noticed among the chorus of bird voices.

QUAIL AND LANDRAILS (Thomas).—I am not quite sure if the above is your name, and we are quite unable to decipher your address; perhaps you will kindly give us another opportunity by sending it to us on a postcard. I am sorry I am unable to assist you in distinguishing the sexes of your Quails in their nest feathers. I would not trouble to separate them during the winter unless they fight, which the cocks will probably do at the turn of the year. A fairly good insecticide food would do for them as a staple diet, together with canary, millet, and hemp, but not too much of the latter, as it is rather fattening. (2) I see no reason why the Quails and Rails should not agree together, although both of them are particularly pugnacious among themselves. Do not let the introduction be too sudden, let them be in a position to see each other for a day or two first. The nest of the Landrail is rather difficult to find, because it is generally placed in the tall meadow grass, and farmers do not care about this being trodden down; but you may obtain a clutch next summer by advertising. I have never heard of them being hatched in the manner you suggest, but I see no reason why a Bantam hen should not manage it. They would require egg-food and live ants' eggs or insects of some kind, anyway for the first few days, and later ordinary soft food and various seeds.

BLACKBIRD WITH BROKEN BEAK (Tamej).—You need not worry over your Blackbird having broken his beak; such accidents frequently occur with birds. The beak and nails of birds, like the claw and hoofs of animals, are constantly growing to replace the portions worn away by daily use. If the bird can feed, you had better not touch it.

LINNET WITH INJURY (Wm. Gibbon).—I am pleased to hear your bird is recovering, and I thank you for your letter; it is so seldom one hears the results of the treatment recommended. The position of the feet is quite what I would expect, as this invariably follows an ordinary fracture, he will no doubt improve on this somewhat as the limb strengthens.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

BUDGERIGARS IN OUTSIDE CAGE (Bird Lover).—While there is certainly a risk in so small a cage, success is to be attained under such conditions. If the cage gets a fair amount of what sun is going, and is in a position where it is sheltered from driving wind and rain, you would have a good prospect of success. But, both for summer and winter use you must arrange some kind of roof extension which will keep the interior dry. If the floor of the cage gets every now and again saturated with rain, it will remain more or less in a state of dampness, and the birds cannot then thrive. Why not fix along the whole front a wood and glass shutter, hinged at the top and fitted with holders to keep it raised with sufficient fall to throw off rain and keep it from driving inside? It could be kept closed during the worst days of winter, and partially so during summer nights, when it would prevent cats scaring the birds at night. Of course, you would close it at dusk each day during the winter. If you do not understand clearly what I mean, send me a stamped addressed envelope, per the Editor, and I will send you a rough diagram. Hope you'll have luck.

YOUNG BUDGERIGARS WEAK (C. H. C.).—It is impossible to give you a useful answer (guessing is not profitable) apart from the post-mortem examination, and I suggest your sending the next body to our Mr. Yates, as per rules. As regards your main question, it is not possible to lay down any general rule, as environment, condition of parent birds, and the forwardness or otherwise of the young, are all governing factors. Fix up other larks at each end of the aviary, say not more than 2ft. from the ground, and stick some twiggy branches into the ground, so arranging them that the young which are unable to fly can easily climb thereto. Supply canary, white millet and white oats, greenfood, grit, and cuttlebone. You had better continue the soaked bread till the second lot of young are feeding for themselves. Prepare it so: Lightly spread one side of the bread with cod liver oil emulsion, very lightly sprinkle with castor sugar (to make it tasty), and then pour over it as much boiling water as the bread will absorb. When cool supply to the birds. For the next two months put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the drinking water every fourth day, and on the intermediate days half a teaspoonful of syrup of phosphates. Keep up a continuous supply of cuttlebone and grit. Of course, food vessels must be placed so that the young which are unable to fly can easily get at them, or a mixed dish should be so placed for them. Then, if the old birds cease feeding they will probably soon help themselves; they are old enough to do so. Apart from the above treatment, leave them to take their own course, I should leave them to bring off the second brood if they will, as if these should also prove weaklings it will settle the point and prove that your pair are no good for stock purposes.

GOULDIAN FINCHES, &c. (Rusticus).—I think our Nutshell "Gouldian Finches," 2d. post free from our manager, would help you. The experience of aviculturists varies considerably with these birds. Some keep them out-of-doors all the year round with impunity; others have a difficulty in getting them to live at all. Locality and character of the sub-soil largely govern the results I opine. It is not so much the temperature as damp raw cold periods that work mischief. I consider that either in a northern or southern damp locality the aviary should be so constructed that the birds are under control (as per my last reply); the shelter shed be sufficiently roomy to house them if necessary for a week or more at a time, and the birds driven in every night between October and April inclusive, and also kept in during periods of driving snow or rain. On genial days they can be let into the flights, say, between 10.30 a.m. and 3.30 p.m. Of course, it is a convenience to have a radiator of some kind in the shelter, but one of the most successful keepers of the Gouldian Finch does not on the average have his radiator going more than half-a-dozen times during the winter period. While they are successful wintered out on dry sandy soils, it is a great advantage to be able to shut them up during damp periods. This species are not easy to establish and there are usually many losses before you succeed in getting a breeding stock. Other contents noted. Note by Editor: A very full list of societies which cater for Canaries and British birds is published in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL for 1915, which our manager would send you post free for seven stamps.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

H. E. Steel.—Death from same cause as the first. The intestines in this case were the principal seat of the lesions. You must not expect the occasion to die out just yet, as you have only recently adopted preventive measures.

Mrs. L. B. Y.—The whole contents of the pharmacopoeia would not have cured your Goldfinch, nor any other bird similarly affected. A new pair of lungs was what it really required. Puerile plenitude, with destruction of more than half the lung substance, was causing the symptoms of illness. It is really wonderful the bird lived so long.

J. Oliver, Liverpool.—Splenic apoplexy was the cause of death.

J. E. Knight.—Bullfinch died of enteritis following disease of the liver, viz., cirrhosis or hardening and enlargement of this organ, having its origin in some irritant poison taken at some time. Food having become sour or fermented would be sufficient to cause the trouble. It is non-contagious, and is not likely to give you any trouble amongst your other birds.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

For a Complete Knowledge of British Birds You Can't Beat

THE BRITISH BIRD MANUAL.

By H. NORMAN.

The Most Thorough and Practical Work on British Birds ever Produced. Published in two parts and complete bound in cloth. Part I. Hardbills. Deals in the fullest manner with Linnets, Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all other varieties of Finches. Part II. Softbills. With Blackbirds, Thrushes, Jackdaws, Larks, and most of the more commonly kept species of insectivorous birds.

This work, lucidly written by a noted specialist, contains fullest directions for Hand-rearing, Keeping, and Exhibiting the most popular of our British Birds. Each bird is dealt with separately, its nesting habits, etc., are fully explained, and these, together with a description of its general characteristics, will enable the novice to easily identify the various species. Each part contains a coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations by the author.

Price complete, bound in cloth 2s., post free 2s. 3d., in parts 1s., post free 1s. 1d.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL.

Real practical information on every variety of Canary illustrated with an art plate of a standard bird is contained in

The author, that well-known expert and judge, gives much useful instruction on AVIARIES, CAGES, BREEDING, MOULTING, EXHIBITING, DISEASES, ETC., and devotes a separate chapter to each individual variety. Get a copy now, it will help you this coming breeding season.

Price 1/2 post free, Cloth bound, 2/2.

Wisely fed birds are healthy birds, and healthy birds do you service. Avoid all errors of diet in feeding them, therefore will help you to feed them properly. It is especially valuable at this season when wild foods are to be had in such abundance, merely for the gathering.

There are many sketches of all the best known wild plants. 1/2 post free.

A HANDY BOOK.

MULE and HYBRID BREEDERS make your 1915 breeding season a record in every way by purchasing a copy of

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. Magnificently Illustrated by that great bird artist, MR. H. NORMAN.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE PRACTICAL AND COMPREHENSIVE WORK WHICH ALL HYBRID BREEDERS REQUIRE.

THE

FOR

POULTRY & PETS.

FAMOUS ZAM-BUK IN A NEW FORM.

BIRD-FANCIERS, Poultry-Farmers and all lovers of the feathered tribes have long felt the want of a reliable "first-aid" with which to treat the wounds and irritating skin affections that are likely to befall their stock and pets any day.

Many people have used the well-known Zam-buk, as sold for human use, in the aviary and poultry-run, with most successful results, but they have often wished that the unique soothing and healing qualities of Zam-Buk could be embodied in a preparation specially devised for use in the Aviary.

They will, therefore, be pleased to learn that their wish is now realised. Zam-Buk has been adapted for Avian and Veterinary purposes, and the success of the proprietors in modifying their formula to suit the delicately textured skins of poultry and cage-birds, etc., without in any way impairing the medicinal qualities of Zam-Buk will be greatly appreciated by all lovers of our feathered friends.

For Cramp in young birds, applications of Veterinary Zam-Buk will be found exceptionally beneficial. In cases of Scaly or

White Comb, Scaly Leg,

Canker, and Baldness, regular dressings with Zam-Buk and clean surroundings will speedily produce a welcome improvement.

Before being bound up, the fractured parts of broken wings and legs should always be dressed with Veterinary Zam-Buk to prevent the bruised and damaged tissues taking bad ways.

It is the stitch in time that saves nine, and all lovers of Cage-birds will find it good policy to keep a tin or two of Veterinary Zam-Buk by them. It is the Fanciers' ever-
handy "Vet."

To distinguish it from the Zam-Buk for human use, Veterinary Zam-Buk is reddish in colour and is sold in RED TINS enclosed in a red-printed package.
The prices are the popular 1/1½ for ordinary size or 2/9 for a large box containing nearly four times the small size. Obtainable of all Chemists and medicine dealers, or direct from The Zam-Buk Laboratories, Leeds.

WHO—IS—THE—BEST.

This should be satisfactorily answered by the unsolicited opinions below, and note, they are ALL October, 1915. They are simply a few given as examples out of a huge bundle received this month of October, 1915, up to present date, 11th. Originals can be seen bearing official post marks.

Blaegarn, nr. Bridgend, Glam.

Dear Sir,—There is at present a lot of talk down here about where to get their birds for breeding from. I am glad to say that most say that you are the best, and I have been recommended to you.—Walter H. Carpenter.

55, St. Edmund's Road, Torquay.
Dear Sir,—Received bird all right. Shall be pleased to give you further orders in the near future.—Yours, etc., Frank Crocker.

Shoreham, St. Michaels, Tenterden.

Oct. 8, 1915.

Sir,—Bird arrived safely. Very satisfactory.—S. Banks.

Following prices and qualities are not to be equalled elsewhere in Great Britain. Norwich Plainheads. Birds that can win, and that, properly matched, are certain to produce winners. To those wanting Hens that later on will cost four times the money (that is, if procurable at all), I advise to have one or more on approval at once. They are not a "scratch lot," bought up here and there by advertisements in mine or other names, under all sorts of pretences, and then offered as so-called strains. These birds can be seen, or particulars given. The prices of above are: Exhibition Cocks, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/-, 70/-, 80/-, 90/-, 100/-, 110/-, 120/-, 130/-, 140/-, 150/-, 160/-, 170/-, 180/-, 190/-, 200/-, 210/-, 220/-, 230/-, 240/-, 250/-, 260/-, 270/-, 280/-, 290/-, 300/-, 310/-, 320/-, 330/-, 340/-, 350/-, 360/-, 370/-, 380/-, 390/-, 400/-, 410/-, 420/-, 430/-, 440/-, 450/-, 460/-, 470/-, 480/-, 490/-, 500/-, 510/-, 520/-, 530/-, 540/-, 550/-, 560/-, 570/-, 580/-, 590/-, 600/-, 610/-, 620/-, 630/-, 640/-, 650/-, 660/-, 670/-, 680/-, 690/-, 700/-, 710/-, 720/-, 730/-, 740/-, 750/-, 760/-, 770/-, 780/-, 790/-, 800/-, 810/-, 820/-, 830/-, 840/-, 850/-, 860/-, 870/-, 880/-, 890/-, 900/-, 910/-, 920/-, 930/-, 940/-, 950/-, 960/-, 970/-, 980/-, 990/-, 1000/-.

Club Reports.

BISHOP AUCKLAND C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 9, in Y.M.C.A., a good number present, J. Button chair. Decided to hold second annual show on Jan. 1, Mr. Growther, Seymour St., Bishop Auckland, to act as show sec. It is to be hoped that no other local societies will clash against the above date.—W. C.

CITY & COUNTY OF PERTH C.B.S.

Meeting Laidlaw's Rooms, Leonard Street, Oct. 4, Mr. D. Brown, President, in the chair. Secretary was instructed to write Mr. A. Garrioch for prize cards for the club show. All specials to be in by next meeting and then drawn. Meeting closed with vote of thanks to the chair.—J. L. Smith, Sec.

PONTYPOOL C.B.S.

Meeting headquarters, Oct. 9, Mr. W. Amphlett chair. Decided definitely to hold a members' show on last Saturday in Nov., the 27th. Mr. J. R. Houghton, of Gloucester, was appointed judge. New members enrolled: Mr. H. Johnson, Mr. O. Simons, Mr. J. Smith, and Mr. W. Lewis, the last named joining after the meeting closed. H. H. Vaughan, Hon. Sec.

BOOTLE C.B.S.

Meeting Oct. 5, Mr. T. Critchley chair, and a good attendance. A competition was held for the hottest colour-fed bird. Mr. T. Plunkett judged, and gave satisfaction. Yell: 1, Hayton, 2, Figue; 3, Knight; vhc, Wilson; he, Worrall. Buff: 1, Wilson; 2, Knight; 3, Huxton; vhc, Elgie; he, Brown; c, Worrall. Next meeting, washing exhibition by well-known fancier.—A. E. Hayton, Sec.

WEST STANLEY C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 2, Mr. G. F. Bates, chair, and a moderate turn up of members. Decided to adopt schedule, as drawn up, and to postpone our annual show till New Year's Day, as we cannot get a suitable Saturday before then. Now if there are any new members wishing to join we will be glad to welcome them, as this is an old C.B.S. and in a good centre. Next meeting, Nov. 6. Annual sub., 4s., and 1s. entrance.—W. Crosswell, Sec.

READING C.B.S.

Meeting, Palmer Hall, Oct. 6, before the largest number of members present this year. Sec. stated that the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League had granted their patronage for forthcoming show, and it was decided to also have two Border classes. Before meeting started Mr. Brooker kindly gave a washing exhibition, which was much appreciated, especially by new members. Three new members were elected: Mrs. Elms, Messrs. Hunt and Runchman.—O. C. Smith, Sec.

FIFE CAGE BIRD LEAGUE.

Meeting held in Dunfermline, Oct. 2, Mr. Campbell, chair. Agreed to grant Cowdenbeath the patronage of Fife C.B.L. Secs. of each society in the League were instructed to hand in all names of members who had paid to League sec. on or before Sat., Oct. 9. Agreed to leave business of League show over till next meeting, in Goshenburgh Hall, Dunbeath, Oct. 30, at 6. Mr. Campbell read a paper on the Border Fancy. A vote of thanks to Mr. Campbell ended the meeting.—J. Seddon, Sec.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Meeting, Oct. 4, Parish Hall, Church Road; about 20 members present, five of whom took part in a washing competition. Two cash prizes were awarded. Mr. Ovenden won 1st and Mr. Taylor 2nd. Mr. Bartlett judged, and afterwards gave a practical demonstration of bird washing, accompanying the same with an explanation of each part of the process. This was much appreciated, especially by new members, some of whom had never seen a bird washed before. Before the close of the meeting every member present promised a special for the annual show, Nov. 6, but we want more.—A. W. Farmer, Hon. Assist. Sec.

PORT GLASGOW AND GOUROCK.

Meeting, Oct. 6, Shepherd's Hall, Cathcart Street. Mr. Dan Molloy presided over an excellent attendance. New member admitted, which brings the total number of new members enrolled up to date to twenty. Decided to hold annual club show, Jan. 5, in Boiler-makers' Hall, Cathcart Street, Greenock. Mr. Geo. Smart was appointed to judge Canaries, and Mr. P. Pettigrew British. Decided to have another cup to be won by the best young Canary bred by a member. From reports to hand every thing points to a splendid show. Admission tickets will be forward by next meeting, Nov. 5, when it is hoped there will be a large attendance. Stewards will be fixed and other show business. Annual subs. now due.—J. McG. Dooley, Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting Oct. 8, Mr. Jones chair. The table shows are proving a good attraction, the second resulting as follows:—Yorks.—Yell: 1, 3, Jones; 2, vhc, Gregory; 4, he, c, Pickering. Buff: 1, 2, c, Pickering; 3, 4, Jones; vhc, he, Gregory. Nor.—1, 2, 3, vhc, Hemmings; 4, he, c, J. and L. Woolhouse. Nov. Yorks.—Yell: 1, 3, 4, Fretwell; 2, vhc, Bagshaw; he, Goodison; c, Sanderson. Buff: 1, 2, he, Bagshaw; 3, c, Fretwell; 4, vhc, Williams. Nor.: 1, c, Sisson; 2, 3, Gears; 4, Curley; vhc, Goodison; he, Gill. Judges, Messrs. Tow and Bingham. Questions cropped up with regard to the amalgamated show. It is hoped that members will support the event. Nominations for officials for 1916 were received. Next meeting washing exhibition. Members please bring birds.—E. Sisson, Assist. Sec.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 7, headquarters, the Duke of York. Mr. J. Gibbons presided over a splendid attendance, an attendance which makes one think that the open show is coming along, at which we hope all fanciers in the Midlands will give their hearty support. All members and fanciers will join in wishing a speedy recovery to our worthy chairman, Mr. P. J. Weaver, as the loss of his experience in show matters will be sadly felt. We have decided to again advertise in CAGE BIRDS. The secretary had the schedules of the coming open show. These will be posted on to every fancier in the Midlands, and should anyone be forgotten he may get one by communicating with the sec. Two new members were elected, and should any other fancier in the district be desirous of becoming a member we should be pleased to give him all information. A grand lot of specials were given for the show, and members not at the meeting may add to the list by noting the sec. Next meeting, Oct. 21, when we hope all members will be present.—J. Gibbons.

ARDWICK AND MANCHESTER.

General meeting, Oct. 5, St. Thomas's Schools, Mr. A. E. Thorpe presided over a fair attendance, to see Mr. Sam Cook give a washing demonstration. He washed two birds, giving a little instruction as he went along, and using for his purpose a soft shaving brush and Pears' soap. He contended that birds improved with a wash, but heavily feathered birds required washing a few days before the show, as it very much altered the shape of a bird, and this would allow time to get the shape back again. Birds should be washed quickly, commencing at the tail and under body, and finishing off at the head. Keep the soap away from the eyes as much as possible; use plenty of water in the rinsing, and see you get all the soap out of the feathers. When wiping the birds he used silk handkerchiefs, and when the birds are dry he puts them in a breeding cage to allow them room for exercise and to preen themselves. If they would not bathe the next day he sprayed them. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Cook for his kindness in coming to Ardwick and giving us such an instructive and interesting time. The amateur washing competition will be postponed to Nov. 2, next meeting; confirmation of special prizes. If any members have got any will they let me know at once.—J. Spencer, Hon. Sec.

NORTH-WEST GLASGOW C.B.C.

Meeting Amalgamated Musicians' Hall, 44, Napier Hall Street, 28 Sept. Mr. Gibb presiding over a good attendance. The winners of the points spl over all the monthly shows are as follows: Champ sec: A. Crawford, 4s points; W. Lonn, 4s. Nov. 7: J. Houghton, 13 points; G. Manon, 16. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to the business of the annual show, Nov. 30, in Maconie Hall, Great Western Road. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought a harmonious meeting to a close.—P. Houghton, Sec.

BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

Meeting, Mr. Ablett's Cafe Room, Sept. 21. Owing to the chairman being away, Mr. Grentex was elected chairman. Letter read from Mr. Morley. Two new members proposed, one being the late sec., A. E. Lloyd. Mr. Lloyd was appointed sec. pro tem., to get things in order for our annual show. Discussion for the evening: our annual draw, and classes for the show. We are open to receive new members on Oct. 19, and this will entitle them to show at our Club for half sub. See would like old members to forward their subs., as our show is very near.—A. E. Lloyd.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

General meeting, Oct. 7, Mr. W. Esple, chair. Mr. R. Glendinning, Anfield Plain, elected a member. Final arrangements made for open show, Oct. 23, in Co-operative Hall, Benwell. Will members please advertise the show as much as possible and try and make it a success; remember it is the duty of every member to do what he can for the benefit not only of the society, but for the interest of the Fancy as a whole, in these troublesome times. Will all members who can possibly do so, be at the Co-operative Hall on the Friday night to give us assistance.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

ALTRINCHAM (Open) C.F.A.

Meeting, Oct. 6, Station Cafe, Mr. T. Harrison, chair. Taking into account that some members are engaged in war work, there was a good number present to hear Mr. J. R. Schofield's (Falls-worth) lecture on "In-breeding," which was extremely interesting, and was much appreciated. He dealt very fully with the Yorks., Norwich, and Lancashire varieties, and it was very evident by the able manner in which he dealt with it, that he has given a great amount of patient study to this subject. His remarks produced a good discussion, at the close he was accorded the best thanks of the meeting. Next meet, Oct. 20, washing demonstration and competition.—C. Bailey, Hon. Sec.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 5, Mr. W. G. Fellows, chair. Recommendations of committee were considered, and it was unanimously decided to be impossible to hold an open show under existing conditions. Resolved to hold a members' show on Dec. 1, Mr. Norman judge. 37 classes arranged, and members present promised a goodly list of specials, which with the six challenge cups, should ensure a good entry. Mr. G. Gamble gave his lecture on the Yorkshire Canary. He told how that 22 years ago his wife suggested his getting a pair of Canaries, and after looking at pictures of the various varieties they decided that the Yorkshire was the best of the bunch, an opinion which he still holds. He had brought a collection of coloured plates to point his remarks, and went well into his subject in a manner that interested and instructed all present. He laid stress on the fact that the Yorkie was a bird of position, and position counted for more than the points laid down in the scale, taking as it does the eye of the judge at once. Birds should be trained to show cages and to being looked at and cages handled, but should not be too tame or will not show themselves to advantage. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer closed the meeting.—G. J. Slade.

BARROW C.B.A.

Meeting, Gardner's Restaurant, Oct. 6, Mr. R. Shackley presiding. There was a good turn out of members, and a very interesting meeting was gone through. It was full of wonderful ideas for the making of the hack-end show a success, and with members such as we have at Barrow, the society will soon be on a very strong foundation. One of the main features of the meeting was the presentation of cups and medals, which was most ably managed by Mr. R. Willison, our oldest member, and one of the keenest it is possible to find. It was quite an inspiration to all who heard him encouraging the members who had been successful in winning the cups and medals. He is a keen lover of his national bird, the Scotch Fancy, with which he has won many honours. He has been in the Fancy for over 50 years, and is as keen to-day as ever. In handing to Mr. Hodgson the challenge cup and gold medal, our worthy old member encouraged him to go on even through disappointments and hard luck, and in a few words Mr. Hodgson replied. In handing to Mr. R. Shackley the Border cup and gold medal, he made reference to the very hard luck he had had for the last three years, being the runner-up on each occasion; he was glad to see he had persevered, and had at last been successful. Our sec. is to give a short address entitled "Why am I a bird-lover?" at the next meeting, Oct. 23, so try and turn up in good number.—D. McFarlane, Hon. Sec.

WIMBLEDON.

Meeting, at headquarters, 6, The Broadway, Mr. W. G. Heath, chair. The attendance was not so good as usual. Sec. read a letter from Mr. G. B. Bailey (a member of the committee), who is now with the Forces in France, saying he did not expect to be able to attend the meetings again for some time, but wished all the members a successful show season. A lengthy letter was also read from the Sec. of Hastings and St. Leonards C.B.S., asking whether Wimbledon would be prepared to join a League of Cage Bird Societies in Sussex, Surrey, Kent, Hants, and London South of the Thames. It was thought that the scheme ought to be considered by a fuller meeting, and the discussion on the letter was therefore deferred till next month. A judging competition for Yorks. and British followed. There were two classes, a silver spoon being provided for best in each. Mr. H. Norman acted as final judge, his awards were: Yorks. (18): 1, Ramsey, rattling good yell, should do well on the show bench in the coming season; 2, 3, Heath; vhc, Whiting; he, c, Mrs. Farley. Brit. (10): 1, Simmonds; 2, Birch; 3, vhc, he, c, Holden. Eleven members took part in the judging competition, the points gained being:—Birch, 6; Farley and Ramsey, 4 each; Whiting, 3; Houghton, 1; the remaining competitors did not score. The principal business of the evening should have been the drafting of the schedule for the annual show, but as the attendance was so small, it was left to the committee to arrange, subject to the approval of the Nov. meeting. A vote of thanks to the judge brought an interesting meeting to a close.—G. Griffiths, Hon. Sec.

Will Mr. S. Abel, the writer of a letter, "Birds in Bedrooms," which appeared in our issue of Sept. 25, please let us have his address? We have a letter for him.

The Sheffield O.S. have arranged to have all birds exhibited at their All-England show Nov. 5 and 6, to be packed and despatched by the Sunday night mail trains, unless it be otherwise wished.

I have again been appointed sec. for the Redhill C.B.S., writes Mr. A. W. Bacon, 14, Charman Rd., Redhill, and ask members to give me their best support. Meeting nights, first Wed. each month, Watkin's Hotel.

Mr. G. Havver, hon. sec., writes that at the show of the Blaydon C.B.S., Nov. 12-13, there will be over 50 classes. Schedules will be ready shortly, and will be forwarded on application to Mr. Havver at 1, Theresa St., Blaydon-on-Tyne.

Mr. Edgar S. Broadbent having joined His Majesty's Forces, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, members of the North Liverpool C.B.S. should please send all communications to the chairman, Mr. H. Holden, 10, St. Mary's Lane, Walton.

October 27-28 are the correct dates for the annual autumn show of the London and Provincial O.S., writes Mr. H. L. Huggins, hon. sec. I have had over thirty applications for schedules from our first advert. in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS.

Our open show will take place on the advertised date, Nov. 20, writes Mr. A. Robertson, sec. Cowdenbeath C.B.S. The proceeds will go to the benefit of Fife's Own, 1/7 Black Watch, who are serving in France, and we hope to have a large entry, as it is for a good cause.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh Ornithological Open Association, writes Mr. R. Lile, sec., it was unanimously agreed that, as there will be no Scottish National in Edinburgh this year, the annual show of the Edinburgh Open Society be held in Buccleuch Parish Hall on Saturday, Jan. 1. We hope this will meet with the approval and support of the Scotch Fancy breeders.

I am removing from Cathcart to Fir Tree House, Currock Rd., Carlisle, and I am reluctantly compelled to reduce my stock of British, and cancel my judging engagements for this season, writes Mr. R. V. Raine. All correspondence to be addressed to my new address after Oct. 30.

Will secretaries of societies and others who are interested in the Green Canary Association please note that our sec., Mr. E. S. Broadbent, has joined His Majesty's Forces, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, chairman. All business relative to the Association should be addressed to Mr. T. R. Jones (assist. sec.), 25, Emerald St., Dingle, Liverpool.

It was an agreeable surprise, write Messrs. Whitney and Son, to find the Greenfinch Mule on the front page of CAGE BIRDS. The picture is a credit to Mr. Norman. Credit is also due to the breeder, Mr. Finnis, of Edinburgh, also to Mr. Brinskill who persuaded us to buy it. We sold the bird shortly after the Welsh National to that well-known fancier, Mr. E. G. Lamb, and hope it will do him some good. We think it was the 2nd best yellow on the show bench last season. When it was not 1st it always was 3rd, a buff splitting Mr. Parlett's crack and ours. Why not societies do as Sale does, and give classes for yellows and buffs separately?

Yorkshire Union of C.B.S.

Will members please note the following additions to the Yorkshire Union Handbook, writes Mr. S. Midgley, hon. sec. "N" denotes novice. Bradford East: G. Large, The Aviaries, 75, Dalton Road. Barrow-in-Furness: N., H. Wilman, 87, Round St., West Bowling, Bradford. Huddersfield: N., C. Bray, Bradford Road. Huddersfield. Laisterdyke: T. Elsegood, 72, Mount Street, Eccleshill, Bradford; Ditto, N., A. Firth, 10, Kitchener Mount, Harehills Lane, Leeds. Spen Valley: N., B. A. Clarke, Church St., Heckmondwike, W. H. Hamlyn, and W. R. Smith, members of Bradford West and Shipley respectively, should have been marked N. in Handbook. Mr. H. J. Chittenden's address is 53, Carlisle Street, Manningham.

OBITUARY.

WELL-KNOWN BIRD-LOVER'S SAD LOSS.

The many friends of that well-known Metropolitan bird-lover, Mr. G. E. Weston, will be grieved to learn of the great sorrow that has befallen him and his wife. Their only daughter, a dear little child of just over four summers, had the misfortune to meet with a terrible accident on Oct. 6th, from the shock of which she survived only a few hours. To add to the distress of the parents, neither were at home at the time of the sad happening. The funeral of the loved little one was marked by a beautiful display of flowers sent by sympathetic friends. Our readers will join us, the proprietor and staff of CAGE BIRDS, in deeply commiserating with Mr. and Mrs. Weston in their heart-breaking bereavement.

I am sorry to inform you of the death of Mrs. J. McLean, beloved wife of Mr. J. McLean, better known amongst the fanciers of this district as "Old John," writes Mr. J. Nicholson, Bathgate. Mrs. McLean, who passed away this morning, Oct. 11, had always been a great help to her husband in other ways than in the fulfillment of her domestic duties. She had the full care of a great stock of valuable specimens, and the result of this season's breeding was crowned with phenomenal success. Mrs. McLean had reared this season nine Goldfinch Mules, four Linnet Mules, four Siskin Mules, three Greenie Mules, four cock Greenie-Bullies, and three Canaries. The sympathy of the members goes out to Mr. McLean and family in their sad bereavement.

Would You Like Half-a-Crown?

WE are going to be generous. It isn't much in these times, but your experiences may help other bird-keepers. We offer four half-crowns, one each for experiences with Canaries, Mules, British Birds, and Foreign Birds. Send us a short account, not to exceed 400 words, of anything interesting. It may be a little story of some happening, some useful and timely advice, some practical instructions as to the keeping of birds, whether in regard to housing or feeding, or anything which may occur to you as likely to be of advantage to your fellow-readers of CAGE BIRDS. The only stipulation is that your effort be accompanied by the coupon which will be found on this page, and two other coupons cut from copies of the same date. The spare copies will be useful for friends who may not yet be readers of CAGE BIRDS. Envelopes should be endorsed "Competition," should be addressed "The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C., and should reach us not later than Tuesday morning, Oct. 19. The Editor's decision as to the best contributions will be final.

The Starlings in the country around Souchez are now imitating exactly the sound of the bullets which are whistling all around them.

Owing to all our large halls being in military occupation, writes Mr. S. Denny Hunt, hon. sec. Kings Lynn F. and F.S., we have decided to hold our annual members' show in three separate sections. The cage bird section will have its show on Nov. 17, at our committee and monthly show-room.

In "British Birds" for October, Mr. H. W. Robison records the recovery near Lancaster in September of this year of a House Martin, which he had marked at midsummer 1912. The bird was retaken within a few hundred yards of the place of its original marking, and was re-marked and liberated.

In the September issue of "Bird Notes," the journal of the Foreign Bird Club, Mr. Shore-Baily records details of his successful breeding of the Red-collared Whistler, and gives some photographs of the nest and eggs. The Marquis of Tavistock continues his story of "My Little Owls." Miss E. F. Chawner contributes an account of the nesting of Jardine's Pigmy Owl. Other articles are: "Visits to Members' Aviaries," by Mr. Wesley T. Page; "Birds of the Jhelum District," by Mr. H. Whistler; and "The Bittern and Spoonbill," by Mr. F. Dawson-Smith.

Don't Forget Oxford.

We will accept entries up to Monday, Oct. 18, writes Mr. C. F. Holliday, hon. sec. Oxford C.B.S., 58, George Street, Oxford.

Send To-day to Liverpool.

Will exhibitors kindly send their entries at once to Liverpool show (see advt.)? This will be helping the printers and our staff, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, hon. secs. Really!

In the course of a paragraph headed "The Future of the Finch Family," a writer in the "Manchester Dispatch" says: "The increase in Linnets from the humble Redpoll to the yellow-barred Goldfinch, has frequently been commented upon."

Charity Show at Deal.

The whole of the profits for the show of the Deal and Walmer F.A., Nov. 3-4 (see Review of Schedule) will go to the purchase of comforts for the wounded in the local military hospitals. Mr. W. H. Thompson, hon. sec., writes that there are several hundred wounded soldiers in the town.

Societies and the War.

Following our policy of asking traders for their views on the effect of the war upon the Bird Fancy, we have requested a number of secretaries of Cage Bird Societies to favour us with certain particulars concerning their own organisations, and how they have fared during the last twelve momentous months. A large number have kindly responded, and we are glad to note how very optimistic in tone their communications are. These letters from secretaries contain much that is of the greatest interest to bird-keepers, and make good and heartening reading. In fact, the bright spirit in which fanciers are looking to the future is evident in almost every one of the letters. We purpose publishing a selection next week, therefore all bird-lovers should make sure of obtaining a copy of the next issue of CAGE BIRDS.

A NEW KIND OF "FIRST-AID."

Novelty for Lovers of Dumb Animals.

Quite an interesting novelty has made its appearance, being a "first-aid" ointment devised especially for the cuts, sprains and skin diseases of our dumb friends. It is really Zam-Buk with all its well-known healing properties in a different or stronger form adapted for horses, dogs, sheep, cattle and pets. Veterinary Zam-Buk, as it is called, is reddish in colour, and is sold in red packets as distinguished from the green packets of the ordinary Zam-Buk. It is a little cheaper than the household preparation, not being affected by the new war tax on patent medicines. It is a healing, soothing, and antiseptic preparation which has evoked unstinted praise from farmers, stock-keepers, fanciers, and lovers of pets. General Botha's famous charger was cured by this of some obstinate sores which veterinary surgeons had treated for some time in vain. Zam-Buk provides for the first time an ideal and handy "vet."

Mr. "George" Ramsden referred to in our last week's Roll of Honour is the younger of Mr. J. W. Ramsden's two sons, not the only son, as stated.

I have had up to the present over eighty applications for schedules from our two adverts, writes Mr. H. L. Huggins, Hon. Sec. London and P.O.S., and if entries only come in as I expect, we ought to have a record show.

The inter-club Challenge Cup shows of the Doncaster C.B.S. and the Hemsworth C.B.S. are arranged for Oct. 30 at Doncaster, judge Mr. W. A. Cowgill, and at Hemsworth Nov. 27, judge Mr. W. Brotherton.

The Metropolitan C.B.A. has some good news for its members, writes Mr. H. F. Bowring, hon. sec., and it is to be hoped that they will all attend the next meeting, Oct. 21, at 8 sharp. The club has been hard hit by the war, but is not dead yet. The annual show will take place for certain on Nov. 27.

The Yorkshire Canary.

ITS SHOW POINTS, AND HOW TO BREED FOR THEM.

In this lecture, given before the members of the Southampton C.B.S., Mr. G. Gamble gives the result of more than twenty years' experience with "The Bird of Length and Position." All the points necessary in a show bird of the highest class are described, and valuable hints are given as to the selection of pairs for breeding exhibition specimens.

MORE than twenty years ago my wife one day suggested that I ought to take up some hobby. This came to me quite as a surprise, and after talking the matter over to some length it was agreed that I could not do better than have a nice pair of Canaries—something to look at you know. Now although I had had many birds as a boy, I had very little idea of the proper treatment of them, or of their relative values, so I thought the best thing to do would be to get a book that would enlighten me.

An Embarrassment of Riches.
I saw advertised a book on Canary Breeding for Amateurs, so I sent for that book, and was surprised to find that there were no less than ten different varieties of Canaries. Here was a stumbling block! Which sort should I get? Luckily the plates depicting the various breeds were here, and after looking them over a number of times the wife and I came to the conclusion that the Yorkshire was by far the best of the lot. That is why I first went in for Yorkshires, and the opinion I formed then is still held by me. There is, to my mind, in the whole of Canarydom no bird to equal in appearance a good Yorkshire.

What are the essential qualities of a typical Yorkshire? Firstly, it is a bird of position, and the standard tells us the attitude must be erect, with fearless carriage, head, neck, back and tail in a straight line, and for a perfect specimen in these particulars 20 points are given.

The head should be small and round, skull narrow, neck moderately long and straight, shoulders narrow, rounded and well filled, back long, straight and well filled, wings long and evenly carried. Breast round and smooth—the body long and gradually tapering to a neat waist, legs long without being stilty, thighs well clothed with short silky feathers; tail short, straight and closely folded. For all these qualities a total of 35 points are given.

Next comes size: Length 6½ in., with corresponding symmetrical proportions, and for this 10 points are allotted. 4th: Feather short, close, tight, compact body feather, and close carriage of wings and tail. Points given, 20. 5th: Condition: Health and cleanliness and sound feather, 10 points. Lastly Colour: Pure body colour, beak and feet clear. Points, 5. Making a total of 100 points.

Study the Scale of Points.

These particulars are the generally recognised scale of points supposed to be used in judging. I say "supposed" because I think I should not be far wrong if I said that the standard is more or less ignored by judges. I firmly believe that in the majority of cases the best bird wins, not on points, but on general appearance as viewed in competition with others. For all that, the breeder must, if he desires to make a success of his hobby, take most careful consideration of every point.

Dealing with position first, I believe it inherits from the Belgian the quality of uprightness, and that is the reason breeders have recourse to the Belgian to try to improve their own strain of bird in respect of position. Personally, I think that, unless a man starts very young, he had better keep to Yorkshires alone, and not try experiments, because it takes three or four years at the least to breed out the undesirable points which are bound to be introduced by the admixture of foreign blood.

The thin necks and the tiny heads are not desired, and even with an established strain these blemishes will sometimes show themselves. Not only that, but rough feathering at the breast is most likely to occur, and as there are now so many breeders of the Yorkshire there is plenty of opportunity of obtaining birds with splendid position should one want a change of blood or an assistant to improve one's birds in this particular. One should take great care to pair only those good in position. There are many birds bred that fail in this quality, so much so as to make them useless for either breeding or exhibition purposes.

The Importance of Position.

I dealt with position first because I venture to think, although not placed first on the standard, it is the point that strikes the onlooker the moment he glances at a row of birds on exhibition, and first impressions stick longest.

With regard to the shape of a Yorkshire the head naturally comes into line first, and although it is designated "small" in the standard, it is not intended to be anything like so small as that on a Belgian or Scots Fancy. It should be small in comparison with a Norwich, still, although the head must not be large, it should at least be large enough to strike one as being proportionate to the size of the body, and a fairly decent-sized head, if of good shape, looks much more striking than one that is the least bit unduly small. The head measurement of one of the finest looking "Ideal" Yorkshires, drawn to standard length, measures exactly one inch from point of beak to back of head, whereas I have seen another ideal in which the head measures ¾ of an inch, and looks like a pea, ridiculously small.

For some years I kept this small head business so much in my mind that I almost made a fool of it, until I began to see my birds' heads were too small, and then I had to look for a big-headed bird or two to make up for my stupidity. Even now, should I breed a bird with a good bold head, so long as it is well rounded off, and the bird otherwise good, I should stick to it for breeding purposes, and expect to do some good with it.

The neck now demands a little attention; many otherwise good birds take a back seat because of the neck being a trifle thin. We do not want a bull neck, but one nicely filled in, so that there appears just the slightest curve from the back of the head to the shoulders. Many of our finest Yorkshires appear a little thin when stretched to their utmost, and this fault is not so much thought of by our Northern fanciers as those down South. Still it is a point that requires consideration in pairing, otherwise one may be liable to breed thin necks and thereby introduce a feature not at all desirable.

Keep in the Middle of the Road.

"The shoulder should be narrow." So says the standard. Here again our Northern friends digress, for they are fond of a bit of shoulder, as it gives a nice wedge shape to the bird. But one must be very careful, otherwise wide instead of narrow shoulders become the order of the day, and if too wide they make the bird look out of proportion and unwieldy. So beware of too much shoulder, keep in the middle track.

"The back must be long, straight and well filled." This speaks for itself. We do not want birds showing a furrow down the middle of the back, though this is sometimes shown, especially in wide-shouldered birds, and is a blemish. The wings must be long and nicely tapering to a point, meeting at the tips, but not overlapping one another, "scissors winged," as it is called. Some of our very best birds at times cross their wings—but it is the ones that habitually do so that are useless for showing, and inadvisable to keep for breeding. The wings of a nicely drawn, that is, a long-bodied bird, should reach down to opposite the perch when the bird stands in an upright position.

The breast ought to be beautifully rounded off, and smooth, showing no sign of a break in the chest, or frill at the neck; this again sometimes appears in our very best birds, but with care it can to a very great extent be bred out. The body should be long, and taper to a neat waist. This is a very noticeable feature of a good bird, and especially so if the bird has the bit of shoulder we spoke of before, and which gives it that wedge shape which so delights the eye of many Yorkshire fanciers.

HOW TO PRODUCE A STUD OF WINNING NORWICH.

IN giving a lecture on breeding and rearing I am travelling over well-worn ground, and the great difficulty is to give something new and interesting at the same time, so I have decided to say a few words on how to produce a stud of winning Norwich Plain-heads, as I consider this popular variety is the best for the novice to take up, for they are hardy, good breeders, and feeders.

My advice is, buy the very best your pocket will allow, for it is far better to have two or three really good stock pairs than twenty pairs of nondescripts. Do not on any account get stock from several different breeders to commence with, but purchase two cocks and four hens—yellow cock and two buff hens, and a buff cock and two yellow hens although, of course, you can, if you choose, start even on a more modest scale than that. My reason for advocating one cock and two hens is not as a saving, but to allow you to obtain a much better specimen than you would be able to do if you used one cock to each hen. Go to a fancier who breeds his own winners, and if he is a genuine fancier, and you are prepared to give from £2 to £3 per pair, he will sell you stock that will breed something worth looking at.

Pedigree, Plus Selection.

Many of the big winners on the show bench to-day have sprung from such pairs as I am now quoting, and on rare occasions from inferior pairs, the parents of which have been really good, and the points which are so much required have been fixed by systematic in-breeding. I am firmly convinced that pedigree breeding, with selection at the same time, is the surest way to breed exhibition specimens.

To illustrate my meaning, I should say you have a fifty per cent. better chance of breeding a winner if you pair two show birds together than if you pair together two stock birds. I know I am on debatable ground now, being aware that good birds have been bred and good studs produced by various methods, but my programme every year is best cock to best hen, and so on, of course, providing I am not getting them too near. I do not hesitate to pair father to daughter, or mother to son, but progeny from these pairs should be kept apart for two generations. By constant inbreeding you can fix bad points, I might say easier than good ones, so you should discard all with bad faults, along with any weakly birds. After the weeding-out process leave yourself only the very best, and by so doing you will be avoiding many pitfalls.

Much ink has been spilt by noted fanciers on how to improve the winning Norwich of to-day. Many columns have been filled in CAGE BIRDS, and the novice should have profited by a study of the different views, many of which have come from leading judges. Personally, I think the winning Norwich have improved by leaps and bounds during the eight years I have been in the Fancy, notably the yellows, which have been considerably in advance of the buffs, a sure sign that breeders are getting wise to the fact that no good purpose can be achieved by excessive double buffing. Neither do I think it is necessary to introduce the Crest-bred for size, or the Cinnamon for colour. If your stock is losing size, introduce into your room the biggest and most typical yellow cock you can procure, letting cost be a secondary consideration. Colour can be kept up by retaining the heavily variegated.

When to Make a Start.

I should advise the beginner to purchase stock in December. Place the hens in a roomy flight till wanted for breeding, and keep the cocks singly in stock cages, giving them special attention as to diet. I use as staple food best white Spanish canary seed, giving about three times a week a mixture of equal parts hemp, maw, gold of pleasure, inga, and summer rape. At the beginning of February I start with egg food, giving this twice a week till March. Then they require it more often, say, every other day.

If your birds have been kept clean, and fed as advised, by the middle of March the cocks will be singing lustily, and the hens will be flapping their wings, a sure sign they are coming into breeding condition. Now is the time when much care should be exercised. Do not be tempted to pair earlier than March 21, and not till a week later if the weather be cold and wet. Many hens are lost every year by fanciers pairing up too early, being unable to survive the cold nights in their weakened condition just previous to laying.

Prior to pairing up, everything in the bird-room should be subjected to a thorough cleansing, cages scrubbed out, racks and all utensils overhauled, floor scrubbed, and all made tidy. It will not then be necessary to disturb the birds when they are nesting. Let me impress it upon you that cleanliness is the most important factor in bird breeding, and to combine this with proper attention, good feeding, and regularity, is the only way to success.

When pairs have been together eight or nine days you must keep an eye on the hens, and if any look thick and are constantly going in and out of the nestpan, seeming to be suffering extreme prostration, take them out and hold them over a jug of hot water, afterwards oiling the vent with olive oil. This procedure will give instant relief.

A Few Words on Red Mites.

THE notable point about it, assuming that a few drops of quassia in a bird's bath are inimical to the pest, is that these mites have bred, and the young mites hatched and lived, or perhaps existed would be a more lived, or perhaps existed would be a more appropriate term, so long in, as it were, an atmosphere permeated with quassia all around and under-foot.

Finally, I will give just one item from my experiments of years ago which will give some idea of the vitality of these creatures. If any reader feels disposed to bestow a biscuit—well, I shall not mind at all, if it is a blank big one. It may find some useful end in these times of universal contributions for the comfort of our poor exiled compatriots in an enemy land. But the facilities for verifying the experiments are so abundant that it inspires confidence in presenting it.

Here is the cold fact. In October twelve mites were placed in a small tin box with a glass top, as nearly air-tight as such a receptacle could be, without the slightest trace of anything in the way of food, shelter, or "mitey" comforts, and kept in a room of normal temperature, without fires. Although there was much cold, damp, and frosty weather, the mites continued quite well and active until the end of the following January. The last two survivors died respectively on February 12 and 13, after 18 weeks and 2 days' confinement in their uncongenial and uncompromising surroundings. These are facts to make one ponder before discarding too dogmatically about exterminating the pest in a jiffy with a pinch of snuff.

Since this article was written the two principal experiments recorded have been completed, and the sequel may be of interest. No. 1 tube, containing only young mites, and no quassia taint.—To continue the record of this tube after August 25, when three mites were still running about quite lively; on August 27 and '29 only one mite was to be found alive; and on August 30 this one was not to be seen.

On August 31 several careful examinations and tapping of tube failed to discover one alive. Similar conditions prevailing on Sept. 1, I concluded the last survivor had died between the examinations on August 29 and 30, twenty-one days after the first young were hatched. During the latter part of the experiment weather was more dry and settled, but still cool for the season, and quite chilly at night.

No. 2 tube, containing both adult and young mites, and tainted with strong quassia solution.—On August 27 four of the adults were found dead—two full grown and two half grown. The remaining half grown adult was fairly active, and all the young appeared to be living, and were quite active. On August 29 the last adult was found dead, and several dead bodies of young were seen. At this time a spell of wet, chilly weather prevailed. All surviving young appeared quite active. On August 31 the number of dead bodies of young had very perceptibly increased, and only two mites were seen alive. On September 1 only one was to be found alive, and that rather sluggish.

On September 2 careful examination and tapping of tube failed to discover one alive. Again on September 3 several careful examinations and agitation and tapping of tube failed to discover one alive, and it was therefore assumed that the last survivor died between the examinations on September 1 and 2, seventeen days after the first young were hatched, and the experiment closed. This experiment being run concurrently with the above, the weather conditions were identical.

It is a noteworthy fact that these young, though they did not increase in size, but rather the reverse, survived, and were most active, more than a fortnight after hatching, without the slightest visible means of subsistence, shelter, or comfort other than the quassia-tainted but clean glass inner surface of the tube in which they were confined.

THE ETHICS OF COLOUR-FEEDING

By ALIEN SILVER, F.Z.S.

THE letter by "Simplicissimus," which appeared in CAGE BIRDS of Oct. 9, was of considerable interest, and I purpose here to discuss certain items relating thereto.

On page 71 of Newton's "Dictionary of Birds" (1896 issue), under the heading of "Canary-Bird," the following paragraph appears which at the present time a Canary expert would consider to be not without its sense of humour:—"Of late the ingenuity of 'the fancy,' which might seem to have exhausted itself in the production of top-knots, feathered feet, and so forth, has brought about a still further change from the original type. It has been found that by a particular treatment, in which the mixing of large quantities of cayenne pepper with the food plays an important part, the ordinary 'canary yellow' may be intensified so as to verge upon a more or less brilliant flame colour. Birds which have successfully undergone this forcing process, and are hence called 'hot Canaries,' command a very high price, for a large proportion die under the discipline, though it is said that they soon become exceedingly fond of the exciting condiment."

Experiments with Pale Pepper.

This may have been partially true in the days when only pungent pepper was used, and upon that point I cannot give any statistics. I do, however, know that when I was a boy, and had a large number of young Canaries, I used to purloin pepper from the pantry, and although I used it sufficiently strong to make the egg-food "chokingly" hot, the birds were in no way harmed by it, while, owing to the fact that it was just pale crust pepper, it hardly affected their colour at all.

The sweet, tasteless pepper used by fanciers at the present day is merely the ground tomato-like fruit of a species of capsicum, and is quite free from any irritant whatsoever. The colouring matter contained in this fruit, as we know, has a distinct influence on the plumage of the subject that partakes of it. Beyond this, one can say nothing, for no proper experimental work on equally constituted batches of birds, fed and unfed, has ever been carried out. It is, however, pretty evident that their bodily health or prolificacy is not in any way damaged.

I am quite with "Simplicissimus" in his desire for natural beauty, and I find to bring this about colour-food is in certain cases quite essential. On the other hand, when one has to judge European Siskins and Greenfinches, overfed, it is not so pleasing a task as the selection of rich-coloured unfed birds.

A common Siskin is not altogether an edifying object when it resembles a Hooded Siskin in tone of colour. Neither is a Greenfinch improved when it exhibits bronzy cinnamon plumage. With many species of normally fed British birds, if they are forward in condition, and have been selected for richness of colouring, it is quite possible at the present day to score over "fed" birds.

Where Colour Feeding is Overdone.

A bird cannot win simply because it is colour-fed, and it should be remembered that if rich colour is an object it is quite necessary for a bird to possess good colour naturally, otherwise the artificial feeding will not have the desired effect. In the selection of birds in a mixed class (i.e., fed and unfed), I believe it is usually the custom among expert judges to sum up their respective merits quite outside the question of them having been fed; a sort of "looking through" the glamour, so to speak. The point, however, which principally attracted my notice in the letter of "Simplicissimus" was that with regard to Pekin Robins or Hill Tits. When these birds are moulted in a cage or aviary they never (at least I have not yet seen one) attain the brilliancy of colouring that one gets in a really fine old wild male.

Very few people compare the colour of their brilliantly coloured caged birds with that of adult specimens, alive or dead, which may have been caught or shot in their full pristine beauty, and although, when moulted, such caged specimens may appear to their owners very beautiful, they are often quite "washed out" as compared with the wild bird.

To illustrate this point, I may mention that the Pekin Robin is a great favourite with me, and that I am seldom without one or more. When batches arrive I usually look out for good-coloured males. Last year I noticed an exceptionally fine bird among a lot. This bird I purchased, and caged up, and a few days after a bird-keeper happened to be in my room and I called his attention to it. He at once remarked: "Yes; but that bird has been colour-fed!" I think he was inclined to doubt my word, when I told him that it had only been in London a short time, and had never been moulted in captivity. He said: "But mine are not like that." To which I replied, "Quite so; but if they are naturally good-coloured males you can make them so."

I moulted that bird on colour-food, and by the time his natural tones were up, his new plumage was a facsimile of his original dress. Had I not fed him he would have resembled my friend's birds which were not naturally coloured, but had departed from their original brilliancy.

Proper and Improper Uses.

I find that Virginian Cardinals, Pekin Robins, Hooded Siskins, Orange-toned Hang-nests, and certain red, brown, and yellow birds can be kept up to natural concert pitch by the judicious use of tasteless pepper. I should be very sorry to inflict discomfort on any bird, and, to put on one side sentiment, I could not afford to risk the lives of costly birds. It may therefore be accepted that the use of colour-food would not be recommended by me if I thought it harmful. If, however, it is used to that extent in which a yellow bird is made orange, or the subject becomes absolutely unrecognizable as a proper representative of its species, then I see no object in employing it.

In respect of its being "unnatural," I cannot see that as a food it is more so than, for instance, a mealworm, a form of live food which is not found in ditches, or bananas which are eaten readily by birds that probably have never met with them before.

The oldest Brambling I ever met with was fed for at least three months out of nine on colour-food, and I have a Virginian Cardinal that has partaken of it every day for at least a year, and I believe he is the only one alive out of the batch which came over. Others I have seen moulted in outdoor aviaries were simply a pale washy flower-pot red in colour, and no more like the real thing than moulted Rosy Starlings are like adult wild birds. I think the only really good-coloured moulted bird of this species which I have seen for years is in Dr. L. Lovell Key's aviary, and that bird is an exception to the rule.

Sweet Pepper in Bread Sauce.

Pepper, however, will not restore the lost beauty of the Linnet, Redpoll, Crossbill, Sepoy Finch, or Rosy Pastor, but has proved effective in the case of a Cock of the Rock. The pink flushes and certain forms of red in birds are of very unstable origin, and it would be a day of joy for all of us if some "subtle philtre" arose in our midst, the use of which would restore the natural beauties of the birds just mentioned. These tasteless peppers, besides possessing nourishment and colouring matter, are also rich in flavour, and if the brand is prepared and imported under cleanly conditions one may use it in bread sauce where flavour is desired without biting pungency. Birds eat naturally, and are quite capable of digesting mustard and charlock, cultivated or wild, and also many other things which we might think to be a source of danger.

Whilst feeling indebted to "Simplicissimus" for bringing up this discussion (and I'm sure he'll believe me when I tell him that I am not fishing for a cheap drink at the expense of vendors of patent colour-feeds), I hope he will forgive me if I say that his plea for a bird as fit and perfect as human care and skill can make it is fully granted, and that I only look upon birds as "painted Jezebels" when they are overdone.

Correspondence.

An Appeal from Abertillery.

SIR,—Will exhibitors kindly note that up to time of writing I have only received a few entries. Anyone who has not a schedule can enter from the advert. in this week's CAGE BIRDS. I will accept entries up till first post on Monday, and I appeal to all fanciers to help us to make this show a success. We paid all prize-money out in four days last year, and we shall do so again this year. Mr. J. H. Roe is judge, and exhibitors can forward their best exhibits, as the stewards are all experienced fanciers.

H. H. MORTIMER, Hon. Sec.

Is the Southern Norwich P.C. to Live or Die?

SIR,—I was wondering if the secretary, or some member of the committee, of the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club, would let the members of the club know, through CAGE BIRDS, if it still exists. Nothing has been heard of the club as to whether it is dead or alive, since it went to rest about a year ago—that is, as far as I can hear. When the club was formed it was to encourage fanciers to breed and exhibit the Norwich Plainhead Canary, and myself and others think this is the time for the club to wake up and help keep the Fancy together. Now, fellow members, what do you all think about it? Is it to be a live club or a dead one?

A MEMBER.

The Autumn Show of the London and Provincial O.S.

SIR,—Will you allow me to give your readers the following particulars of the London and Provincial O.S. 29th annual autumn show, which, as will be seen from your advertisement columns, is being held at Lambeth Public Baths, Kennington Road, S.E., Oct. 27 and 28. The hall is very conveniently situated, being only three minutes walk from Westminster Bridge Road Tube Station, ten minutes' walk from Waterloo Station (L. and S.W.R.), and there is a splendid service of buses and trams from all parts of London passing the doors. Competition is open to all. Prize-money will be paid over to all winners who attend the show on the second day, all others within ten days. Special arrangements have been made with the various railway companies for the speedy delivery of all exhibits, and their quick dispatch for the return journey. The Southern Yorkshire C.C. have granted their patronage in both champion and novice classes, also the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League. All exhibits will be carefully watered and fed, Messrs. James Carter and Co. are supplying the seeds and foods. In spite of the troubled times we are passing through, I feel sure that fanciers throughout the country will support us with their entries, as we are offering them over eighty special prizes. Our judges are all well known and respected gentlemen in the Cage Bird Fancy.

Vibration and Hatching Results.

SIR,—Having been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for many years, and a breeder of Canaries, I have often seen it said that vibration was one of the causes for dead chicks in the shell, but after being out here for the last six months and seeing birds hatch youngsters within twenty yards from batteries throwing projectiles of from 18 pounds to 48 pounds, it seems that the vibration theory is not right. Under one of our guns a fowl hatched 11 chicks out of 14, three being dead in the shell, and another case happened where the hen was about 10 yards from the gun. Of course no one knew they were there till the empty shells showed their appearance. I hope this note from a South Shields reader, No. 1849, Br. J. W. Anderson, 14th New H.B., R.G.A., B.E.F., will enlighten those who are still keeping up the hobby.

SIR,—At our show on Oct. 27-28, we are providing a Gift Class, no entry fee or prize-money, the birds to be sold (cage not included) for the benefit of the local Red Cross Society. Any other profit derived from the show will be added. Can I appeal to the Fancy to support this class? We cannot all be at the Front, but every little help to the needy and wounded is always appreciated. Exhibitors often put in the case an empty cage to fill up. Don't send it empty this time, please. Most of us have generally a spare bird which we would not miss, but the proceeds from its sale will do good to and be welcomed by some of our gallant men.

Will Exhibitors Stand the Sliding Scale?

Clapham's Disastrous Experience.

SIR,—The entries for Clapham show have turned out disastrously. Norwich champion, 4 classes, 17 entries; Yorks., 8, 33; Border, 5, 0; Norwich, novice, 4, 17; Yorks., 8, 36; Borders, 4, 7; Crest or C.B., 1, 3; Selling, 2, 5; Hybrid, 3, 18; British, 10, 36; Foreign, 7, 16; total entries, 188. The Hybrid section is the only one up to the average. Last season we had over 420 entries, with practically the same classification, from 75 exhibitors, against 188 from 46 this season. These figures seem to point out that either there are not sufficient fanciers remaining in London to make a show a success, or they won't stand the "sliding scale" payment. Or there is some other reason I have not found out yet.

T. J. HOSE, Hon. Sec.

Herbert J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Chick, I thank him for his offer to come to Sheffield, and when times are more settled, and we can attend meetings regularly, I may remind him of his offer. This is certainly better than having arguments through the Press, as all parties seem to end up by slugging one another, instead of sticking to the points in question, and this affords no benefit to any of the parties concerned. I for one am pleased to see that Mrs. Dalton's article has borne fruit, as notice Mr. Nicholas' letter re moulting British Birds; and his pertinent questions, if answered by Mr. Chick, may be of advantage to both novice and champion. Although I have no personal feeling in this matter, I still think that Mr. Chick expressed his views on Mrs. Dalton a little stronger than would have met the case.

SHEFFIELD.

SIR,—I quite agree with "Sheffield," and so do others I have spoken to, that Mr. Chick's letter concerning Mrs. Dalton was much too sharp, and not really called for at all. From what he has since written, I think what he wanted was the chance to boost himself up sky high, which he is so fond of doing. I am sure Mrs. Dalton has always done her best to help on the Yellowhammer, and the keeping of other British Birds, but it is attacks like those of Mr. Chick which send good people out of the Fancy. What has Mr. Chick done to help us at Nottingham? I can't remember anyone who has done more to upset fanciers by the way he has always had of crowing about himself and running down others in a loud-voiced and unpleasant way, both at meetings and shows. Many local fanciers will bear me out in this. Sympathy with others seems to be unknown to his nature. Live and let live, and help one another, should be the aims of all who go in for our hobby; we want kindness and fellow feeling, not nothing but criticism and abuse, Mr. Chick. I might ask him what his wonderful birds were doing last season. How many got nothing at all, how many got "coddling cards," and how many prizes? I don't think they did anything to crow about. Was it the rotten judges again? Or was Mr. Chick just helping the shows by entering with his usual "generosity"?

HYSON GREEN.

SIR,—I have not put myself out of the way to see Mr. Royce. Mr. Royce called on me last Sunday evening to see if I would go to their meeting. Practically nothing was said about the letters that had been appearing in CAGE BIRDS. I had written my reply to Mr. Weston before Mr. Royce called. If I answer the latter part of Mr. Weston's letter the Editor would not publish it, because it would be rather strong.

HERBERT J. CHICK.

[This matter is now closed. We think our readers who perused Mr. Chick's last letter will agree that he has nothing to complain about re the publication of "strong" matter. Further, we allowed Mr. Chick to open the attack, and we have given him the opportunity of having the last word.—EDITOR.]

"Tortured Prisoners."

SIR,—I have been interested and at times amused with the correspondence which has arisen over Mr. Cox and the wickedness (?) of bird keeping. Onlookers frequently notice errors which are not so apparent to those in the thick of a heated discussion, there have probably been several already in connection with this present argument which one might ignore but, a bird lover myself, I feel I cannot pass over Mr. Cox's latest "faux pas" accusing "Bird Lovers" of being the cause of the extermination of the Bustard, Great Auk, and shortly the Chough, and so on.

I fancy the Great Auk in particular must have been a very unpleasant cage bird and, besides this, when, and if, it was a common cage bird I fancy Mr. Cox himself was not there to inform the aviculturists of their wickedness! (hence the reason of its extinction we must presume).

Mr. Cox has evidently got a little beyond his depth, and is now confusing the bird-keeper with the egg collector and the taxidermist maniac, the former is a bird lover, the two latter are (to the mind of all true bird lovers) exactly the opposite kind of naturalist.

I quite agree with Mr. Cox on several of his points, and have myself before now bought a bird I did not want, solely because I saw it in a tiny, dirty cage, and looking very miserable, and I wished to give it a happier existence. But such cases are exceptions which will be found in every trade and hobby, and are, therefore, no reason for the making of such sweeping assertions as we have lately been treated to.

I do not know where Mr. Cox lives, but if he cares (of course he won't) to come and see my birds, he will find that I, as one of those Members' Classes.

This section at Plymouth is generally equal to many open shows both in numbers and quality, and although the entries were hardly so numerous as usual there was no falling off in the quality, as is shown by the fact that the Astor Cup, and the reserve for it, were both found in the members' classes. Mr. Hutchings took the former with a grand varieg. Crest, and Mr. Woodley the latter with a marked buff Yorkshire hen that is a real gem. The judges took the same classes as in the open, and the principal winners were as follows: Messrs. Nicholls, Craven, Oliver, Woodley, Mellows, Snell, Luscombe, Stacey (Yorks.) (Mr. Woodley won the Yorks. Cup with the hen before-mentioned), Collings, Spillman, Howard, Poole, Redwood, Brown, Deakin, Ough, Mitch, Sleep, Moffitt (Nor.), Coath, Bale, Rowe, Richards, Hutchings, J. Ryder (Crests), Collins, Brown (Cinn.), Hutchings, Collings, Snell, Craven (Pairs and Pours), Hambley, Collins, Wills (Males), Hambley, Wills, Large, Lugg, Smale, Rowe (British), Wills, Hutchings (Foreign).

LANCASHIRE'S OPENING SHOW.

THE CREAM OF NORTH COUNTRY NORWICH AT PRESTON.

Preston O.S. held its annual show on October 8 and 9 in the Maudland Institute, and we have pleasure in announcing that the first venture in Lancashire was an undoubted success. The room is an admirable one, lofty and spacious, with plenty of top light. There would have been no difficulty in staging from 1,500 to 2,000 birds. The classification was mainly devoted to Norwich, and about 300 birds faced the judge, Mr. A. Wellings.

This was the initial venture of the N.P.C. and the O.N.P.C., and the cream of the Norwich from Lancashire and Yorkshire were on view. Entries were good, but the absence of the half-day excursion rates undoubtedly had some deterrent effect from a gate money view point. We noticed friends from a long distance, however. Mr. Joe Thomas from Halifax, looking as pleased as a maid in a bathshop; Mr. Brown all the way from Bridlington, a ten hours' journey; Mr. Evans from Doncaster, and a gentleman from Carlisle, whose name we missed. We also noticed many old and new friends in Messrs. Sam Cook, A. Hirst, W. Crawshaw, W. Spencer, E. Sutton, W. Whitehead, W. N. Turner, T. Barton, J. Critchley, J. W. Johnson, J. Hisketh, L. Granger, J. Lingard, and many whose faces were familiar, but who are either too modest or too shy to make themselves known.

Mr. Crawshaw had a great day out—quite a picnic, in fact; he won no fewer than five lists—nearly a record we should think at a N.P.C. show. Other exhibitors staged good teams. The judging was pretty consistent, the awards seemed to be well received, but some of the birds which were not fined down will probably be higher up later on. The unfledged classes were not as strong as usual, yellows particularly, but some good birds were in the buffs, and there will probably be some shuffling in this lot later. Hens were great.

Novices didn't turn up in the usual numbers for this district; still, there were a few good classes. The society is the first which has had the courage to put on an unfledged hen class for novices, and they turned up with a nice class of 18. Unfledged hen classes are but of recent origin, but they have come to stay, and societies would perhaps do well to separate the colours; it would pay. Some comments were made about sawdust in the bottom of one exhibitor's cages, and we were asked to mention this by the officials. Perhaps this little hint will have the desired effect.

The officials all worked hard to make the show a success. Mr. Tom Dent, at the head of affairs, always appears to lend stability to anything he touches, and it is a sufficient guarantee of the show's success when we say his face wore even a broader smile than usual. Mr. H. F. Marsh was the show manager, and we think the society couldn't do better. Mr. G. Buck was an efficient secretary, and was ably assisted by the Brothers Leeming, to whose organising abilities much of the success was due. Other helpers were: J. Nickson, F. Isott, W. Bramley, W. H. Cottam, and D. Metcalf. All the distance birds were in the hands of the railway by 5 o'clock, and if any were late in arriving home, no blame can be attached to the society.

NOR., CL. YELL. CK. (12): 1, vhc, Crawshaw, the Houghton cock leading, beauty, lovely head and neck, nice short wings and tail, exquisite feather and type, lovely sheen, easy win; 2, Fielding, larger, massive head, good thick neck, nice type, hotter in col., beaten qual.; 3, Kaberry, neat head, col. and feather, trifle slimmer in body; 4, Cook, lovely head, nice col., grand silky feather, secondaries kept him down; he, Thorpe; c, D. Metcalf. BUFF (15): 1, Crawshaw, monster, great head, neck and shape, grand wings and tail, looks like last year's winning unfledged; 2, Fielding, massive, grand feather and sheen, trifle browy; 3, Sutton, slightly paler, rare feather, good in head, shape, etc., nice deep chest; 4, Thomas, neat in head and neck, nice type and qual.; vhc, Hirst; he, Norman; c, Marsh. VAR. YELL. IDLE.

Notwithstanding great efforts to obtain a full entry Idle had to cancel more than half the classes scheduled for its show in the Co-operative Hall on Oct. 6. One class only had one entry, and several only two. Greens, both Yorkshires and Borders, had to go, and all the Norwich, both Southill Britishers, and several others, including two open Yorkshires. Right in the heart of the Yorkshire breeding district only five out of twelve classes filled to pay prize money, and two had to be cancelled. The fates seemed to fight against the show, for after a month of most beautiful weather the morning opened dull and heavy, with a Scotch mist, and this prevailed, interfering with judging and the attendance, which was moderate. As a result of the show the guarantors (Messrs. Chippendale and House) will drop several pounds each. Poor encouragement for helping the Fancy in the present time of stress.

Yorkshires were a good quality lot and took some sorting. Messrs. Burdick Bros. and L. Dykes shared the leading positions in the open classes with birds of rare type, and in this respect we must say Mr. Mundell's awards were most consistent. The big ones certainly did not have all the plums by any means. We were pleased to see a Midland enthusiast running well in amongst the Yorkshires, Mr. Hymas, of Mansfield, who staged a very nice buff. Mr. Hymas was at the show and claimed at catalogue price Mr. Busfield's lovely little buff hen which won in the biggest class of the show. Novice Yorks. were as a lot even better than the champions. Mr. Baxter's yellow pleased us greatly; it is indeed most typical and of rare quality. Mr. Toulson, who touched the top in two classes had his winning buff claimed at £5 10s., and it is a bird that should do its new owner, Mr. Joe Thomas, a lot of good. This, and Mr. Baxter's second in the same class, were very fine specimens of what a Yorkshire should be. Mr. Busfield staged several birds of high merit, and is a desirable acquisition to the ranks of local breeders. Borders were a very nice collection, but Mr. G. Bennet took nearly all the spoils with a spanking lot of birds. Mr. Shackley led in yellows with a lovely feathered exhibit. Dr. Wilson's splendid team of Hybrids and Britishers easily won for him the cup for most points in the show. His Greenfinch-Chaffinch Hybrid and his Crossbill were the cynosure of all eyes. With such exhibitors as Dr. Wilson, Messrs. Oldham, Fairhurst, Wright and Marelo showing it need not be said that the quality of the British section was of the highest, and several others also staged some gems. The show right through was a quality one. It only wanted more exhibits to be a first ranker. Staged at a nice height, in a large, well-lighted hall, the birds showed to advantage, and all the details of management were well looked after by the Committee, amongst whom Messrs. F. Studd, J. Chippendale, T. Elsegood, L. Pearson, L. C. Lloyd, C. Renton, A. Price, T. Wood, B. Baxter, J. S. Whittaker, W. H. Thomas and J. Pitts, all attended well to the exhibits. Mr. House had the arrangements well in hand, and Mr. Mundell got through his work in good style.

YORKS. YELL. (9): 1, Burdick Bros., long, slim, whippet bird, grand legs, plenty of nerve, neat head and shoulders, capital wings and tail, good col.; 2, 3, Dykes, both a bit finer in qual. of feather, but hardly so fit about the head, 2 has grand wings and tail, but 3 is not tightened up yet, both very stylish and nervy, and possessing plenty of length; 4, Lingard; vhc, Chippendale; he, Wilcock; c, Hymas. BUFF (15): 1, Dykes, very fine head, neck and shoulders, splendid wings and tail, nice silky feather, very nervy and stylish; 2, Hymas, more col., very neat head, capital wings, tail not quite down, will improve; 3, Bartley, fine head and neck, good shoulders, wings and tail, great length, plenty of swagger; 4, Laycock; vhc, Burdick Bros.; he, Woodward; c, Price. HENS, YELL. (13): 1, Dykes, sweet, wing tld., wonderful length and fineness of body, grand head and shoulders, nice level back, rare wings and tail, full of style; 2, Stables, tld. head, hardly so long, nice qual. and col., hardly so long, very nervy and stylish, will improve yet; 3, Wood, very fine long drawn bird, stands well up on leg, beautiful wings and tail, lovely feather, rare style and nerve; 4, Farrar; vhc, Price; he, Burdick Bros.; c, Laycock. BUFF (16): 1, Burdick Bros., very sweet headed cl., lovely neck, shoulders and back, well braced wings and tail, beautiful silky feather, rich col., stands well; 2, Laycock, long stylish tld. wing, hardly so rich in col., capital wings and tail, rare legs, and plenty of nerve; 3, 4, Stables, very smart full of qual., rare nerve and style, grand head and shoulders, neatly carried wings and tail; 4, another little beauty, hardly so long, lovely feather, bit flat in col.; vhc, Dykes; he, Chippendale; c, Shaw. RED CROSS SHOW IN SCOTLAND.

LOCHGELLY MAKES A FINE DISPLAY OF GRAND BIRDS.

Annual show Oct. 9, in Drill Hall, an ideal hall for such a grand display. We were pleased to see such a grand turnout of visitors. Some well-known fanciers from Glasgow in the West to Aberdeen in the North were present, and one and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The entries taken over all were slightly down from previous show, but under the circumstances were very gratifying. The show was held under the Red Cross, and we sincerely hope a large surplus will be available for this grand cause. A large number of the exhibits were heavily in the moult, and the winners to-day will most likely take a peg down when the others are fully moulted, more especially in the Scotch Fancy section. This section was fairly well filled, and contained some grand birds, the runner-up for the best bird in the show being a nice exhibit shown by Mr. Stewart. Borders were exceptionally well filled and contained some very nice and typical birds in forward condition. Yorkshires are fairly strong in Fife, and were well up to the standard of former years both in number and quality. Crests, etc., were fairly well up and contained some grand birds, but not yet showing their best owing to the moult. Norwich were exceptionally strong and contained some typical birds, and in fine bloom. The wing carriage is improving, but yet there is room for more improvement. Nothing looks so bad as a good bird with wings crossed at the ends. Mules and British were fairly well filled and contained a few well-known champions and others qualifying for same. This section appeared the most popular in the show. The officials one and all worked with a will to achieve success. The following are the office bearers: Mr. M. Smith, Vice-Chair; Mr. McLeod, Sec.; Mr. R. Muir, Assist. Sec., and Treas., Mr. W. Grewar; Committee, Messrs. Muir, Smith, Grewar, Kirk, McLeod, McQueen, Strachan, Adamson, Henderson, Raith, Melville, Stewart, Thomson, McGregor, Smellie and Sneddon. The secretaryship is in capable hands, and the Society is fortunate in having one who has fallen into his work so well. Judges were: Messrs. Stenhouse, Lambie, McLennan, Whitton, Barron, Dewar and Watson, who gave entire satisfaction, and grumbling was conspicuous by its absence. Mr. Dewar took even numbers and Mr. Watson odd in British and Mule section.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions or advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for sixpence must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

PERSISTENT DIARRHŒA (Crest).—Stop the bread and milk, and give instead twice a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts crushed arrowroot biscuit, broken groats, and hemp seed. On two other days add to the drinking water, instead of the opium mixture, half a teaspoonful of the ordinary chalk mixture sold by all chemists. When giving this, well shake the drinker several times a day to mix up the chalk, which quickly settles at the bottom. On other days do not fill the drinker quite full, so that it will not be so convenient for the bird to reach the water towards the end of the day, and on most of these days, when you are not giving the chalk mixture, you may add twelve drops of dilute sulphuric acid to the water to make it less attractive to the bird's palate. You may give a half-ripe plantain stalk, or a few seed heads of shepherd's purse twice a week, but do not give succulent green foods. The trouble will pass off at the end of the month.

DEFICIENT TAILS (Border Fancy).—The probability is that the missing feathers have had the quills broken off short close to, or even within, the skin, and in that case no amount of plucking of the remaining feathers will be of any material use to bring forth those that are missing. In fact, plucking those feathers is both useless and inexcusable in any case. Catch the bird and turn over the covert feathers, and carefully examine the real tail—analogueous to the "parson's nose" in poultry, and see if you can see any trace of the quills of the missing feathers. If so, carefully extract them one at a time, taking out four one day, and the remaining three a few days later. The full tail will then be reproduced immediately. If you cannot see any trace of the missing feathers, they are probably broken off within the skin and will not be reproduced until next moulting season, when the quills are thrown off in the natural course. You may try anointing the skin where the quills should be sparingly once a week for six weeks with vaseline. If this does not have the desired effect, there is nothing more to be done but wait patiently until the next moult.

ABOUT ROLLERS (E. G. Miles).—(1) It is not true that Rollers only retain their song two years. The length of time they do so is very much a matter of management and general treatment. There is no reason at all why a Roller should not retain its singing powers just as long as any other variety of Canary kept under the same conditions.

Individuals vary, as is only to be expected, but I have had them, and have known many others, too, which sang finely well on into the teens of years. On the other hand, you will find many that deteriorate in song after the third or fourth season, though they may still remain excellent songsters of an inferior quality of song. (2) The many different names given to Rollers do not represent different varieties. In some cases they indicate strains or types of song, and in many more they are merely meaningless trade terms. If you get a bird free from harsh and distinctly faulty notes, it does not matter a jot what name it is called. (3) Sorry, but it is impossible to give names in this column. There is more than enough strife in this old world already, and we should be adding to it. (4) For ordinary singing Rollers, a staple of a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape is best, and for the rest the usual tit-bits frequently mentioned in these replies. For full detailed particulars get a copy of the Nutshell booklet, No. 10, on "The Roller." (5) To get the best quality of song you must cage birds separately. An outdoor aviary is not suited to high-class singers.

SEEDS AND MITES (Samples).—(1) No. 1 is what is generally known as Cole. It is quite mild, and at a pinch may partly take the place of rape even for good-class Canaries. The chief objection to its sole substitution is that it is apt to cause undue looseness in the bowels. No. 2 is a mixture of bird rapes, the bulk of which seems to be summer rape of fair quality. Neither of these samples is really bad, though they leave much to be desired. Mixed together in equal proportions, they would make a very tolerable substitute for really good summer rape in these times. (2) No, I cannot tell you the lowest temperature at which red mites can exist, as I have made no experiments in that direction, but they most certainly can exist at 30 deg. above zero. Read the conclusion of the notes now appearing on this subject.

YOUNG WASTING (Mel.).—Your feeding, coupled with the "no water" system, which is little short of cruelty, is doubtless the cause of your losses. Treat as follows for the future, after caging the youngsters alone: Give an unlimited supply of good sound canary seed, and place on top of it a pinch of summer rape each morning. Give separately each morning a heaped teaspoonful of egg food, or any substitute you may be using, to each group of four birds. In the afternoon throw out any remnants of soft food, cleanse the vessel, and give the same quantity as in the morning of a mixture of equal parts cracked hemp, maw, and either broken groats or crushed arrowroot biscuit, and add just a sprinkling of niger to the bulk. After a time begin to gradually reduce the quantity of soft food, and occasionally replace it with a similar quantity of scalded rape. By the time the birds are seven weeks old you should have brought down the soft food to a supply every second day, and continue this until the moult. Do not give succulent greenstuff until they are well on the canary seed, but a few half-ripe plantain stalks may be given. Give fresh pure water from the time the young are caged alone each day, and see that the drinkers are kept sweet and clean, and you need fear no danger from this source. You should have no trouble in keeping them under these conditions.

NOT MOULTING (M.E.N.S.).—See reply to "H.R." in last issue, and treat your bird the same for a month or so, i.e., start from the beginning and give it the full course of treatment. If this does not have the desired effect, let Nature take her own course, and do not worry. The bird is not bound to die next spring if it does not moult now, though it may moult then, and be thereby thrown into before it can be used for breeding, which is the only detriment that would be certain to happen.

CAGING ROLLERS SEPARATELY (H. Amon).—(1) It will be to the advantage of the birds to allow them to occupy the large flight together until they are through the moult, and are beginning to show signs of coming into song. Then you should certainly cage the cocks separately. If separated as soon as the moult is finished, the effect will be to induce them to commence singing sooner than they otherwise would. It is not necessary to darken the cages of birds that are not being colour-fed, such as Rollers, except in such exceptional cases as when the birds get stuck in moult, or are moulting badly. The object in such cases is to ensure freedom from draughts, and keep the birds warm and cosy. (2) If you get two self green birds, a buff-green and a yellow-green, to mate together, you will have no difficulty in breeding practically all green youngsters. A self green and a heavily variegated will also give you a large percentage of self greens, but rather more broken greens and heavily variegated young. (3) Within reasonable limits oatmeal is a very wholesome and harmless tit-bit, but any over-indulgence is apt to set up intestinal troubles, as well as making the birds inordinately fat.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

FINCH WITH DIRTY FEET (F. H. Pink).—There is a considerable difference in birds with regard to keeping their feet clean; some clean them daily, others never appear to trouble. The latter birds require watching, and I have found a frequent use of the bath very beneficial. I would also advise you to use sawdust for covering the floor of the cage. Get pine sawdust if you can, cut rather coarse, and mix a little gritty sand with it. This prevents it being knocked out of the cage by the bird if he is a bit untidy.

BREEDING MULES FROM BRITISH HENS (W. G. S.).—Mules have been bred from Canary cocks and British hens, and the young have not shown any material difference from those bred in the usual manner, and I fear you will be disappointed if you anticipate getting clears. It will be very interesting to breed them the way you suggest, but your chances of success are not so rosy as they would be if you used Canary hens. If you have your choice of cock birds for the purpose, I would advise you to use a Cinnamon or one with plenty of Cinnamon blood, as there would then be a possibility of getting a mule or two of that colour, which would make them much more valuable. As regards your selection of birds, I would suggest that you have a Bullfinch hen in place of the Greenfinch or Linnet, as young bred from this cross would be quite choice Hybrids.

FINCH NOT MOULTING (G. P. O.).—I am sorry you do not mention how you are treating your birds, this information would have assisted me in advising you; anyway, I can only presume that your feeding is not what it should be, so the first thing you had better do is to give him an aperient of salts; dissolve as much as will cover a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of his drinking water, for one day, and then mix a day and repeat. Feed as follows: Canary three parts, teal 2 parts, rape and linseed one part each, also give a little cracked hemp three times a week. If you can procure a packet of genuine wild seed mixture, he could have a spoonful on the days you are not giving the hemp. Hang his cage in a comfortable temperature, and cover it over with a thin cloth, this will probably cause him to drop a few feathers very shortly. I would advise you to send for our booklet on the Linnet, also "How to Mould British Birds," post free, 2d. each, from our publisher, or 2d. from your local newsagent.

FINCHES FOR AN AVIARY (Ortigue).—Your aviary would accommodate about twenty birds, if you did not intend to breed with them, but I fancy you would have more pleasure from a smaller number. If you had pairs of the following, they would make quite an interesting collection: Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Siskin, Linnet, Redpoll, Twite, Yellow Bunting, and Cirl Bunting. From these you would get a good deal of birdy music, and several of them are quite gay in plumage. Your stock seed mixture would consist of canary 2 parts, teal 2 parts, rape 1 part. It would also be as well to have an extra pot of canary seed in a corner of the aviary for the benefit of the Buntings, as these eat scarcely anything else. In addition to the stock mixture, you should supply a little hemp daily, also sunflower, and a spoonful per bird of good wild seed mixture, or, failing this, make the following: equal parts of niger, maw, gold of pleasure, thistle, and daudelon. You would, of course, give any wild seeds you could collect when in season.

HENS NOT NESTING (Hullfinch).—As a rule Bullfinch hens nest and lay pretty freely, but of course exceptions occur, and you appear to have been unfortunate. The fact of your having the larger hen so late in the season might account for her bad behaviour. I should therefore feel inclined to give her another chance, and to procure one fresh one; your doing so might save another disappointing season; it is time wasted when one goes through all the year with nothing done, although this frequently happens with Hybrid breeders; the cult is a fascinating lottery, with no end of blanks. (2) I am afraid you cannot rely upon getting Foreign Finches this season. An advertisement in our "Wanted" column might help you.

SKYLARK SCREAMING (Sligo).—I am afraid I cannot assist you; try keeping his cage in a darkened corner, or partly shade it with a thin cloth. Perhaps he is an unusually excitable bird.

TROUBLE IN THE AVIARY (Troubled).—I am sorry to hear of your losses. I should be inclined to attribute your trouble to the presence of the Bantams. I am always rather chary about advising aviaries to be erected anywhere near poultry. Slight illnesses which have no effect upon them might be quite sufficient to clear off a collection of birds. I would advise you to thoroughly fumigate the building. Place in the centre a few hot coals in an old pail and put on them a good handful of lump sulphur, cover up the open parts of the flight with cloth or stout paper, so as to retain the fumes inside. Leave it like this for a day or two; remove all the perches and burn them, and replace the floor, if an earth one, with quite fresh material. After this I think you could safely re-stock. As regards your losses, I have found that eye trouble in birds is easily spread; the habit of rubbing the face on the perch is no doubt the reason. Among my own birds I isolate such cases at once, no matter how slight the ailment.

TREATMENT OF BULLFINCHES (L. D.).—Until I received your letter I was under the impression that our Nutshell booklet on the Bullfinch was an almost ideal publication on that bird. Your complaint is that it gives too much detail respecting the food. I will try to put the matter a little more simply. The food can be divided into two parts, one hard dry seed that can be procured at the seedsmen, the other wild seeds and green food, which one can collect. To keep a bird in health he should have a combination of the two, the wild food fairly liberally during the summer and autumn months. Many of the seeds collected in this manner are soft and easily digested. This method of feeding should never be entirely discontinued, even during the winter, when there is none to collect, the birds should be offered fruit and occasionally soaked seeds. As regards the exact quantities of each, I fear I cannot assist you, as so much depends upon how individual birds thrive in confinement, some keep fat and healthy on food that is scarcely more than packing, while others need a fair amount of fat forming seeds. If your bird is doing well on your present treatment by all means continue it. I presume you are giving him the stock mixture advised. Kindly read once more the chapter on "Food when adult," the first part dealing with seeds is for general treatment, then follows a description of green foods, wild seeds and berries, which are really additions to his stock of seeds; you cannot do wrong if you give these when in season. For instance, just now privet berries are at their best; offer a spray daily. They can be gathered in bunches and kept for some time by placing the stalks in damp sand, or out in the garden, in a situation protected from birds. I cannot follow you as regards the bath, for a bird to bathe is as necessary to health as it is for a human being. Let them have it daily, excepting on very wet damp days; give it early in the morning, so that both bird and cage are quite dry at roosting time.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

BUDGERIGARS (D.I.P.).—(1) Damp is bad for all birds, but unless this is very excessive heat should not be necessary. If the greenhouse is heated and a small grating be inserted in the back wall, that should suffice. The main thing is, if the atmosphere of the aviary is not too damp the Budgerigars will be better without artificial heat than with it, though slightly warmed air from the greenhouse through a grating would be beneficial. (2) The custom generally is to only take the husks down annually for cleansing and to have hanging in the aviary at least twice as many husks as there are pairs of birds; then, if a hen fancies a fresh husk there is one at her disposal. It also largely prevents quarrelling over special husks. (3) It is always risky having an odd adult bird in the aviary. It all depends on the size of your aviary which you do. If you have plenty of room procure another hen; if not, remove the bachelor cock. I should put a couple of barrels in as a nest receptacle.

BLUE BUDGERIGARS (Interested).—These have always been very scarce and I very much doubt your being able to procure any. An advert. inviting offers is your only opportunity under present conditions. If this fails, advertise in the Continental Poultry press for them when the war is over, or instruct some Continental dealer to try and obtain a pair for you. They are not as robust as the green and yellow varieties, and the general experience appears to be that they must be bred in a subdued light, and not be subjected to strong sunlight at all. They have always been very costly, and I expect in these war times, if you get any replies, will be even more so.

BRAZILIAN GREEN PARROT AILING (H. D. J.).—Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Give boiled maize daily while the trouble lasts, and allow, while the maize is hot, five drops of tasteless castor oil to soak into it. Give this till the bowels have been properly cleansed. When this has occurred put ten drops, daily, of cod-liver oil emulsion on the maize similarly. The bowels should be kept moving freely, but no undue looseness must be allowed at any time; this can be secured by giving a dose of castor oil whenever necessary. Give a little honey and borax daily till it swallows freely again, either from the end of a stick, or spread lightly on a piece of bread, biscuit, or plain cake. Only a clean stick should be put into the box of mixture. Confine its dietary to seed mixture, boiled maize, and such extras as ripe fruit, nuts, pieces of stale bread, biscuit, or plain cake. Get a packet of Parrot grit and give it a pinch daily. A thickish piece of a branch will supply healthy maulable exercise. Do not under any circumstances give any more tea; if it hankers after it colour a little warm sweetened water with chemical food, and this will meet its need without having any harmful effects. Treat so for a couple of weeks, and then report progress, but if there should be further adverse symptoms, write again at once.

BUDGERIGAR LAME (Mrs. Cole).—It is impossible to give a definite cause. The swelling may be a mere sprain, dislocation, or an abscess in the process of formation, or there may be a splinter of some kind run into the foot, or even a piece of cotton got tightly wound round the foot. With the information at my command I can only say foment the swelling with hot water, using the water as hot as you can bear your hand in without real discomfort; dry with soft cloth, and paint with tincture of iodine so long as the skin is unbroken. If it should develop into an abscess, as soon as this appears fully ripe, lance it with a sharp needle and exude the pus by gentle pressure. (Means with hot water and anoint with antiseptic ointment. Whenever the voidings appear at all stiff, give two drops of tasteless castor oil direct to the beak. The bowels should move freely without undue looseness. I should put a little chemical food in the drinking water for a time, and if you can induce the birds to eat it, lightly spread either a piece of bread, biscuit or plain cake (either will do) with cod liver oil emulsion. Supply this daily. Shall be pleased to hear how the bird progresses. If unfavourable symptoms should develop, write again at once.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

H. C. Tanner.—The bird is an immature hen Stonechat.

J. Leach.—Aspinall's or any other good enamel may be used. Such enamels are quite harmless to the birds, always providing they are allowed to set hard before the birds are introduced. You will find useful hints on the subject in the article entitled "My Outdoor Bird-Room," in our issue of Sept. 25.

G. T.—There would be no danger in using the mahogany stain mentioned. Please see also answer to J. Leach.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. SMALL AND LARGE IN BRITISH FINCHES.

The Lesser Redpoll is one of the smallest of our British Finches, while the formidable looking Hawfinch is the largest. The Redpoll in our picture won fourth prize at the Horticultural Hall for Mr. J. J. Rees, Swansea. The Hawfinch is the property of Mr. J. B. Caunt, of Beeston, Notts. It won first prize and special at Halifax last year, and third prize at the Horticultural Hall.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

THINK THIS OVER

So confident am I in the superiority of my goods over any others on the market, that I invite all intending purchasers to have anything on approval, and if they find it is not exactly as described or in any way not satisfactory they are at liberty to smash it up or destroy it in any way they like, and I will refund every penny of their money without question or comment. Clap nets, made from 60s 3-ply superfine flannel netting, 7in. mesh, 3 yards long, 5ft. deep, 4ft. fly, 5/- pair; ditto, 4 yards 6/-, 5 yards 7/-, 6 yards 8/-, 7 yards 9/-, 8 yards 10/-, 9 yards 11/-, 10 yards 12/- per pair. All clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, each net guaranteed to be exact measurement as above, and all are fitted complete with all pegs, poles and pull lines, ready for immediate setting. Loose thread netting knitted specially for bird catching, as used in above nets, 7ft. deep 33d. yard, ditto, 9ft. deep, 41d. yard, ditto, 12ft. deep, 51d. yard, post free. Real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun without snarl, and strong as boat lines, 68 yards long, 1/9 post free. Genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed to hold any bird that flies, stands all weathers, and specially good in fog or drizzle, 7d. 1lb., 1/- 1 1/2 lb., sample 4d., all post free. Bird brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d., post free. Plint pegs and lines, 6d. each, post free. Double flint pegs, 9d. each, post free. Penny tin drinkers, 9d. dozen, three dozen 2/-, 5/- gross. Zinc drinkers, same size, 1/- dozen, three dozen 2/6, 7/- gross. Kindly note, all the leading professional birdcatchers purchase their appliances from me, so follow their lead and patronise the man who really knows what is required for successful bird-catching. W. GORE, COOCH STREET, BIRMINGHAM. (470)

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing to do so, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

Zam-Buk VETERINARY

THE BEST FIRST-AID IN THE AVIARY.

SPLENDID for Cramp, Rheumatism, Scale,
Baldness, etc.

THIS new preparation, having already been put through the several tests, is found to fill admirably the requirements of an ideal first-aid for use in the aviary.

Zam-Buk in its veterinary form is still free from animal fats, and, as before, is essentially vegetable in origin.

All Fanciers will find it good policy to keep a supply of Veterinary Zam-Buk handy.

Birds, like human beings, suffer from bronchial trouble. This can be cured by melting a little Veterinary Zam-Buk, diluting it with olive oil, and cleansing the bird's wind-pipe with the aid of a small feather dipped in the mixture.

"Veterinary Zam-Buk" is sold in a RED package to readily distinguish it from the original Household Zam-Buk which is put up in a Green package. Prices, 1/1½ or 2/9, from THE ZAM-BUK LABORATORIES, LEEDS.

FRED ALLEN, BRITISH BIRD CHAMPION

LARGEST STOCK IN THE NORTH.

Gentlemen, if you want good birds, I earnestly ask you to give me a trial; it costs you nothing, as I send all my birds out on seven days' approval for cash or deposit with Editor. I have thousands of testimonials. Come and hear my undefeated champion cup winner of England and over 40 house-moulted Linnets that have won all before them in Leeds, Newtown, Hunslet, Batley, Morley, Huddersfield, Bradford, etc., for Harry Allen, the original Linnet king, and myself. It is acknowledged we have the finest strain in England. Visitors are delighted. My birds are here to be seen and heard. I don't tell you I have sold them when you come. I understand every class of Linnet singing in England. State your requirements, please; quality, time, short jabs, or birds that can do three score in no time. Look, Linnets, singing day and gaslight, being taught under our wonderful champions, will sing anywhere, 2/6, 3/6 each; and a few really extra good ones, 4/6 each. Also a nice lot of good loud-voiced birds, right for time singing, 2/-, 2/6 each; kitchen songsters, 1/6, 2/- each; and a nice lot of youngsters, 1/- each. Linnets, trained for catching, 2/- and 3/- each. A little tip from me: Don't have birds that yip; they are no good as call birds. I have some of our prize-winners for sale, all house-moulted, win anywhere and sing anywhere, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- each; also the best Linnet Mule in England, on Linnet song (quality), puts his notes together grand, price 50/-, worth more for exhibition. Norwich type cock Linnets, well pencilled, grand colour, steady as rocks and ready to win, real giants, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each. Finest lot of Goldies in the North, not smoky little rubbish cocks, all on song, 2/-, 2/6, 3/- each; also a nice lot of real giants, with good deep square cut blaze, nicely tanned, well buttoned, 4/6, 5/6, and one a stormer 7/6; also a nice muling Goldie, 3/6; hen Peahen Goldie, good colour, 3/6; and a lot of hens, like cocks for colour, 9d., 1/-, 1/6 each; monster cock Greenfinch, yellow, nice bird, winner, 2/6; another, not so steady, 1/6; giant h.m. Brambling, 7/6; h.m. Twite, winner, 7/6; splendid V-marked Yellow Bunting, 2/6; good large Corn Bunting, a gem, but with damaged tail, 3/6; giant cock Chaffinch, splendid colour, 2/6; gem of a Redpoll, win anywhere, and quite ready, 3/-; cock Lark, finger tame, on grand song, 2/-; another, splendid attraction, 3/6; h.m. Blackbird, lovely songster, 7/6; my book of secrets, 6d., or Harry Allen's book, 6d. post free. Send 1/- for a bag of my singing mixture. Mr. Plows, secretary of Kippax Linnet Club, says: "I won 2nd and 3rd with using your mixture, and could not win before." Half a teaspoonful does the trick. Good cock Canaries, full loud song, sing anywhere, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each; large muling hens, 2/6, 3/6 each. State wants please; correspondence a pleasure. No waiting, so send to the fountain head: Fred Allen, The Linnet Expert, 156, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull. (12)

(2d. from agents: see list on another page.)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutsell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 23d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

Owing to the light being bad we only gave the birds three minutes in the window, but there was some very good singing: 1, W. Watkins; 2, 3, W. Nelson. Oct. 17, 20 birds sang for three prizes given by Mrs. Parker: 1, 3, W. Nelson; 2, A. Longfield. Will all members and friends please note that cheques will be drawn not later than 2.50, and first pair up at 3 p.m. on Oct. 20. We hope to see some good birds from all the Linnet Clubs in Yorksire.—W. Dobson, Sec.

LEEDS.

Quality singing for Linnets, Old Bird House, Skinners' Arms, Buslingthorpe, Oct. 17; 19 birds competed. 1, 2, 3 shared by Mr. A. Binns and J. Green. Judges, C. Clayton and J. Sellars.—C. Clayton, Hon. Sec.

Quality Linnet singing, Glassmakers' Arms, Oct. 16. 1, 1st; 2, 3, Howarth; 4, Lacy. Judges, Marshall and Robinson. Oct. 17, 25 birds. 1, 2, shared Marshall and Walls; 3, 4, shared Richardson and Howarth. Judges, Biss, Lacey, Clegg. Oct. 24, open Canary sing; we should like to see all Canary fanciers make a good rally.—E. Stanfield, Sec.

Leeds Linnet and Canary F.A., Alhion Hotel, Saville Green, York-road. Open contest for quality Linnet singing Oct. 16, 14 birds sang. 1, Shaws; 2, Stanney; 3, Stead; 4, consolation prize, E. Wood. Judges, Hayes, Topping, and Naylor Oct. 17, 18 sang. 1, Buttery; 2, Sissons; 3, Wood; 4, consolation prize, W. Sissons. Judges, Hayes, Naylor, and Topping. Roller contest Oct. 17, 14 birds sang. 1, S. Johnson; 2, Condliffe; 3, shared by Wood and Stead; 4, consolation prize, Condliffe. Judges, Grant and Naylor.—W. Naylor, Hon. Sec.

Open contest for quality Linnet singing, Clarence Hotel, Skinner-lane. Oct. 16, 22 of the best faced the judges. Our worthy president, Mr. E. Rusworth, added a special prize to the winner. 1, 2, shared A. Binns and T. Chippendale; 3, Potter; 4, shared A. Binns and W. Lipman. Judges, T. Sammers, C. Biss, A. Dalton. T. Chippendale's bird sang A. Binns' bird for the special prize, and Mr. A. Binns won. Judged by T. Sumner. Oct. 17, 18 sang. 1, T. Chippendale; 2, H. Wigfield; 3, Wharman. Judges, Messrs. P. Maddan, S. Butterfield, W. Lipman.—W. Lipman, Hon. Sec.

Leeds Quality Linnet Singing Club, Plasterers' Arms, Skinner-lane, Oct. 9, 16 birds. 1, 2, J. Chippendale; 3, F. Turner. Judges, P. Madden and A. Lorrman. Oct. 10, 22 Linnets competed. 1, 3, J. Chippendale; 2, Dearlove; 4, T. Chadwick. Judges, P. Madden, Lorrman, and Solomon. Oct. 16, 12 Linnets. 1, C. Lorrman; 2, Turner; 3, Walker. Oct. 17, 23 Linnets. 1, J. Chippendale; 2, Dearlove; 4, Chadwick. Judges for both contests, Lorrman, Solomon, and C. Boyd. Mr. Dearlove brought a wild-caught White Linnet, which interested us very much. It is supposed to be the cleanest Linnet seen in Leeds, most of them being splashed marked. The landlord, Mr. Kendall, bought it.—F. Turner, Sec.

Club Reports.

CRYSTAL PALACE AND PENGE.

Meeting, held Oct. 13, at Alexandra Hotel, Penge. Owing to the absence of chairman, Mr. Foxen, Mr. Last took the chair. Schedule for annual show was discussed, and all business was got through and settled. Date of show, Nov. 10. Judge, Mr. H. Norman. Specials, 3 silver cups, etc., with 36 classes. Members were asked to try and beat last year.—W. D. Fryett.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Meeting headquarters, Seven Stars, St. John-street, Wolverhampton, with a good attendance. Mr. Willows chair. Considering the numerous specials contributed to special prize fund, the society has been able to present one of the finest schedules for Roller fanciers in the kingdom. I hope to have them by the 21st. Judges: Messrs. Tomlinson, Wellows, Jacquemin. See advert. in this week's issue.—J. W. Thomson, Hon. Sec.

BEAMISH C.B.S.

Meeting held Bird Inn, Mr. S. Elliot chair, with a good turn up of members; some we had not seen since last show. We are having 1s. subscription for best young bird 1915, also for second best, each member to nominate one bird. Also special for best bird throughout the show, and we are hoping to have a good show to try to keep the Fancy alive. Mr. S. Lindsay, of Butley, was made a member.—J. H. Elliot, Sec.

CODNOR PK. & EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 16, Three Tuns, Eastwood; Mr. L. Parsons, chair; and a splendid attendance. One of our old members, Mr. J. Smedley, who has left the district, was again made a member. A committee was formed to purchase the specials for annual open show, and these will be on view at next meeting. Schedules now ready and may be obtained from the secs., Mr. A. Smith, Lynn Croft, Eastwood, and Mr. G. Lees, Thompson Street, Langley Mill.—Smith and Lees.

OPEN NORWICH P.C.

Special meeting Oct. 16, Flying Dutchman Hotel, Mr. W. A. Wilson chair, and a good attendance. We made a few more new members. The main item on the programme was in connection with Preston show, when some amateurs showed in the open champion section, and some in the amateur section. The two highest competitors made equal points, and now start off level. Will all amateurs after now bear in mind that they have to show in open champion section, and that all their points will count for amateur specials, etc.—Sam Wilcock, Sec.

CHOPWELL C.B.S.

Meeting Workmen's Club Hall, Oct. 16, Mr. W. Marsh chair, over a good attendance. New members elected: W. Carr, T. Dixon, and R. Campbell. Decided, through our show fixture falling on the same date as Haltwhistle, to postpone it until Dec. 4. Mr. W. Tomlinson and Mr. W. Curry have kindly consented to judge. Moved that sec. write to all 1914 members who have not paid their subs., as we have had rules drawn up and printed stating that all subs. must be paid up before last meeting before show; members kindly take note of this. Agreed to put on an additional 10s. selling class, making 19 classes in all. From reports to hand everything points to a splendid show, so rally members, and intending members, to our next meeting, Nov. 13.—W. H. Christer, Sec.

SHETTLESTON, CARNTYNE C.B.S.

Meeting Houston's Cafe, Oct. 16. A splendid gathering of members gave our worthy chairman, Mr. Hendrie, the encouragement he well deserves. Messrs. M. McLeod, H. Dunman, A. Drummond, R. Watt, A. Sneddon were elected members. Owing to the great progress and large membership of this very flourishing club it was proposed to have an assistant secretary, but as everything in connection with our annual show in Co-operative Hall, Shettleston, is pretty well in hand, it was decided to let it lie over till next meeting. Medals and specials galore are promised and given, and it will not be the fault of the committee if Saturday, Nov. 20, is not a red-letter day here. The profits of the exhibition are to be handed over to the Shettleston and Tollcross Nursing Association, one of the most deserving institutions in this district. A hearty vote of thanks to our hard-working committee and chairman closed a very enthusiastic meeting.—J. Irvine, Sec.

OLD SHILDON (Workmen's Club).

Meeting, Oct. 16. Decided to have 28 classes: 4 Nor., 4 Yorks, 4 Crests and C.B., 2 Bord., 4 Bell, 4 Brit. Seeders, 1 Softbill, 1 Mule or Hyb., 4 for Federation novice. Entries, 1/-; prizes, 8/-, 4/-, 2/-. Schedules will be sent out as early as we can to all last year's exhibitors; any others please send for one. John Ainsworth, Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 14, Mr. Javenhand, chair. Decided to have the same classification as last year for annual show. Mr. G. Browning, Rotherham, was elected judge. We made two more new members, one of whom, Mr. Hatching, is at present at the Front, and was represented by his father. I should imagine this is rather an extraordinary occurrence.—E. Johnson, Sec.

RUNCORN B.B.A.

Meeting headquarters, Mr. Whyte chair, before a large attendance. Decided to have a members' show Dec. 14. Mr. C. Hamilton to judge, and the proceeds to go to St. John's Ambulance Association, which is doing good work for wounded soldiers in the town. Two new members made—Messrs. Maddock and Wardle. 26 classes were arranged, and a very fair number of specials promised.—E. Rone, Sec.

NORTHERN BRITISH M. & F.B.C.

Meeting, Oct. 2, Shield's Cafe, Bigg Market, Newcastle. The chairman, Mr. Peterson, presided over a good attendance. Decided to hold table shows as on previous years. Next meeting, Oct. 30, in Shield's Cafe, Bigg Market, at 8. Table show for British birds, F.M., will be held in connection with same. Classes: Linnet, Greenfinch, and A.O.V. Judge to be selected at meeting. Fanciers invited subs. are due. The following societies have been granted our patronage cups and medals: Newcastle, Blaydon, Hartlepool, Haltwhistle, and Gateshead.—W. Curry, Sec.

NORTHERN BORDER F.C.C.

Meeting Oct. 6, Pillar's Cafe, Pink Lane, Newcastle. Mr. W. Affleck chair. Members elected: Messrs. S. Nicholson, G. Heslop, J. Cruddas. An application for patronage from Gateshead was granted. Correspondence was read from Mr. F. F. Hawkins, Gateshead, stating that owing to pressure of business he was being compelled to give up the Fancy. This was reluctantly accepted, with the hope that the lapse may only prove to be of a temporary nature. Decided to have a table show next meeting, five classes each section. Mr. F. Renter will judge champion, and Mr. W. Affleck novice section.—Chas. Farrer, Hon. Sec.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Meeting headquarters, Oct. 7, Mr. H. C. Humphries chair, supported by a good number of members. The chief business of the evening was the discussion re the annual show. The chairman read a letter he had received from the acting sec., Mr. G. Burton, notifying that he would not be able to run the annual show owing to pressure of business. After a lengthy discussion it was resolved that owing to the difficulty of securing a suitable room, and as so many of the members were away, the show fixed for Nov. 4 be abandoned, and that if possible we arrange a small members' show later in the season. A judging competition took place, the final judge being Mr. G. F. Crawford, who kindly gave a few remarks at the close. The winner of the spoon in the competition was Sergt. J. H. Joplin, who placed the first three birds accurately. Next meeting Nov. 4.—Burton Bros.

HALTWHISTLE.

Meeting, Mechanics' Hall, Oct. 2, Mr. G. H. Bowerbank presided over a large attendance. Letters were read from secs. of the following specialist clubs intimating that we had been granted patronage of same: Northern Norwich, Northern Yorks., Northern British Mule and Foreign, Northern Border Fancy and Border Fancy Club, and after a good discussion it was decided to have the following classes at our open show, Nov. 19, 20: 15 Bord. (3 Nov.), 8 Nor. (2 Nov.), 7 Yorks. (2 Nov.), 11 Brit., Mule and For., and 14 members' classes. Fee, 1/6; members, 1/-; prizes, 10/-, 5/-, 2/6. Members' classes, 6d. per cage and prize-money according to entries. Members' subs. to be paid by Nov. 1st, to entitle competition for members' cup and specials. A vote of thanks to chairman brought meeting to a close. Schedules will be ready in a few days, and can be had on application to—Wm. Tallantyre, Sec., South View, Haltwhistle.

BORDER FANCY C.C.

The local committee met in Edinburgh, Oct. 16, to consider the result of postcards sent out to members, and it was found that 200 were in favour of a B.F.C. Club Show in Edinburgh, at New Year time, while 20 voted against. It was arranged to postcard every local member to meet at 142, High St., Edinburgh, Oct. 21, for the purpose of forming a working committee for show. Agreed to secure Picardy Place Hall at once, and thereby secure a good Hall. It was in this Hall that the first Scottish National was held, when there was an entry of fully 1,200. Being on the main thoroughfare, between Edinburgh and Leith, about five minutes' walk from the Waverley Station, it is very easy to get at, and if members give this venture their whole-hearted support it will be one of the best shows of the "Wee Gens" ever brought together, and this is what it ought to be. Don't be afraid to send along a special, as we want something worthy of the Club when making up schedule. Now, brother fanciers, as this is the semi-jubilee of the Club, rally round us and make this venture a huge success.—W. B. Smart, Sec.

MIDDLETON C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 4. Owing to only a few members turning up it was not decided whether to hold our annual show this season. I have called several meetings and have only been able to raise five members twice this year. We had 15 members on the books, but the majority have given up this year, and now we have only eight. Also, most of these have not bred this season. We had about 30s. for a rose bowl to be competed for at a young bird show and could not raise any entries. We have also a 6-guinea challenge cup for competition in succession. To be won three times, not necessarily in succession. Also we can raise a special for practically every class. Most of our members have resigned and sold out, and others have gone away; but a member, Mr. J. Burke, who has had a good season, will guarantee 20 entries; also Mr. A. Wagstaffe has had a good season. The members who have given up are mostly Norwich fanciers. Mr. J. Oldham has bred Goldfinch Mules by a Lancashire hen. It is useless calling meetings and notifying members if they will not turn up, and on Monday next we shall decide on show, also fix classes, etc., for which there will be little competition for the prize offered.—Jas. Hulton, Sec.

Mr. E. Holliday has removed from 76, Coplaw Street, Govanhill, to 51, Bolton Drive, Mount Florida, Glasgow.

The Kettering F.A. is holding its first open show on Dec. 11. The schedule is reviewed in this issue, and further particulars are given in an advertisement.

Mr. A. S. Treasure, hon. sec., Cheltenham C.B.S., writes that the 5s. special in each section includes British and hybrids; this, by an oversight, was omitted from the schedule.

In your report of Plymouth show, writes Mr. H. Craven, you make no mention of my winning the A. B. Brown cup for Cinnamons, this having come to me in the first year of its being out.

We have sent schedules out to all previous exhibitors, writes Mr. J. W. Thornton, hon. sec., Hartlepool C.B.S., 43, Rydal Street, W. Hartlepool. Any one not having received one, please apply.

Mr. J. G. Cook, chairman, Gainsboro' Priory C.B.S., writes that his members will be pleased to welcome the fanciers of the district, and from Redcar and Middlesbrough, at their table show on Oct. 30.

We learn from Mr. E. C. Job, sec. Sheffield O.S., that schedules have been sent out, any one overlooked please apply E. C. Job, Wincobank, Sheffield. The schedule is claimed to be the most generous ever put by a society before fanciers.

Yorkshire fanciers should note Tong and Dist. C.B.S. annual show in our advert. columns. This fixture is held under Yorkshire Union Rules. Entries close on Tuesday next, and those who have not received a schedule should apply to the secretary.

We hear from Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, Hon. Secs. Liverpool O.S., that although the classification for Liverpool show was cut down this year by 20 classes, 800 entries had been received in the 60 classes provided, and that all sections are well represented.

Owing to reduced railway facilities only a members' one day will be held this year by the Brighton and Hove C.B.A. on Dec. 8, writes Mr. W. H. Gibb, hon. sec. Mr. G. Gardner will judge; silver cups given by the club will be competed for; best Mule or Hybrid bred, and best British Bird shown.

In your valuable report of the Plymouth show, writes Mr. R. Woods, Hodges and Woods should read Hughes and Woods. Mr. Hughes is a well-known North Wales judge and exhibitor, and has many friends over there will be glad to know that he is still alive and has this season captured a valuable silver cup offered by the Perth Society for the best bird in show. My friend admits that he is indebted for his knowledge and success to the valuable hints which he has had from good old CAGE BIRDS.

The opening article in "British Birds" for October (Messrs. Witherby, High Holborn, one shilling monthly) is entitled "Wait and See" Photography, by Miss E. L. Turner, with some fine photographs by the author of birds in freedom. Mr. E. B. Dunlop writes on the incubation of wild birds, and Mr. J. H. Gurney on "Gannets Breeding on Bressay." Among the usual "Notes" are accounts of the appearance of the Western Black-eared Wheatear in Sussex, and Eastern Black-eared Wheatears in Sussex and Yorkshire.

OBITUARY.

MR. M. CRUST (Reigate).

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. A. W. Bacon, hon. sec. Redhill C.B.S., that we have lost from our midst a most kind and valuable old judge and fancier, Mr. Martin Crust. He passed away on Oct. 15, after a short illness, and was interred at Reigate Cemetery to-day, Oct. 19. I am sure that all fanciers will join with us in our deepest sympathy to the widow and family.

I am asked, writes Mr. J. Waugh, hon. sec. and treas., Springburn and Possil Park C.B.C., to record that one of our members, Mr. J. Macleod, has lost one son and has had another wounded in the Dardanelles. The sympathy of our members is offered to Mr. J. Macleod and his wife and family, with hopes for a speedy recovery of the wounded soldier.

I am sorry to say, writes Mr. J. Rukin, that Mr. Noah Stansfield, Denton, has lost his dear wife after a very short illness. Noah, as his friends delight in calling him, has lost a true helpmate both in his home life and with his birds, for she always took a very lively and active interest in looking after his feathered stock. I am sure his many friends in the Fancy will extend to our friend heartfelt sympathy to our friend and children, a young girl, and a lad serving abroad. Pray God in His great mercy help him to bear his loss.

The Affairs of the Crested C.C.

An extraordinary meeting, called by the Chairman, Mr. G. Ley, of Nottingham, in accordance with Rule 8, was held Oct. 13, at 2, York Street, Piccadilly. Mr. George Crabb was elected chairman, and said the meeting had been called, as no reply to any letters could be obtained from Mr. Tyson. Mr. Ley had written to him asking him to hand over the books and effects belonging to the Club, if he could not give the time to do the work, and several show secretaries had reported that they could not get any reply from him. After letters were read from several members regretting their inability to attend the meeting, the chairman said that it seemed that Mr. Tyson was unable to give the time to attend to the Club's affairs, and it was carried unanimously that Mr. T. Heath, 28, Kenilworth Court, Putney, should be Hon. Sec. and Treasurer in his place. The Hon. Sec. was instructed to write to Mr. Tyson to this effect, and to request him to hand over all the books and effects of the Crested Canary Club within ten days.

It may interest many readers of CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Hawksley, hon. sec., Maindee F.F. and C.B.S., Fair Oak, Newport, Mon., to know that an open show of the society has been fixed for Dec. 4, and I shall be pleased to forward schedules on application.

It was an agreeable surprise, writes Mrs. Holliday, to find on the front page of CAGE BIRDS my unfluffed buff cock, winner at the Welsh International. It was only out three times last year, at Bournemouth, Southampton and Cardiff, and it won each time. After Cardiff I sold the bird to Mr. R. Pinnell, Warminster, and I hope he will have a successful season with it.

We have received the Year Book of the National Green-marked Y.C.C. This well-got-up manual contains the standard and scale of points for Green-marked Yorkshires, Rules of the club, By-laws, list of club shows for the season, and the specials which are in competition, with conditions governing the same, the balance-sheet for 1914-15, the list of officers, and the names and addresses of members. The hon. sec. and treasurer is Mr. J. Chambers, 22, St. Ann's Mount, Burley Hill, Leeds.

A Show for Southend.

We held a meeting on Oct. 13, write Messrs. Deer and Cundy, hon. secs. Southend C.B.S., and decided to hold a show on Nov. 24 and 25, open to the borough of Southend only.

Our Front Page Drawings.

Still Money in the Fancy.

Since I sent the report of Preston show, writes our representative, I hear that the yellow unfluffed of Messrs. Stubbs Bros., 1st winner, was claimed at catalogue price, ten guineas.

Grateful Thanks.

Mr. C. E. Weston desires us to thank the many bird-lovers who sent kindly letters of condolence to himself and wife on reading last week of their sad bereavement. This sympathy from fellow-fanciers has been deeply appreciated, and has helped much to alleviate the bitterness of the blow.

The Chough in Ireland.

The Chough is by no means as rare in Ireland, writes Mr. H. Williams, Dublin, as some of your correspondents seem to imagine, and is still to be found in large numbers along the whole Western seaboard and outlying islands wherever there are any rocky headlands.

Fifty Years a Fancier.

The presentation of cups and medals won by the members of the Barrow C.B.A., was made at the last meeting by the oldest member of the society, Mr. R. Willison, the well-known Scotch Fancy exhibitor. Mr. Willison has been in the Fancy for more than half a century.

Cancellation of the Horticultural Hall Show for 1915.

Mr. Allen Silver, representing the joint committees of the London C.B.A., National British Bird and Mule Club, and the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League, writes as follows: "I regret having to announce that, owing to Police Regulations restricting any use of light after dusk, that this show will have to be cancelled."

Cock Blackcap Builds a Nest.

Many thanks for putting the portrait of my Blackcap on the front page of CAGE BIRDS. I was very much pleased to see it, writes Mr. O. J. Stone. It will interest you to hear that this Blackcap cock built a nice nest this year, and was often seen sitting on it. The hen Garden Warbler who shared the aviary with him appeared to take no part in the proceedings.

Proposed League of South Eastern Societies.

The latest proposal is for the formation of a League of Cage Bird Societies for Surrey, Kent, Hants, and the county of London south of the Thames. The suggestion emanates from the Hastings and St. Leonard's C.B.S., and was considered at the last meeting of the Wimbledon C.B.S., but discussion of the proposal was deferred until the next meeting, as the attendance was smaller than usual, and it was thought that the scheme ought to be considered by a fuller meeting.

London Birds Under Zeppelin Fire.

A London fancier writes:—"I thought it might interest your readers to know that we escaped by a few yards only the Zeppelin bombardment. I had the gas fittings shaken down, and one window pierced by shrapnel. The birds did not take a bit of notice until the light went out all of a sudden. I was in the bird-room preparing some soaked sunflower with the intention of crushing the seed up, and the bottle was knocked out of my hand, but never broken. I consider it a marvellous escape."

The October issue of the Avicultural Magazine, the journal of the Avicultural Society, is full of articles of the most intense interest. Dr. Lovell-Keays and Mr. Matrice Amsler contribute two delightful breeding accounts, the former of the Bearded Reedlings, which have been mentioned several times in our columns, and the latter of the Occipital Blue Pie. Accounts by the Editor, Mr. H. D. Astley, of the wonderful collection of Tanagers and other birds brought over by Mr. Goodfellow for Mr. E. J. Brook, and of the arrival in France of thirty more Humming Birds, will arouse envious thoughts in the minds of many. Mr. H. Wormald tells of the hand-rearing of Long-tailed Tits, and several other articles go to complete a fine issue. The number is embellished by a wonderful coloured drawing, by Mr. J. Goodchild, of a pair of Mr. Astley's Ruddy-headed Geese, and contains besides, the Report of the Council for 1914-15, and an index to Vol. 6.

Open Show.

Mr. W. S. Wilson, hon. sec., writes that at the Hamilton show, Dec. 11, Mr. D. Black, Govan, will judge Scotch Fancies (8 classes); Mr. R. Martin Norwich (16); Mr. W. S. Clark, Irvine, Borders (19); and Mr. J. Goodfellow, Edinburgh, Hybrids and British (19 classes).

Not Too Old at Fifty-six.

We hear that the well-known Coventry exhibitor, Mr. Geo. Peters, chairman of the Coventry O.S., has given his services to the country at the age of fifty-six. He has enlisted in the R.A.M.C., and has left Coventry for his duties at the Herbert Edward Hospital, Woolwich. Truly a splendid example, and one which bird-lovers will be proud to quote for many a year after the war.

A Fine Show in London Next Week

We hear from Mr. Huggins, hon. sec. of the London and P.O.S., that over 400 entries had been received up to Tuesday morning, and they were coming in from all parts of the country at the rate of 50 or 60 in each post. Some entries come as far as from Inverness, and Mr. Huggins says this shows the value of advertising in CAGE BIRDS. The show is at the Lambeth Baths, and will be open from 2 till 10 on Wednesday next, and from 10 to 7.30 on Thursday.

Postal Orders Lost in a Fire.

Mr. S. Burns, Tyne Mount Lodge, Dalkeith, who advertised privet berries in our issue of Oct. 9, sends us the charred portions of two postal-orders, accompanied by the following note: "Please ask all the fanciers who wrote for berries to drop me a card with their name and address. My writing-desk has been burnt in a fire, and all the letters and postal-orders (about 40) have been destroyed with it, hence my not sending the berries. I am forwarding you all that was left of the orders (two charred fragments), and as I am just joining the Army it is a bit of a loss to me."

THE BIRD-KEEPERS' ROLL

Bedford and Beds. United C.B.S.

SIR,—The following members have enlisted: Mr. J. Beanland, chairman; Messrs. H. Crawford, H. Greenaway, Wright, Armitage, H. Towler, E. Towler, T. H. Wheeler, R. Mobbs, C. Collins, E. Thompson, Tensome, W. Gibbs.

A. SIMMONS, Hon. Sec.

Wimbledon C.B.S.

SIR,—We have two members who have joined H.M. Forces: J. H. Bailey (A.S.C.), now in France, and Corpl. S. W. Pain, 8th Batt. E.S.R. Mr. G. W. Baker, a Merton fancier, who resigned his membership shortly before the outbreak of war, is also with the colours.

G. GRIFFITHS, Hon. Sec.

Greenock and Port Glasgow O.S.

SIR,—The following of our members are serving the Colours: Messrs. M. Service, late treas., Gordon Highlanders; C. Bryden, late sec., Royal Engineers; J. McDonald, A. and S. Headquarters. They are all in France, Mr. Bryden having been over a year at the Front.

J. MCG. DOOLEY, Sec.

Clydebank C.B.C.

SIR,—The members of our club on active service are: Private Wm. Greer, Scots Greys, killed; Private A. Hay, wounded; Private Jas. McBride, A. and S.H.; Private J. Grieve.

WM. KANE, Sec.

Sowerby Bridge C.B.S.

SIR,—We have one of our members serving with the colours—Pte. F. Priestley, R.A.M.C. We should be very pleased if you would add his name to your Roll of Honour.

By
A. E. Moule
(Abertillery).

PERSONALLY I advise the egg-shaped flat-sided glass drinkers, as they are so easily cleaned out. In seed hoppers I think the York pattern suits best all round, being simple to make and easy to clean out. I have made my own of hard wood, well gluing all the joints; they are also enamelled inside and polished black outside; the glass fronts are made to slide out for cleaning purposes. The groove in which the glass slides is made very simply with a wide set tenon saw.

I have a couple of white pot knobs on each cage, and these set it off and put a finish to the article. I have found it a great advantage to enamel the wire fronts the same colour as the inside of cages; it prevents them getting rusty and also gives a good appearance to the cage.

Adaptable Flight Cages.

You will also want a couple of good flights. I do not advise the use of one of a tremendous size, at least not for birds kept for exhibition purposes, as it has a tendency to make them wild, which is a great drawback. I prefer cages of about 5ft. long, 16ins. high, and 11ins. deep. These flights can be divided into smaller compartments by having the fronts in sections so as to be able to put in partitions when needed.

In my opinion an ideal bird-room should have all the breeders on one side, so that the birds cannot interfere with one another when the breeding season commences, and the flight cages should be at each end. Have everything uniform; all the hoppers underneath each other, drinkers the same.

I have three double breeders in the centre of each tier, with single ones at each end, altogether 15 breeders, and six flights the size that I mentioned. Each of the top flights at the ends of the room can be converted into three single breeders by putting in two slides; therefore I could put up 21 pairs if I wished, and still have four 5ft. flights. Each cage is numbered, so that breeding records are easily kept. For egg pans I prefer the three-inch round ones; they are so very easy to clean.

You will also require a small chest of drawers for your seed and other articles; the most convenient size of this, for the same sized room as my own, would be 3ft. high by 2ft. wide, and 1ft. deep, with four drawers. The top of the drawers should be covered with some non-absorbent material. I will give you a tip here. Go to the local house furnisher and ask him if he has a broken piece of marble, the top of a washstand, for instance; you can cut it to the size you require if you have an old saw—do not spoil a good one. Polish the drawers black, and attach white knobs for the handles.

How to Make a Sink.

The next necessary item is a sink or wash-up. This is a great boon, and if you are handy with the soldering iron you can make one yourself. I managed it all right, and I will try and describe the method.

First get two pieces of well seasoned wood; mind that it is so, or else the job will be no good; size 18ins. by 12ins., and 1in. thick. These will form the two sides. Next, two pieces 18ins. by 9 ins. to form the front and back top rail. Now you will want a piece for the bottom of the sink, and a similar piece for a shelf about two inches from the floor. Also a piece 20ins. by 12ins. for the top. Fasten this top piece to the back rail with a couple of hinges, so as to open when required, and when closed it will act as a seat. Another piece, fastened with a pair of hinges to the front rail at the bottom, will form a handy cupboard for medicines, etc.

Your sink will now be 15ins. long, 10ins. wide, and 9ins. deep. Get a piece of zinc the required size, i.e. 34ins. long and 28ins. wide, cut to perfectly square angles, and draw a line 9 inches from the outside all the way round. Then cut out the four corner angles 9 inches each way, bend the four sides up, and drop into place. Next solder the zinc at the four corners, taking plenty of time and doing the job neatly. Don't get your hair off doing it, as I did the first time, or you may make a mess of the job.

Now make a hole in the centre of the bottom of the sink for an outlet the size of a halfpenny, and solder a short piece of zinc pipe into this. When you have fixed your sink in position you must have a piece of lead pipe (second-hand will do) leading from the short pipe to the outside of your building.

Mind that you have this pipe big enough for the small pipe to drop into it, and, of course, you will have it going through the bottom of the cupboard and through the floor. Give about four coats of white enamel to the inside of the cupboard, being careful to let each coat dry before adding the next, and do this in the same manner as I described in reference to the cages to prevent running. Polish the outside woodwork black, upholster the top with a piece of red leather, and you will have a first-class sink and seat combined.

Now as regards artificial light. Where you cannot have gas or electricity you will have to use a lamp. I have adopted the use of gas, and I find it very handy, and in no way detrimental to the birds as a rule. When I have the gas alight I open the fanlight, and as I have the jet fixed between the door and the window, and in the centre of the room, I find that the fumes go directly out.

It is a matter of opinion as to what kind of bath is best. I prefer the wire fronted ones, 4ins. deep in front and 2ins. deep at the back; these are 6ins. long. Enamel them white inside, eau-de-nil outside. With about one inch depth of water in these I do not find the birds make a mess or splash. If you have a number of birds you will require at least a half dozen. I recommend the earthenware white nest pans with white swansdown linings.

There is at least one more necessary item, and that is a waste box. Get a biscuit box, make a cover out of three-ply wood, and put a border round inside. Paint the box green, polish the top black, and write the word "Waste" on the front. Fix a white knob on the top, and you have a handy article. Get some coloured plates from CAGE BIRDS and frame them; they are always worth framing. Hang them up, and they will set the room off nicely. If you put blinds to the windows to complete, you will find that red ones are the best, and handy for moulting, especially when you are using colour feed.

Some Useful Odds and Ends.

There are numerous other articles which will be found handy in the bird-room, viz., a thermometer, a Goodman's flip feeder, a calendar, stock book, pedigree book, seed scoops, brush, jugs, spray, etc.

Another item I find I have missed is a spraying cage. If you spray the birds in their show cages you make a mess. A good idea is to have a box cage about 18ins. high and 18ins. long, with the bottom made of tin or zinc, and make a little hole in the corner for the water to run out into a jug or basin. After spraying the birds you can return them to their respective cages without any mess.

To complete the requirements of a bird-room you will also want a washing cage. I may say here that I am making one at present; that is to say, I have not yet got it finished, but when complete I think I shall have to see one to come anywhere near it. The construction of it I will explain in the near future.

In conclusion, I wish CAGE BIRDS the success it richly deserves. It is the backbone of the fancy in every sense of the word. Also I wish all readers of CAGE BIRDS the best of luck in their hobby.

MY VIEWS ON CANARY BREEDING.

By
F. G. Snell

SHOULD your birds have the qualities mentioned, you may rest assured you possess the true Norwich type, which all lovers of this beautiful variety are striving to obtain. Unless you have a very long pocket you will hardly be able to start with all your birds possessing all the ideal qualities fit for exhibition purposes. In consequence, care must be exercised in the pairing of your birds to produce the best results.

A question of importance often arises: Does like produce like? My own opinion is, it does, and will surely prove itself providing you have sufficient knowledge of how your birds are bred, and the peculiarities of their parents; if from long, short, or large parents; coarse or fine in feather properties, etc. Otherwise, I am afraid, if you should turn out a winner or two it would be more by chance than by judicious management. I believe inbreeding may be attempted and success assured, but only from such birds as are healthy, full of vigour, and possessing quality and size. One finds that, however careful he is in selecting and pairing the birds, winners are not numerous; but, by experience and by making sure your birds are so matched that one possessing a fault is mated to a partner in which this particular fault is conspicuously absent, you may breed more good ones than bad.

Yellow to Buff, Buff to Yellow.

The correct method of pairing is yellow to buff, or vice versa. From double yellows you get birds very harsh in feather, and often on the small side. Some recommend double-buffing for the purposes of getting size. Care should be taken to see that the birds are suitable, or you will get rough, coarse-feathered birds with frills, and a quantity of feathers about the legs. Nothing beats a good pair of show birds for breeding, but if you have, say, an extra large yellow cock bird, good in colour, a bit on the long side, not too good in feather, pair him to a medium size buff hen with a large head, thick neck, short wings, and tail, with feathers as tight as the proverbial boxwood, and full of quality. By thus balancing the good points with the bad, your results should mean an improvement on your original stock. The same argument applies to the buff and yellow cross—what is lacking on the one hand, must be made up for on the other.

Next, our attention is turned to the breeding season, which should not be started until you are sure your birds are in breeding condition. This can be ascertained by the cock birds being in full song and flying about the cage on hearing the frantic shouting of the hens, who constantly call and flap their wings, and will often try to thrust themselves through the drinking holes to get in touch with them. Personally I prefer one cock to one hen, all through the season, as this keeps him in vigour and makes more sure of a successful moult.

If he behaves himself, allow him to remain with the hen while the incubation and rearing of the young takes place. By so doing, the double feeding greatly assists the youngsters, and you get stronger birds. Should he disturb the hen while sitting, remove him until the young are able to leave the nest; then run him in again. The food during incubation should consist of plain canary seed until the day the young are due to hatch. Then give for three days the yolk of egg only; after this give the egg rubbed through a sieve, mixed with crushed biscuits or bread-crumbs. The bread should be at least two days old; also crushed hemp seed, and a little green food.

The Care of the Young.

When the young are about four weeks old they should be able to do for themselves. Get them on to hard seed gradually, or their digestive organs will get upset, and often-times set up inflammation which may prove fatal. Now run them into the flight until they are ready to start moulting. The best birds should then be selected, especially the birds you think will be fit for the show bench, and give them your best attention, caging them separately, if you have the accommodation for doing so. In order to get the desired colour into your birds they must, at this period, be put on colour food.

Use only the best colour food you can procure, giving small quantities at the start and gradually bring the quantities up to the full strength. When your birds are through, send them to one of the nearest shows, and you will soon know how successful you have been by the results. Don't be discouraged if at first you don't succeed in being in the highest ranks, but endeavour to find out where you fail, and this will assist you in making sure of success another season.

If care is taken the Canary is subject to few diseases. Those that do arise may be traced to carelessness and inattention. If duly fed, and their cages are regularly cleaned, and the birds are kept in good air, they are seldom found in bad health. Colds are the most general complaints. How often we find birds hung up close to the top of a window, with the sash down about a foot, the draughts running through the cage enough to turn a wind-mill, without any consideration as to whether the air is cold or damp. In this way many a fine bird has taken a cold which has proved incurable. When birds are in good health they are lively, and their feathers appear sleek and smooth.

I do not intend to enumerate the various complaints, but advise anyone wanting information respecting any disorders arising with their birds to peruse the columns set apart each week in CAGE BIRDS, where all doubts and difficulties are solved by specialists. As time goes on you will find that by the practical knowledge and experience you have gained you will be able to impart to others that which you required on first embarking in the Fancy; experience is perhaps the best school.

The Trouble of the Sweating Hen.

By W. G. SMITHSON (Leeds).

AT the beginning of the season which has now come to a close many of us started with hope and expectancy. In some cases hopes may have been fulfilled, while in others disappointment has been sent to try us, along with the horrible war. Not many will have done so well as hoped for. To the unlucky ones I would say as feelingly as possible, being in the same boat, that disappointment only proves our mettle, as does the experience of the trenches the soldier on the field.

The difficulty with some may have been clear eggs, dead in shell, or accidents; and, here and there, blunders for want of thought or care. But with the "old hand" these things are not the chief causes of disappointment. The great bugbears have been sweating hens, hens refusing to sit or feed, or going wrong in one way or another.

We who have been at the job a long time can generally get plenty of young hatched out. My own chief trouble has been with Canary hens sweating the young at about a week old, and when they begin to sweat then they sit on them and give up feeding; in fact, literally poison the poor little things by the emanations from their own body. It is not frequently the case that you have a hen at the same stage to which to transfer them, but if the young are from 10 to 14 days old you have a chance of saving them by feeding them yourself, and by taking the nest to bed with you! Covered with cotton wool, and feeding in the early hours, you may maintain the strength of the birds to overcome the change from natural to improvised feeding. If younger than 10 or 12 days they are seldom strong enough to get over the change, or to keep themselves warm; then put up the obituary notice.

The sweating hen is certainly a sort of "institution," as she has troubled me for years. I have, however, just saved a nest of Lizards by the advice of CAGE BIRDS' specialist, Mr. Claude St. John, his chief remedy being sulphate of soda in the drinking water as soon as one notices the hen's breast feathers looking wet and sticky, and the down on the young birds sticky likewise.

But readers may say, "Why sweating hens, at all?" Ah, why? I have given much study to this during this season, and am convinced that I have hit upon the cause. Every breeder of experience knows what the effect is, only too well.

We all know the hen swallows the excretions of the young birds for about a week, or as long as they are unable to cast it into the cage or over the edge of the nest. This upsets her internal organism, and she becomes sick, feverish, and (like us having the "flu") she sweats, in consequence of the fetid matter she has taken in.

Then I think I have also discovered that giving her too much food during the first few days after hatching may have a like tendency to make her sick and overheated. But I believe the sulphate of soda in the water, together with soaked bread, with or without milk, is a fine antidote, withdrawing the egg food till she has eaten the bread. Of course, if she refuses the bread and stops feeding all is up—if the soda does not do the needful; so in such cases the soda should be increased to two pieces the size of a pea instead of one.

I spoke of disappointments as to results; the trier for Hybrids winks his eye on this score, or keeps one eye shut. I have tried often for various Hybrids, but without great success (except in Canary Mules). All fanciers know that beautiful Hybrids are produced, for they can see them on the show bench, and we are not much in the way of true fanciers if we are wholly discouraged by our individual want of success. This season I have had Bullie hens laying nest after nest, and the cocks consummating for months and yet clear eggs resulting.

But when next season comes, the thing will be to change the cocks; and whether success ensues or not, the birds are dear to the true fancier's heart, and a joy to behold and manage. So let us "stick to our last" and hope for the success which will no doubt one day crown our efforts.

Correspondence.

Nine Young Mules—Eight Cocks.

SIR,—This season I have bred nine Mules from a cock Goldfinch and hen Canary, and eight of them are cocks. I think it very good, and I should be glad to know if it is a record.

S. SAYERS.

Is the Railway Difficulty Over-rated?

Manchester & N.C.O.S. Will Collect from the Stations.

SIR,—I noticed in CAGE BIRDS a show secretary reporting the good response in the way of applications for schedules after a displayed advert. in your paper, and this prompted me to count the applications for our schedule. I have received from our first advert. 112 applications; from this I conclude that the fanciers' motto is still "Business as Usual." The fact that I have had applications from all parts of the country makes me think that we shall not have much difficulty with the railway companies' delivery. At Manchester and N.C.O.S. show we do not intend relying on the railway vans delivering from the various stations, but, as last year, we shall have our own vans going round the stations collecting exhibits. I should like to point out to the newer school of exhibitors that our show has a reputation of thirty-two years behind it, with a set of officials who have proved themselves fully capable of giving exhibits the best of attention, and the exhibitors satisfaction. We make a point of not refusing late entries, but this year our printers want the books a day earlier, so we ask for entries to be posted as early as possible.

Has the L.C.B.A. Been "Collaring" Dates?

SIR,—On first reading the letter under the title of "Has the L.C.B.A. been collaring dates" in this morning's issue of CAGE BIRDS, I was tempted to write a lengthy reply, but on second consideration I have decided that the suggestion is too ridiculous, lacking both knowledge and discretion of thought. I will just venture one answer to Mr. Goodall's query, viz., "A better way of killing the Fancy is to write such letters as his."

ARTHUR J. WATCHAM,
Hon. Sec., L.C.B.A.

SIR,—With reference to the letter which appeared in CAGE BIRDS last week concerning the supposed "collaring" of dates by the L.C.B.A., may I point out that your correspondent in his zeal has evidently overlooked several points.

In the first instance it is as well to remember that any society has a perfect right to choose whatever dates it pleases, and that, secondly, these dates were not chosen by the L.C.B.A. at all, but by a joint committee representing three societies.

The promoters of the scheme to hold one good exhibition in London this year were more or less compelled to take these dates to suit their desired arrangements, and had the matter of clashing cropped up, I am sure everyone concerned would have done everything possible to prevent injuring the exhibition of another society, and naturally would have preferred their earlier and usual dates. It is not always that a dozen or so men can be found at times like these to undertake the business of maintaining an important exhibition at considerable private expense to themselves.

Show arrangements of any kind would certainly have never been made at all this season had these people not had the welfare of the Fancy at heart, for it was evident that the funds of each society must have been heavily expended in order that owners of birds should have something to look forward to which would maintain the value of their stock. It must be left to the public to judge how far such value would be influenced by a win at the Horticultural Hall in comparison with one at an exhibition of somewhat lesser magnitude.

Want of good taste, I am afraid, has driven out of the Fancy many more enthusiastic workers (who have helped with exhibits, money, and time) than would have been the case regarding the unavoidable arrangements now under complaint, and I am sure the support of such people sooner or later must disappear if their well-intentioned efforts are held up to insult. Everyone likes Mr. Goodall as a fancier, and I can only conclude that he has been carried away by misplaced zeal.

Cups at Plymouth Show.

SIR,—CAGE BIRDS this week creates a new enthusiasm amongst fanciers by reason of show reports. Plymouth has received an unusual amount of space, and a favourable report, for which I personally thank you (as a member of its committee) but unofficially. I was rather disappointed there was no mention made of the cup I won for best 1915 Cinnamon, bred by exhibitor, more so as on a previous occasion (viz., the 1913 open show) the same omission occurred. This year the winner is a young buff, which I am told is the best ever seen in the West, and of which I am justly proud.

A. B. BROWN.

[We regret that our reporter omitted to mention in his account of the show that Mr. Brown won the cup referred to, and have pleasure in recording the win as above.—EDITOR.]

A Correction and an Appreciation.

SIR,—I note in your report of the Plymouth show that the vhc in the unfledged hen class is credited to a Mr. Thomas. I won both 5th and 7th prizes in the unfledged Norwich Plainheads, and I am sure you will readily correct an error. Your paper is always so accurate in its reporting that it is with some considerable diffidence that I ask for the correction, but both the catalogue and my show cages verify my statement. My birds are now almost through the moult, and but for the fact that I cannot this evening obtain a postal order, I should have sent an advert. However, I will do so, as past experience proves it is money well spent; so next week I will post on to you.

(REV.) C. B. JOLLIFFE.

Intelligence in Birds.

SIR,—Having kept a great many feathered pets, and hand-reared many, including Choughs, I have been interested in the correspondence under the above heading appearing in your columns of late.

Just how much or how little intelligence a bird possesses I think would be more than any man could possibly estimate; although your correspondent, Mr. T. Johnson, seems to have solved the problem—at least, to his own satisfaction.

If you should take a walk along the strand, say at Dollymount, or anywhere on the Coast about Dublin here, where any shooting takes place, you would find it almost impossible to get within sixty yards or so of the Gulls and other sea birds to be found there. This distance will be increased if you carry a gun or a walking-stick. This, I suppose, would be described as instinctive fear of man; yet these very same Gulls in St. Stephen's Green Park, in the heart of the City of Dublin, will almost eat out of a person's hand. Surely, it is intelligence, not instinct, that teaches them to trust man in one place and to fear him in another.

Owing to the stupid over-protection afforded birds in these days, the Gulls have become a nuisance in this particular park, where there is a fine collection of Waterfowl, which are almost starved at times through every scrap being devoured by the Gulls. In the early summer months a great many of the newly-hatched ducklings are carried away by Gulls, the Lesser Blackback being the principal offender.

I watched one of these one evening. It was on the opposite side of the pond, the "keep off the grass" side, and the ducks were mostly on the other side near me, being fed by some members of the public. There was a common Wild Duck there with a large brood, and I noticed a couple of the young ones go zigzagging out into the middle of the lake as if chasing some insects on the surface of the water.

When they had got a good distance away from the old Duck, the Gull rose up in the air and swooped down upon the nearest to it, and as it did so the duckling dived under the water, and the Gull almost disappeared also before it rose again and flew off with its victim. Now, I think this shows a little intelligence on the part of the Gull and the duckling. The latter, a non-diving species, did not dive instinctively, but sought the only refuge that reason could suggest. And the Gull? It waited till the former was some distance away from the old duck. Why? Perhaps the fact that a pair of Chilian Widgeon, in defence of their young, made such an onslaught on one of these feathered ruffians as to leave it more dead than alive on the bank of this very same lake, will suggest an answer.

The ducks in St. Stephen's Green are so tame that they actually take bread from the children's hands (and the Black-headed Gulls fly over the ducks, and pick them on the back of the head till they drop it, if it is a bigger piece than they can bolt at once), and yet amongst them are a number of full-winged birds that often fly away out to the surrounding country. When observed outside, they are as wild as any wild-reared birds, and as difficult to approach (otherwise they would not return) and there can be no doubt of their identity, as there are some Hybrids amongst them between the Mallard and Pintail. Is it instinct that makes them wild in the evening and tame again in the morning?

A similar thing may be noted at the Phoenix Park on a winter's day; there we see Pochard and Tufted Duck (wild ones) resting complacently on the artificial lake of the Royal Zoological Gardens, separated only by an iron railing and a narrow walk from a noisy football-kicking crowd. Surely, it is intelligent experience that teaches them that this is a safe resting-place.

Personally, I believe that unless a bird can add intelligence to instinct it stands a very poor chance of surviving its first winter even. How much, I fail to see how we can ever possibly know, as we do not all read the same meaning into their actions. For instance, Mr. J. in a previous controversy mentioned that he had often seen a Sparrow chasing a Pigeon. I kept Pigeons for years, and was often puzzled by this performance, but it is my experience that the Sparrow does not actually "chase" the Pigeon, but rather flies, as near as its jerky, undulating flight permits, in a parallel line beneath it. This confuses the Pigeon, and unless it amuses the Sparrow I fail to see its object; it certainly has no useful purpose in the Sparrow's economy, as I always understand instinctive actions should have.

The Cuckoo, I should say, is another intelligent bird, and I do not agree with your correspondent that it is habitually lazy, in that, I suppose, it lays—or rather deposits its egg in another bird's nest. The fact is, that owing to the preponderance of the male Cuckoos, about seventy-five per cent. of the total being males, I should say, the female Cuckoo has no time to build a nest, or incubate her eggs, owing to the attention of the males, two or three of which are always in attendance. To lay her egg and carry it in her throat till she finds a suitable nest to place it in (a Softbill's due to hatch about the same time), requires, in my way of thinking, a little intelligence, and is no task for an habitually lazy bird, just after a flight from Northern or Central Africa.

Although I cannot believe the stories of the "Cuckoo as a bird of prey," or "The Thrush story," I believe birds have a deal of intelligence, considering their circumstances, comparing favourably with our own.

HUGH WILLIAMS.

Moulting British Birds on Wild Seed.

SIR,—I have known Mr. S. J. Nicholas for a number of years to be a very successful exhibitor of British Birds, and I am pleased to read his experiences on moulting these birds on wild seeds. Mr. Nicholas says it is an undoubted fact that these wild foods added to the ordinary diet are beneficial to them, and especially during the moult. If this is so, I only wish I lived in the country to try it. But to really prove whether a bird is moulted better with the addition of wild seed, would be a hard thing to do, because some exhibitors have put down some of the very best specimens that have ever been seen, without the use of wild seed or colour-food. You must have colour there to start with. If you start with a buff bird, no wild seed or colour-food will make it as good a colour as a yellow or jonque bird. Take the Greater Redpoll for example: No wild seed or colour-food would make a buff or mealy as good a colour as a Jonque Lesser Redpoll. If Linnets and Redpolls can come out a grand colour on the wild seeds that Mr. Nicholas gives them, how is it he says you seldom find a Bullie or Greenie moulted as bright and pure in colour as a field-moulted one? Why is it? We are told the different seeds the Bullie and Greenie live on from the time they leave the nest until they are clean moulted. Those seeds are to be got.

Mr. Nicholas says he has found his birds have moulted a better colour out of doors than in; that is his experience. Some exhibitors have had to be content to moult their birds in a room, and yet they have been able to put down champions. I have moulted a Bramble this year; it is one of the best coloured birds I have seen, a real jonque (without colour-food), "everything there, colour, spangling, etc., except size. I cannot follow Mr. Nicholas, when he says that "the catcher feels a bird that is larger than the ordinary ones, being larger and more vigorous." Because it is larger, it does not say it would be more vigorous. I have seen plenty of small Linnets far more fierce than the larger ones, and the same with Goldfinches. Mr. Nicholas says he has moulted "some of the best Bullies and Greenies that have ever appeared on the show bench." Did Mr. Nicholas moult them on wild seed? Were they a better colour moulted than they were when fresh caught? Does Mr. Nicholas know whether he could moult a Yellow Corn and Reed Bunting a far better colour without the aid of colour-food, but on wild seeds, and improve them beyond all recognition?

HERBERT J. CHICK.

Hen British Birds in Cock Classes.

SIR,—Please allow me to say a few words in defence of my Greenfinch hen, which was 2nd at Plymouth show; it seems to have caused a little comment through being in a class some say was for cocks. The schedule I received and entered from said "Class 71, Greenfinch"; no sex was stated, so how it can be a class for cock birds only I fail to see. I see in Classes 69 and 73 it states "cocks," and if 71 had been for cocks it would have said so. Class 75 is a class for any variety hen (seed-eating), but there is a special class for Greenfinches, so I can't see where there is anything to grumble over. The advantage the bird had was there were two classes for her, and she could have been thrown out of either as they wanted. She is a hen Greenfinch, and has therefore no right in a Greenfinch class when a class for hen seed-eaters is provided. Being a Greenfinch, the same could have been said if she had been in the other class; there was a class for Greenfinches, so she has no right here. I will leave the readers to form their own opinion which was right and hope, Mr. Editor, you will give yours, and settle it at once, whether I am entitled to prize-money; if not, I will return it at once. This is my first show venture, and I don't want any shadow over my head. I should like to take the opportunity of thanking the manager of birds at Plymouth show for his treatment to my Linnet. When it arrived at the show it was very ill, and it was not staged, but is now getting on fine; I hope to be able to show it shortly.

T. CORNER.

[We have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Corner is quite entitled to the prize. There is no definite ruling which governs the case (or, at any rate, we have never heard of it) from any specialist or other club, therefore the question of eligibility is a matter for the judge to decide, in accordance with the wording of the schedule.—EDITOR.]

Is the Southern Norwich P.C. to Live or Die?

SIR,—In reply to "A Member" as to whether the S.N.P.C. still exists, I beg to inform him that last year (I believe it was at the L.P.O.S. show) a few of the Committee met and decided that our patronage should be given to the L.C.B.A. and go to "rest" till the war was over. Personally speaking, I think it is far better to "rest" at present rather than land the Club in debt by what can only be a miserable attempt to carry on.

The Club is at the present time on the right side of the balance sheet, with no liabilities whatever, despite the fact that practically no subscriptions have been paid this year. Surely "A Member" and those that think with him cannot expect the S.N.P.C. to live if this is the way it is supported, and I do not only refer to this year, but 1913 and 1914 as well. Some more knowledge for "A Member." At the last annual general meeting held at the Crystal Palace the secretary tendered his resignation, which was not accepted, and rather than see the club go to the winds, he offered to hold the post for twelve months. That was nearly two years ago, so practically speaking the club has no secretary, or committee for that matter, as the rule says they retire annually.

As long as the £10 10s. trophy remains in competition, the club must live, even though it is suspended till brighter times. If it is desired by the majority of the members that the club shall live and carry on, as "A Member" and others wish, I would point out that a new secretary will have to be found, and he must be supported a good deal better than Mr. Matthes has ever been. Let me assure "A Member" that I am as equally anxious for the Club's welfare, and always ready to assist, but when the general body of members support the secretary and committee by withholding their subscriptions, and forget their entries at the patronage shows, I think every credit must be given Mr. Matthes for keeping the Club where it is to-day. So if "Member" wants a live club and not a dead one, let him pay up and sign his name to his next letter; the members will think more of him.

GEO. F. CRAWFORD.

An Invitation to Members.

SIR,—I have received an intimation from Mr. Matthes, the Hon. Sec. of the S.N.P.C., that it is impossible to give patronage to any shows. Five members only having paid their subscriptions (which will not cover the printer's bill), he does not feel inclined to incur any liabilities. I have invited Mr. Matthes, and now invite all members of the S.N.P.C., to attend a meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 27, at the L. and P.O.S. show, Lambeth Baths, at 8 sharp, to consider the situation and future of the Club.

Will Exhibitors Stand the Sliding Scale?

Clapham's Disastrous Experience.

SIR,—Will Mr. Hose, the Secretary, answer the following questions so that your readers may learn why his society's open show was such a failure, as he admits it to have been. (1) Was the Norwich classification up to date, or as extensive as that for Yorkshires? (2) Was the judge known as an all-round expert? (3) Was a popular judge asked to judge for half fee? (4) Was any effort made by the society to assist fanciers in getting their exhibits to and from the show? (5) Did the catalogues contain either the classification of the exhibits or the awards; or were they plain pieces of paper, and offered for sale at sixpence? (6) If the society was not out for gain, but to help the Fancy, in what manner was help offered?

LONDONER.

SIR,—May I suggest to Mr. Hose that the reason of "Clapham's Disastrous Experience," is probably the lack of initiative on the part of the Clapham Society? If country societies like Plymouth, Cheltenham, Preston, Chester, etc., can hold open shows, why not London clubs like Clapham and Wimbledon? Many exhibitors who showed at Clapham last year made up their minds they would not go to the trouble of taking and fetching their birds another year. In my own case it took just on three hours to get to Clapham and home again, to say nothing of the trouble, and I shall not do so again. I sent a case of birds to Plymouth by rail without any bother, and they arrived back in perfect condition, and I intend sending to Cheltenham, Chester, and several other open shows, but never again to a half-hearted, half-spirited show like Clapham. Again, when we went to fetch our birds at a little after eight o'clock on the day of the show, hoping to have a look round before taking them away, it was, to say the least of it, a little disappointing to find practically two-thirds of the exhibits removed. No Clapham; next year go for a bold policy, and help to keep things going, and you will be supported. I may say that all the birds I exhibited at Clapham this year were in the cards, so this is not the wail of a disappointed

EXHIBITOR.

SIR,—I noticed a letter in CAGE BIRDS from the Sec. of the Clapham Show, respecting the entries which came up so badly. I think myself that the reason for it was not the paying of prize-money on the sliding scale. I am thinking the chief reason was making the exhibitors deliver and fetch the birds to and from the show. Why the Clapham Society should make that rule I cannot understand; there are many fanciers in London and elsewhere who would have been pleased to have sent their birds to the show by rail, etc., but who were unable to take them personally. I would have sent six entries in Norwich myself, as I have done before, but had to keep them at home, being unable to take them. If an exhibitor cares to trust his or her birds on the rail in such troublesome times as we are witnessing, surely the Clapham Society could have managed to see the birds were collected from off the rail, and if they had done so, I feel sure short entries would not have been the cry. It looks to me as if Clapham have only themselves to blame.

CLUB REPORTS.

PAISLEY O.A.

Annual general meeting Oct. 15. Office-bearers elected. Decided to hold a one-day show of cage birds, all varieties, Jan. 1, 1916. Other societies please note we are holding to our old date, but with Sunday being Jan. 2 we are restricting show to one day. J. Sinclair.

WALLSEND (Mid Tyne) C.B.A.

Meeting held in Station Hotel, Oct. 13. Mr. L. Simpson presided over a record attendance, an attendance which makes one think that the annual show is near, at which we hope all members will give their support to make the show a success. New members elected: Mr. Dixon, South Shields; Mr. Kindness, Byker; Mr. Maddison, Gateshead. Our worthy President, Colonel E. R. Pinkney, is in France, and also we have three members away, also Sergt. D. Newton, Willington Quay; Pte. H. Whittaker, North Shields; and Pte. Craig, Byker. We all wish them a safe return. Two of our members have had a sad loss of all their birds through septic fever. Show business was gone into, and we decided to give 5s. towards each class in addition to entry fees being divided. Show manager and stewards were elected, and from reports to hand everything points to a splendid show.—G. Greenwell, Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting, Church Institute, 60, Paddington St., Oct. 11; Mr. A. W. Curtis, chair, and 24 members present (there were 32 at our last meeting, and not five as stated, Mr. Printer). Letters were read from Mrs. Parry, Messrs. R. L. Crisp, F. Knight, H. Lowe, Mrs. Barker, A. Armstrong, and CAGE BIRDS. The result of the Norwich Plainhead judging competition was:—1, F. J. Martin, 30 points; 2, A. Head, 29; and 3, W. Large and W. Ratcliffe, 26 points. The medals not being yet to hand it was decided to present them at the next meeting. Spl. prizes for the forthcoming annual show were given by Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Parry, Messrs. F. Knight, A. W. Curtis, J. Taylor, F. Day, E. C. Offord, B. Elliot, A. Wingate, and J. Overman.

A cage-making demonstration was given by Mr. A. W. Curtis. His opening remarks were to the effect that his mode of cage-making would take the simplest form possible, so that the merest tyro could grasp every essential feature in its building up, and when finished he would present the cage to the member guessing the correct or nearest number of nails, including screws, that would be used in its making. Voting papers were then handed round and duly collected. The following tools were necessary for the task: A 12in. tenon saw, a 7oz. hammer, with long thin head, two Bradaws, pair cutting pliers, screwdriver, 1in. wood chisel, 2ft. rule, 6in. square, iron smoothing plane, a 20in. by 10in. shooting board, and a carpenter's pencil.

The cage he proposed to make was a single breeder, 18in. by 15in. high, 10ins. deep, and 1in. thickness. Placed upon the table were five pieces of yellow pine wood, a piece of three-ply board, and several long strips, all planed and smoothed both sides. His first step was to measure off on a strip of wood the correct lengths of boards for the top, bottom, and sides, allowed 1in. to overhang the top and bottom boards on three sides, and 1in. for the fixing of the sides. This completed, he set about to measure off the boards, using a square and pencil, and afterwards sawing the lengths off, finishing the square edges with the plane on the shooting board.

Then came the first useful hint, whereby the placing together of the four boards could be accomplished with mathematical accuracy. Fixing a strip of wood by two half-driven nails to both ends of the top and bottom boards 1in. from the end where marked, he explained that this was to rest the two side pieces against until the process of nailing was completed, so that it would be impossible to be fixed out of truth, afterwards taking them (the strips) away altogether.

The next operation was to place the side pieces against the temporary strips, and draw a line on the opposite side for the purpose of piercing nail holes with an awl, so as to appear on the reverse side as a guide to accurate nailing. This finished, Mr. Curtis proceeded to place the four pieces together, keeping all the back parts flush, nailing them with 1in. panel pins, and inserting a 1in. screw at every corner for extra strength. Finding that everything was quite accurate, he then proceeded to nail on the three-ply wood back, after squaring up all the edges, with 1in. panel pins this time. Following this came the front rail, which consisted of a 3in. piece of wood sawn right through at about 2in. width, and which when planed down made the rail for fixing to the cage 2in., and the piece to go in front of the sand-tray about 1in. The rail was fixed 1in. from the bottom by means of a screw and a nail at each end.

Then came the rounding of the four front corners of the cage, executed by a chisel with a knock of the hand, finishing them and all the square edges with a piece of No. 1 glass paper fixed to a 2in. square of wood.

The sand-tray was next to receive attention. Here he cut the board about 1in. smaller, as he considered that space necessary between that and the back. Taking four strips of 1in. wood he nailed them to the extreme edge of the four sides, turning it over, and clinching the nails, turning them in the direction of the grain, and finally nailing on the 1in. strip in front, with a brass screw button in the centre.

The wire cage-front, consisting of a middle sliding door with one cross-bar 15in. by 12in., with two projections top and bottom for fixing, and an inch circular feeding hole at either end, the product of our member, Mr. Palmer, of Slater St., was next fixed in place, requiring accurate measurements to pierce the holes, and when in position it gave a space of a 1in. on three-sides, making it extremely easy to detach.

The last work, and one that Mr. Curtis considered important, was the perches. These two were 1in. square, with the two top edges rounded off with the plane, and afterwards by drawing his saw sideways along the top he gave the roughness so much sought after. Fixing them, 8in. apart, by means of a panel pin driven in, end up side down, to the back of the cage, opposite the centre cross bar, with a slight saw cut and the side edge of the board at the other end to fit the front wire, finished the demonstration.

The cage was then handed round for inspection, and questions asked, whilst the scrutineer was busy with the voting papers. Mr. Hannaford was declared the winner, guessing 86 nails, the actual number used being 84. The demonstration was a brilliant success, Mr. Curtis's skill in the dexterous use of the various tools being highly enjoyed and appreciated. A hearty vote of thanks was afterwards accorded to Mr. Curtis, who suitably replied.—Victor Wynn, Hon. Sec.

HORNSEY, WOOD GREEN C.B.S.

Table show, headquarters, Oct. 5. Considering the early season, entries were very good, 33 birds being staged; the attendance was excellent, several strangers being noticeable (glad to see our old friend, "G. G." put in an appearance)—and the enthusiasm shown speaks well for our coming annual show. After judging Mr. H. Norman gave us a few words on the birds; several questions were asked and answered, and a very pleasant evening came to a close.

SCOTCH FANCY (National Derby)

Annual show, Grand National Hall, Main Street, Goobals, Glasgow, Oct. 9. The hall is one of finest one could wish for, having plenty of light and free from draughts. The secretarial duties were again in the capable hands of Mr. A. M. Baird. Nothing appeared a trouble to him, and he was at the call of any and all who desired information or other matter. He was supported by a good President (Mr. H. D. Brown), and an equally energetic Vice-President (Mr. H. Fleming). Mr. H. Morrison won cup for best bird with an outstanding buff cock, the runner-up being Mr. H. McLennan, with a rare good buff pied hen. The stock of Scotch Fancy Canaries, the property of the late Mr. Geo. Fulton, Partick, a highly respected member of this Association, were sold by auction at the show, and we trust the bidding was good. The show was quite a success, entries coming up well and competition being keen throughout. Messrs. W. Thornton and J. Watson judged, and seemed to give general satisfaction. The gate was good, members turning up in strong force.

YELL. CK. CL. OR FOUL (18): 1, Morrison, grand length of side, well set down on legs, nice top end and thickness, lovely cond.; 2, Gray, great size and subs., nice head and neck; 3, Robertson, scarcely weight of winners, but a good one; 4, Dalglish; 5, Jackson; 6, Fleming; vhc, Muir; he, Main; c, Fulton. PIED OR GR. (10): 1, Brown, nice length of side, lovely style, full of qual., wins;

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

2, Allan, fine size, nice top end, well placed on leg; 3, Dalglish, another good one, nice action; 4, Stewart; 5, McLachlan; 6, Livingston; vhc, Phillips. BUFF CK. CL. CLAPHAM.

The Clapham C.B.A. held its eighth annual show in the Strathblaine Hall, Oct. 14. Entries numbered about two hundred, Norwich and Yorkshire being both well represented by some capital specimens. Special for best bird went to a grand buff Yorks. exhibited by Mr. A. J. Clarke, Mr. Fairman's yellow running him pretty closely. Spl. for best novice Norwich was picked up by Mr. W. H. Gardner, of Peckham, with a nice typical bird. The birds were neatly arranged in the Hall, and the attendance was fairly good. The show committee comprised the following well-known fanciers: Messrs. Allen, Coc, Cooper, Greenland, Maxwell, Phillips, Silverthorne, Vale, Warley, Yeoman, and Madame Feist-Madewell. Mr. Whitmore acted as sec. and carried out the duties in capital style. Messrs. Rorke, Vale, and Fullames judged.

NOR. CL. CK. (7): 1, 3, Hutton, beauties, leader a grand typical bird of good subs., short wings and legs, and A1 qual.; 2, we liked better than the 2nd winner, beautifully proportioned, grand type, with a good head, shade pale in col.; 2, vhc, c, Teasdale, head tld., good size, shade long in wings, very hot col.; 4, Cole, scarcely so bold in head and neck, nice qual. (3): 1, 2, Madame Madewell, Masked Doves, a bit soft, and nice white pair; 3, no name. We regret that our reporter's notes on the Crest and Light Mule classes have been mislaid.

COVENTRY.

Coventry O.S. held its 30th annual open show at Headquarters, the Sydenham Palace, Lower Ford Street, Oct. 16. The room is a fine one for a show, being lofty, well lighted, and free from draught. The society held the show a little earlier than in previous years. This, however, did not affect the entry; in fact, entries were a little over last year in number. An unfortunate occurrence happened with respect to Messrs. Wilson's, Jeffreys', and Mrs. Dalton's birds, all coming from a long distance. The earliest of them did not turn up till 4.30 in the afternoon, the others at 5. The classes were kept open, and the judge waited until one o'clock. Otherwise, everything went off well. The president, Mr. G. Peters, having joined the R.A.M.C., had left Coventry, and was not able to be present. A fair number of sales took place in the limit classes. The management was in the hands of the following, most of whom are well-known exhibitors: Vice-presidents, T. Gilbert and A. J. Smith; treas., J. Corral; auditors, G. Turrell, H. Mann; show stewards, H. Butler, H. Bell, G. Lawrence, W. Rowley, H. Spann, H. Thompson, T. Judd; hon. sec., A. Green. Judges, Mr. J. T. Trengove, Cnaries; Mr. W. H. Raven, the remainder, their awards giving general satisfaction.

CITY OF BRADFORD.

35th annual show held in the Faversham Street Council Schools, Oct. 16. The entry of 313 did not come quite up to expectation, but still was the best so far this year. Quality was of the best and several of the winners will hold their own all through the show season. The most notable feature was the large number of entries in the hen classes, five classes having an average of 17—very strong for so early in the season. The room is an ideal one for a show, having plenty of good light and being free from draughts. The society have in Mr. W. Heniwell one of the best secretaries, and he got through his work in a very businesslike manner. He was ably assisted by the following stewards: Messrs. Pownall, Borton, Wood, Airton, Simcock, Bower, McEwen, Brown, Ludbrook, Cran-cross, who took an equal share of all the work which is connected with a show of this description. The prize money was paid out in the room to all the prize winners who attended. The gate was very good, and this would help to make the show a success. The packing and sending away of the exhibits was got through without a hitch, and the society must feel proud to have such a splendid lot of workers. The judge, Mr. A. Birst, Accrington, got through his work in good time and seemed to give general satisfaction.

HANLEY.

The Hanley C.B.S. held its ninth annual show at the Angel Hotel, on Oct. 14. The room is a very good one, well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries were somewhat disappointing, nine classes having to be cancelled. Norwich had seven classes, but only three stood, these containing 24 entries—just enough for one decent class—but several real good birds were benched, which were a credit to their owners. Yorks. were a little more numerous, and some excellent specimens were on view. In the Mule section the noted light Can. Bullie White Rose put in an appearance and attracted much attention. British were a nice lot, but we should have liked to see more of them. The committee worked very hard to achieve success, and it was certainly no fault of the Secretary that the enterprise was not better rewarded. Mr. C. Beckett filled this important position with credit to himself and to the society. Mr. J. Robson judged.

WARRINGTON.

The Warrington C.B.S. held its twentieth Annual Show on Oct. 15 and 16, in the Cairo-st. Schools. The room is admirably adaptable for a cage bird show, being well lighted and entirely free from draughts. The Society is also fortunate in having the three-tier system of staging, whereby the maximum number of exhibits may be staged in the minimum of room, having plenty of space for the visitors. A splendid classification was provided for all sections, but some classes had to be cancelled. All the Norwich champion classes had to go, as had five of the novice classes, in addition to three novice Yorkshire classes. Several of the British classes also went. One factor which undoubtedly led to this wholesale cancelling was the early entry-closing date, the Friday previous to show. Fanciers are used to the practice of looking over their stock on Sundays to see which birds to show the week following; and it takes something to shift the average fancier from practices to which he has become accustomed. But the officials informed us they had no choice in the matter owing to the demands of the printer, who refused to entertain the order for catalogues except on his own terms, because he was short-handed owing to enlistments. The Secretary had no option but to return a great number of entries at the beginning of the week, because of the printer's demands, and the Society ask the indulgence of disappointed fanciers, and beg their support in the future when the European black cloud has passed away.

Border Fancies turned up well, and were so even in quality that the judge put on a few wrinkles in endeavouring to sort out the best. We noticed that Mr. Large selected those which conformed most to the standard. He dislikes a chest on a Border, and only in very rare instances did he select a bird which looked too much like a miniature Norwich, and then only when the bird outshone its opponents in every other point. They were consistently good and representative of all parts of the country and of Scotland. Many prizes went to the North Country cracks, Messrs. Shackley, Wilson, Nicholson, Nelson, Bennett, Higgin, Coldbeck and Johnstone staging some beauties. British and hybrids were a nice lot. There was an exceptionally fine class of Linnets and of Lesser Redpolls. Messrs. S. T. Oldham, Whitney, Rothwell, Fairhurst and Clare led in these classes. The management was extra. The Secretary, Mr. Warburton, worked hard to make the show a success, and he was ably assisted by the past secretary, Mr. J. M. Nelson, who knows show work from A to Z and back again. They were assisted by some hard-working fanciers, who were not downhearted, and who intend to come up smiling again next year. The judges were H. W. Battye, Norwich and Yorks.; Geo. Large, Borders; and J. D. Leigh, British and Hybrids. The exhibits of Messrs. Parlett and Cooper arrived too late to be judged.

YORCS. YELL. CK. Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must be written on separate sheets of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—Queries received during any week, up to the first post on Saturday morning, will be answered in the issue bearing date of Saturday in the following week.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for sixpence must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Refugees' Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

PROTRACTED MOULTING (J. B. Belfast).—The cause of such prolonged moulting is that you either have the bird in a draughty position, or where the temperature is violently fluctuating. Either of these exciting causes must be removed before you can hope to cure the effects. See that the bird is kept in a fairly comfortable place, not necessarily overheated, but quite free from direct cold draughts, and as equable as you can manage it, and do not by any means allow it to hang near or over burning lights in the evenings. Having attended to these points, give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give separately every second day for the next month a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, and broken groats. Give a plantain stalk or a few seed heads of shepherd's-purse daily. Add to the drinking water 20 drops of chemical food every second day during the same time. Allow bird to bathe three times a week if it will do so voluntarily, but do not spray it.

THE BEST THING (G. R. Mason).—Candidly, the best thing to do with a Canary only two years old which is already in the advanced bronchial condition yours appears to be in, is to mercifully end its career and its sufferings at the same time. It would be folly to attempt to breed with it. You may try the following treatment for a month or two, but I much fear no really permanent cure can be effected. Keep in a comfortable and equable place, which need not be overheated, but must be quite free from direct cold draughts. In addition to the staple seed diet give every third day for a fortnight a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the intervening days give first a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, white millet, and linseed, and next either a morsel of banana or a spray of watercress, or some similar green salad. In the drinking water for three consecutive days add six drops of syrup of rhuibar and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after this give instead five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, tincture of lobelia, and sweet spirit of nitre. At the end of a fortnight stop all medicines and extra food items for a fortnight, and then resume them and give a fortnight's course as before. Suspend them again for a fortnight, and then resume, and continue thus until the bird has had four fortnightly courses.

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Batty's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Parrot," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

CRAVING FOR FOOD (G. B. S.).—A great craving for food is not necessarily a sign of disease; it may be indicative of nothing more serious than a gross appetite. All birds do not consume a similar amount of food, even when of the same variety and similar in size; one will grow inordinately fat upon an amount of food which would literally mean a starvation diet for another. If your birds nibble and waste the seed, that is another matter, and they are probably suffering from some digestive derangements, which the following course of treatment should remove. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give separately every second day for a fortnight a morsel of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut sprinkled with soft sugar, and on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, and half these proportions of maw and gold of pleasure. Give a small spray of watercress or some other green salad daily. A cube of hard common salt stuck in the wires for them to peck at when they like would also prove beneficial. In the drinking water every second day for a week add six drops of syrup of buckthorn and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and every second day for a fortnight afterwards give instead five drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid.

A SUITABLE MATE (Mule).—I take it that your object is to try to work up a Sib. strain for light Mule breeding from the hen that has thrown pied Mules from Linnets this season. If this surmise is correct, as the bird does not appear to have been inbred previously, I would strongly advise you to mate her if possible next season with one of her own sons, choosing for the purpose first of all the strongest and largest bird available, and if he also has plenty of colour so much the better. You do not mention the colour of the hen, but you may use the cock I suggest irrespective of yellow or buff colour, although if the hen is a yellow it would be an advantage to have a buff cock, so if you can have choice of either colour in birds equally suitable in all other respects then select the buff. Test all the hens from this mating the following season, and keep all that show any greater tendency to throw light Mules for future breeding on the above lines. You would also do well to try the hen in question next season with the same Linnets, after she has had one or two nests of pure Canaries.

ANOTHER LONG MOULT (R. McDonald).—See reply to "J. B. Belfast," in this issue and treat your bird accordingly. It is not unlikely that your bird is also troubled with red mite attacks, which causes it to do so much scratching. Examine the cage thoroughly to see if this is the case, and if so see they are exterminated as you may have seen advised to "E. C." in our issue of Oct. 2. The addition of twelve drops of fluid magnesia to the drinking water every second day for a week will do much to allay the irritation.

THE CINNAMON PUZZLE (Cinny).—I think there can be no doubt that you either overlooked or did not know how to look for the pink colour of the eye in your birds, as the breeding of cinnamon-marked young from a cinnamon hen from a clear cock is sufficient proof that he had a certain percentage of cinnamon blood in his veins, and undoubtedly had the pink eye had you looked for it properly. The pink colour is not at all noticeable in adult birds, in which it is often necessary to hold the bird so that the light is refracted at a certain angle before the pink hue is seen very clearly. You should be quite able to produce cinnamon-marked cocks from a clear pink-eyed cock mated to a cinnamon-marked hen, or vice-versa, or from two lightly cinnamon-marked birds. The only essential is that you must have cinnamon blood, more or less, in the cock as well as the hen. There should be no difficulty at all in this, as the Yorkshire of to-day is so permeated with cinnamon blood that it is more of a difficulty to get a bird quite free from any trace of it.

LUMPS ON WINGS (Dangle).—The substances you describe are abnormal feather growths which may be easily removed by putting on ligatures of thread or silk. You will doubtless find that they narrow off with a kind of neck next the skin. Around this narrow part tie a piece of thread or silk, drawing it fairly tight, and knot it securely, cut off ends of thread close to knots, and leave the rest to nature. In the course of a week or so you will find the substances wither, and ultimately drop off, leaving no ill effect behind. It would do no harm to add twelve drops of fluid magnesia to the water every second day for a week. No other medical treatment is really necessary.

WHEEZE AND SNAFFLE (Irooper, Stretford).—See that the bird is not exposed to cold draughts, which is probably the cause of its condition. Keep in a fairly warm place, where the temperature is fairly equable, but do not hang it near or over burning lights in the evenings. Then, in addition to its staple seed diet, give a morsel of bread and milk with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre. The cessation of song may very probably be due to the moulting commencing, in which case it will not resume until the moulting is finished.

A. STRICK.—Replied to by post.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

A REDPOLL AND OTHERS (Anxious).—No matter how good a bird may be, if he crosses his wings it is sure to tell against him when on the show bench. If he only crosses them occasionally, it would not make much difference, as most birds are inclined to do it at times. Perhaps in looking over his points you have rather exaggerated the failing in wing carriage; anyway, if he is good otherwise I would advise you to give him a chance. (2) A pale blue background would suit your bird admirably, or a dark holly-green if he is not very rich in colour. Perhaps you could paint a couple of pieces of card or wood the two colours and fit them in the backs of cages and see which suits the bird best. (3) With most judges a good natural-coloured bird stands an equal chance with a fed one. (4) The same remark applies to this question. Size, condition and shape are of more importance than colour.

WHICH HAS THE BEST SONG? (James A. Oldham).—Of the two birds mentioned, the Thrush is the most continuous singer, but his notes are not nearly so mellow as the Blackbird's. Of the two, the latter is my favourite. His song is scarcely so cheerful as the Thrush's, but it is much richer and, to my mind, far more musical. Both these birds have their masterful performers, and occasionally one hears an exceptionally good one, whereas others are scarcely worth listening to, so if you fail to get a good one the first time, give him his liberty and try again.

RARE HYBRIDS (W. F. Holgate).—The Yellow Bunting-Canary has not yet been produced to the satisfaction of bird experts, although from time to time someone claims to have bred them. (2) Yes, I have heard of more than one case of Mules having bred, but not among themselves. It has been with a bird of the parent stock; that is, a Canary Mule paired to a Canary.

CLEAR MULE (J. Parnell).—I am pleased to hear of your success and hope you will do well with your bird on the bench. Do not be disappointed if he should not be as large as some of the others, as Mules grow a great deal between the first and second moult. The shape of the beak should assist you in identification—not the colour of it. If you feel confident, do not take too much notice of your Canary friend's remarks. Let a recognised judge see it on the show bench. He will soon tell you if it is genuine or not.

WHAT BIRD? (Dawdon).—By your description I should say your bird is a hen Blackstart. These birds are winter visitors to these shores. They nest on the Continent, being quite common in the Swiss valleys. It should be fed on a good brand of insectile food and insects.

MANAGEMENT OF LINNET (Determined).—I can quite understand your feelings, and have every sympathy for you, especially as you appear to be giving your bird every attention. In looking over your method of feeding, it seems to me that you are giving rather too much rape and linseed, and I think you will find the following mixture suit your bird better: Canary 3 parts, teazle 2 parts, rape, charlock, and linseed 1 part each. Continue the wild seeds, and about 3 days a week give a little lightly cracked hemp and a little gold of pleasure. If he is dull, dissolve in 2 table-spoonsful of water as much Glauber salts as will cover a threepenny piece, and add 3 drops of syrup of rhuibar. Give him a pinch of common salt occasionally on his sand. Respecting books, have you had our Nutshell on the Linnet? If not, I would advise you to get it.

VARIOUS QUESTIONS (N. V. Charles).—I am glad to hear your Blackbird is improving. It will, of course, take some little time to get quite sound, especially just now during the moulting period. If you are fond of birds and have the room, why not erect a small aviary in your garden and keep a few of the hardy Finches in it? They would do there both winter and summer. You could then, if you felt disposed, have both cocks and hens in it. If you made a cage you could keep half-a-dozen cocks in one about 3ft. long, but you would not be able to breed in it. For this purpose you would require separate cages for each pair. It is not a good plan to stand a cage in the open window of a room; it is generally a draughty position, and birds easily take cold.

BUILDING AVIARY (Boy).—Your plan appears to be quite all right, but I would suggest that you either enlarge the opening to the inside flight or make it very light by means of a good-sized window, or you will find that many of the birds will never return to the inside place once they get in the open. Vegetation of any kind in an aviary is sure to be pecked by the birds. Cannot you manage to have some of the ivy over the roof to take off the bareness of the building? (2) I would advise you to have a cock Linnets or Siskin in place of one of the Greenfinches, then I see no reason why you should not succeed, anyway, in getting Mules, if not the rarer Hybrids.

BREEDING LINNET MULES (C. Cumberland).—With your Linnets you should only attempt to pair one hen Canary, as the Linnets does not, as a rule, breed freely with more than one hen. If you can get a good stout Norwich hen, yellow if possible, you cannot do better, although they are frequently bred from other varieties, Yorkshires, etc. Your cage will do admirably. As soon as you get your birds, let them fly together all the winter, so as to be quite chummy in the spring.

TAMING A BULLFINCH (Mrs. Essor).—I have read your letter with great interest, and it is pleasing to know you think well of our paper. I think where you made a mistake in trying to tame your bird was in handling it before it was really steady. All birds dislike being handled, and the wilder they are, the more they dislike it. If you place the hemp seed on your hand I have no doubt he will soon perch on the finger to get it, of course, commencing by offering it between the fingers, which perhaps you have already done. After a time he would let you touch him, and so by easy stages you may accomplish all you want. It takes some time for birds to lose their natural nervousness and to become quite trusting.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

AILING PARROT (R.I.H.).—By all means give the magnesia in the water daily if such be necessary to keep the bowels moving freely; but for one day, in lieu of the cod liver oil emulsion, put five drops of tasteless castor oil on the sponge cake and repeat the dose a fortnight hence. In all other respects treat as already advised. Allow this bird as much fruit as it will eat, also pieces of bread and crusts. There is no need to give sunflower to any extent, as canary seed, oats, hemp and sunflower seeds will suffice. As it is rather thin, encourage it to eat heartily; it can have all kinds of nuts, but Brazil nuts should be given very sparingly. I again emphasise the need of keeping the bowels moving freely, even if you have to give the laxative daily; the cod liver oil emulsion should assist in strengthening the bird. Also as much as your leisure permits entertain it and play with it at intervals, as the activity will certainly be good for it. Ago usually manifests itself by the legs becoming very scaly, and the scales being hard and horny. Putting all your details together there is evidently an improvement in the bird, and if you persevere with the treatment the tendency to constipation should gradually pass, but you must watch closely against it and resort to the laxative whenever it appears. All the items of diet you name are wholesome, and the bird can be allowed to eat heartily of them all. If there should be further adverse bowel trouble you had better write again at once, giving as full details as you can. His cage should be kept in a light and airy position, but where it will be free from draught, and the temperature of any living room will suffice. Get a packet of Parrot grit and put a pinch on the top of its seed daily.

SENEGAL PARROT AND MELBA FINCHES (L.A.W.).—(1) Keep a piece of cuttlebone in its cage continually, give it pieces of arrowroot biscuit at intervals during the day, and lightly colour its drinking-water with chemical food during the day. Also mix a teaspoonful of cornflour stiffly with boiled milk, let it stand for a couple of hours, and then supply to the bird. You must see that the bowels should move quite freely, but the excreta should not be watery loose. (2) A: Yes, but they will not take any harm from partaking of milk sop, soft food and fruit if these are supplied for the other inmates of the aviary. B: It is the cold, wet periods that cause the risk, and I consider Melba Finches are better in the bird-room during the winter period, unless your aviary is so constructed that the birds can be easily driven into the shelter daily at dusk and shut up for the night, and also during very severe periods in the day time. Of course, on all dry genial days they could enjoy the flight, say, from 11 a.m. (or earlier) to 3 p.m. However, unless your shelter is light enough and large enough to make good quarters for your birds for possibly a week at a stretch, you had better put half-hardy species in the birdroom for the winter and leave the others outside to follow their own bent. C: Melbas have made many good attempts to reproduce their kind during recent years, but till this summer complete success has not been attained. One young bird has been successfully reared and at the present time is doing well. If you have husks, rush nests and sundry boxes and small barrels about in your shelter, the usual nesting material will suffice, whether the choice of a site be in the shelter or open flight.

GREY PARROT ILL (Mrs. Ruston).—Keep the bird in your warmest room, and in the snugest, but not stuffy corner. Give of the cold mixture (ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts), half a teaspoonful daily in the drinking-water (the latter to consist of two table-spoonsful, few Parrots consume more or all of this quantity) till the trouble yields; also bathe or spray its nostrils with a dilute solution of glycerine, and put a little honey and borax in the mouth daily; you can easily administer the latter from the end of a stick, which, placed by its beak, is readily bitten and played with and the mixture then taken, or it can be lightly spread on a dry crust or piece of biscuit. Cease giving the milk pudding, but give the bird daily 10 drops of cod liver oil emulsion on a piece of sponge cake or anything similar the bird will eat. You must keep its bowels moving freely (there must not be a state of continuous diarrhoea), if necessary, by giving two or three drops of tasteless castor oil on a piece of plain cake, etc. Treat as above for a few weeks, and then report progress. You have, however, let it get into quite a bad state before asking advice.

BRITISH MUSEUM CATALOGUE, ETC. (H. Holden).—(1) There are over twenty vols. of the B.M.C. (Birds), and the price varies from 17s. to 28s. per vol., according to size and also number of coloured plates. (2) The Guide to the Zoological Gardens is 6d. paper cover, cloth 1s.; the lists of animals, birds, etc., in the menagerie are published periodically and the price is usually 4s. 6d., the last was published in 1896, I think, though small monthly lists of additions are published. All are obtainable at the Society's office, Regent's Park, London, N.W., or any other information concerning them.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

J. W. Walters.—Acute inflammation of the bowels brought about by irritant poison.

Novice.—Apoplexy of the lungs following congestion. The bird was too plethoric, the liver was enlarged and congested. Probably your diet is too liberal; the sample enclosed was quite good. Feed your birds more sparingly, and give a saline aperient in the drinking water occasionally.

Maurice Metcalfe.—Death from exhaustion following inflammation of the bowels, brought about by ptomaines or poisons generated in the food.

J. M. Knight.—Pneumonia, not quite the same condition as the Bullfinch succumbed to. The diseases are quite distinct, and not of serious import to your remaining birds.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once, 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

ALL . . .*SCOTCH.

Our artist depicts a trio of the particular, and, to some minds, peculiar, Canary which is the chief delight of hundreds of fanciers in bonny Scotland. On the left is a clear bird (i.e., free from markings), in the centre a foul-marked, and on the right a self-green. The outstanding feature of the breed is its peculiar pose; the drooping head, the "humped" shoulders, the straight, taut legs, and the incurved tail. As much as £100 has been paid for an exceptionally good pair of Scots Fancy Canaries.

F. CARL, Publisher, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. No acknowledgment of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

THINK THIS OVER

So confident am I in the superiority of my goods over any others on the market, that I invite all intending purchasers to have anything on approval, and if they find it is not exactly as described or in any way not satisfactory they are at liberty to smash it up or destroy it in any way they like, and I will refund every penny of their money without question or comment. Clap nets, made from 60s 3-ply superfine thread netting, 3inch mesh, 3 yards long, 5ft. deep, 4ft. fly, 5/- pair; ditto, 4 yards 6/-, 5 yards 7/-, 6 yards 8/-, 7 yards 9/-, 8 yards 10/-, 9 yards 11/-, 10 yards 12/- per pair. All clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, each net guaranteed to be exact measurement as above, and all are fitted complete with all pegs, poles and pull lines, ready for immediate setting. Loose thread netting knitted specially for bird catching, as used in above nets, 7ft. deep 3yd. yard, ditto, 9ft. deep, 4yd. yard, ditto, 12ft. deep, 5yd. yard, post free. Real Italian hemp pull lines, specially spun without snarl, and strong as boat lines, 68 yards long, 1/9 post free. Genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed to hold any bird that flies, stands all weathers, and specially good in fog or drizzle, 7d. lb., 1/- lb., 1/8 lb., sample 4d., all post free. Bird brace swivels, three 3d., twelve 6d., post free. Flirt pegs and lines, 6d. each, post free. Double flirt pegs, 9d. each, post free. Penny tin drinkers, 9d. dozen, three dozen 2/-, 5/- gross. Zinc drinkers, same size, 1/- dozen, three dozen 2/6, 7/- gross. Kindly note, all the leading professional birdcatchers purchase their appliances from me, so follow their lead and patronise the man who really knows what is required for successful bird-catching.
W. CORE, COOCH STREET, BIRMINGHAM.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing his receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned of the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

A Guaranteed Circulation amongst 50,000 readers weekly

Offices: 154, FLEET STREET, LONDON, E.C.
Telegrams—"Aviculture, London." Tel. No. 5229 Holborn.

The Editor is always glad to receive and consider suitable contributions, whether articles, sketches, or photographs. Provided an addressed envelope, sufficiently stamped, accompanies same, every effort will be made to return unaccepted contributions promptly, but he does not in any case hold himself responsible for their safety.

All matter intended for publication must be written or typed on one side of paper only, and must reach us not later than the first post on Tuesday if insertion in the next issue is desired.

Twitterings.

In our report of Lochgelly show, the name of the owner of 1st and 2nd in the Bramblefinch or Chaffinch class was omitted. Both birds belonged to Mr. Sykes.

We hear that a Cage Bird Society is being formed for Aberdare (Glamorgan). Particulars may be obtained from the hon. sec., Mr. W. Walker, 6, Lambert Terrace, Aberdare.

All prize-money was paid by Oct. 20 in connection with the Warrington and Dis. C.B. Society show on Oct. 15-16, writes Mr. H. Warburton, Hon. Sec.

The quarterly balance-sheet of the City and Suburban A.C.B. is to hand. The figures show a very satisfactory credit balance of £26 11s 6d., £19 18s 8d. of which has been invested in the purchase of £20 War Loan Bonds, a patriotic and profitable method of employing surplus cash.

Should any Roller Fanciers have forgotten the Midland Roller contest at Wolverhampton, Nov. 4, 5, writes Mr. J. W. Thomson, 9, Gorsebrook-rd., Wolverhampton, a schedule will be sent by return of post. Guaranteed prize money, no cancelling of classes, and there is the most generous schedule ever offered to Roller fanciers.

As we were going to press we received from the hon. sec. a message that entries at Manchester show number 850. We believe this a record for this season's shows.

We hear that prize-money has been paid in respect of Liverpool show. Any winner who has not received payment should write to the hon. secs., Messrs. Metcalfe and Green.

The London and Counties A.C.B. is holding its autumn show Nov. 6 at Victoria Hotel, Charterhouse Street, E.C. Train, buses and trams within one minute's walk; judge, Mr. W. Shakespeare; admission will be twopence.

Intending exhibitors at Sheffield O.S. show can with safety send their exhibits to Cheltenham, writes Mr. E. C. Job, hon. sec. Sheffield O.S., as the secretary has arranged to send all such exhibits off early on Thursday to Sheffield.

Mr. H. Hibbert writes that the awards in the unlighted yellow Yorkshire class at Warrington should read 1 Henderson and Crosby, 2 Dykes, 3 Harrison, 4 Hibbert, not 1 Henderson and Crosby, 2 Hibbert, 3 Dykes, 4 Harrison, as printed in our report.

Our annual members' show is fixed for Nov. 20, Mr. F. Gregory, of Sheffield, will judge, writes Mr. J. W. Dean, sec., Wombwell B.F.S. We are giving the proceeds to the Wombwell Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Association for providing comforts for those on service.

Messrs. Greaves and Richards write as follows:—"Kindly inform show secretaries and all readers of your valuable journal that the partnership of Messrs. Greaves and Richards, breeders and exhibitors of Norwich Plainheads, has now ceased. All letters, etc., should now be forwarded to Mr. Henry Greaves, 88, Richard Street, Mardy, Glam."

OBITUARY.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. C. J. Olding, sec. Portsmouth and Southern Counties C.B.S., that we have to announce the death of Mrs. Lockhart, the wife of our worthy treasurer. Mrs. Lockhart will be missed by all who knew her in connection with our late shows.

The Liverpool Open Show Society, writes Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, Secs., beg to tender sincere thanks for eight leather purses to hand as special prizes for non-fed Siskins at Show, Oct. 22 and 23.

We have added 5 classes for British at our show on Dec. 18, writes Mr. J. Stewart, hon. sec. Whitehaven F.S., viz., Goldfinch, Linnet (h.m.), Linnet (f.m.), Siskin, Redpoll, or Twite, and A.O.V. seed-eater less than Hawfinch.

I am pleased to say, writes Mr. Rukin, Hon. Sec., that the Lancashire and Lizard F.A. have arranged to have Lancashire and Lizard classes in connection with Ardwick and Manchester C.B.S. show, Nov. 13, and with Rochdale O.S. members' show, Dec. 4. Members kindly keep these dates open.

Mr. R. J. Pretty, chairman of the Watford C.B.S., informs us that a special general meeting of the society will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 3, at 8.15, at the Kingham Institute, St. Alban's-road, to consider a proposition to rescind the resolution, passed at the last meeting, cancelling the open show of Oct. 8 and 9, as it is quite possible that arrangements may be made to obviate the necessity of giving up the show.

The many friends of Mr. John Swallow, of Oldham, the well-known Lancashire breeder and exhibitor, writes Mr. John Rukin, will be sorry to hear of his being seriously ill. I have had a letter from his daughter, in which she tells me he has gone through a very painful operation. I am pleased to hear that he is doing fairly well since his operation, but is suffering very much pain. His friends will join me in wishing him an early and speedy recovery.

Kindly allow me to say, writes Mr. J. W. Thornton, Hon. Sec. Hartlepool C.B.S., that we always collect exhibits from the station and take them there again after the show. Last show we had all birds at the station and all cleared away by eight o'clock, and we hope to do the same this year. We will try to get the birds home soon, so let us hope exhibitors will get their entries in soon. I have had close on 100 applications for schedules since the insertion of our advert in CAGE BIRDS. We will take entries till Monday's first post.

Remarkable Hybrids.

Writing in reference to the portrait of his Hawfinch which appeared on the front page of our Oct. 23 issue, Mr. J. B. Caunt says "I lay claim to its being the father of two Hawfinch-Bullfinch Hybrids, which, unfortunately for me, died in the nest at about five days old."

Sharp Work Indeed.

Prize-money has been paid out to successful exhibitors in connection with our open show, Oct. 23, writes Mr. J. W. Read, sec., Newcastle C.B.S., in a letter dated the day after the show.

Our Front Page Drawings.

To Exhibitors at Chester Show.

Mr. L. Cavanagh, hon. sec. Chester C.B.S., wishes us to make it known that exhibitors may have their birds held over until the Monday, if they will express their desire to that effect on their entry forms.

An Open Show for "Wee Gems."

An open show for Border Fancies only will be held in Edinburgh on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, the dates usually occupied by the Scottish National show. Particulars are given in our Club Reports column.

Non-fed Siskins at Liverpool.

As there were only two non-fed Siskins at Liverpool Show, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, hon. secs., we shall be glad if the donor of the eight purses will kindly advise us what to do with the remaining six.

Canaries all the Year Round.

In Mr. J. Norman's garden aviary at Carshalton three fine young Canaries have just been hatched. One of them is an exceptionally large bird, and the others are strong and healthy. These have been reared without the usual egg food, simply on seeds and green food, or whatever the old birds could find for their babies. The aviary is a large one, the roof being all wire, consequently the only shelter the birds have had has been among the shrubs and ivy. With anything like decent weather another brood, or perhaps two, should be due before Christmas.

Southern Yorks C.C. Patronage.

It has been decided to give patronage this year to the societies who have applied for same, viz., Champion, Plymouth, London and P.O.S., Cheltenham, Cardiff; novice, London and P.O.S., and Cardiff. The challenge cup will not be competed for this season. The trophy specials will be No. 1, £2 2s.; No. 2, £1 1s.; No. 3, 10s. 6d., and No. 4, 5s. The late Mr. Easterling's cup will be in competition, also Mr. W. G. Elsmore's for unfledged birds. Specials Nos. 7 and 8 in champion, and Nos. 5 and 6 in novice will be deleted. Subscriptions that were paid last year will count for this year.

"Please thank all who replied to my advert. I really could not reply to them all."—HY. JELLEY (Penygraig).

"Please thank all who wrote me re Linnet and Linnet Mules advertised in your last issue. There were far too many for me to reply to all." F. J. WICKHAM (Chatham).

Four More Half-Crowns Going.

In our issue of Oct. 16 we offered a half-crown each for experiences with Canaries, Mules, British Birds, and Foreign Birds. We scarcely know whether to say we are glad or sorry to gather that half-crowns do not seem to be greatly in demand in these times, for the response was by no means equal to what we expected. In piping times of peace similar invitations to our readers have resulted in the receipt by us of quite an embarrassing number of replies, and we think many readers must have overlooked the proposition.

For this reason, therefore, we once again offer four half-crowns, one each for experiences with Canaries, Mules, British Birds, and Foreign Birds. Send us a short account, not to exceed 400 words, of anything interesting. It may be a little story of some happening, some useful and timely advice, some practical instructions as to the keeping of birds, whether in regard to housing or feeding, or anything which may occur to you as likely to be of advantage to your fellow-readers of CAGE BIRDS. The only stipulation is that your effort be accompanied by the coupon which will be found on this page, and two other coupons cut from copies of the same date. The spare copies will be useful for friends who may not yet be readers of CAGE BIRDS. Envelopes should be endorsed "Competition," should be addressed "The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C." and should reach us not later than Tuesday morning, Nov. 2. The Editor's decision as to the best contributions will be final.

The winners of the four half-crowns offered in the first competition are as below, and their winning efforts will be found on page 191 of this issue:

Canaries—J. Fenwick, 66, Rochdale Rd., Shaw.

Mules—J. Grimshaw, Westgate, Hale.

British—C. Burrows, 20, Payton St., Stratford-on-Avon.

Foreign—Miss Mayda Crawley, 11, Connaught Place, East Sheen, S.W.

ITS SHOW POINTS, AND HOW TO BREED FOR THEM.

In this lecture, given before the members of the Southampton C.B.S., Mr. G. Gamble gives the result of more than twenty years' experience with "The Bird of Length and Position." All the points necessary in a show bird of the highest class are described, and valuable hints are given as to the selection of pairs for breeding exhibition specimens.

THE tail should be long and straight, and its feathers so nicely packed as to appear to be just two feathers side by side, one overlapping the other, and if this stands out firmly in line with the body you have a tail in accordance with the standard.

All these little items go to make up what is termed an ideal or typical Yorkshire. If such a bird stands upon a pair of fairly long legs, which are thin, show a nicely feathered thigh, grip the perch close together, and are nearly straight, and, further, if the length of the bird is about 6½ inches, the feather close-fitting, of good quality, and everywhere clean and in condition, you have an exhibition specimen of no mean quality.

Should Colour Count?

There is one particular which the standard ignores, but which seems to me to be of very great moment, and that is depth of colour. I do not say it ought or ought not to count, but I venture to think that after position, a good colour is a very striking point, and often decides what would otherwise be a very difficult matter. We know that the colour of a Yorkshire scarcely ever compares with a highly-fed Norwich (15 points), but I certainly think this point of beauty should be given some credit.

I have tried to point out what we want in a perfect Yorkshire, but how to obtain it is far more difficult. The long and short of it is, we must pair our birds in such a manner as to counteract any bad points in one by the same points being particularly good in the other. If a bird is bad in position, but good otherwise, select a partner especially prominent in position; should the head be too small, pair with a large-headed bird; if flat, give for a partner one with a high forehead, and so on.

I spoke of some of the best birds being inclined to open chest, and perhaps frilled in neck. This usually happens to sharp pointed-breasted birds, and the remedy is to pair to birds with a round full chest—too much chest to look smart, but which is a necessity to obviate open chests in the offspring. If one bird has too much shoulder, or is too short in body to please you, pair with one having these characteristics entirely opposite.

The same with a short-legged or over long-legged bird; pair with the opposite, although one seldom gets Yorkshires with too much leg. They do come at times with legs that, when standing upright, show the knee as a Belgian often does—that is, with the knee to the front instead of to the back, and it looks ugly. We certainly don't want it. Everything resolves on our selection of mates, always remembering that faults are as difficult to breed out, or more so, as good points are to fix.

Size and quality do not, as a rule, run together, and if you are able to pair two birds of at least the standard length, 6½ inches, you are more likely to breed birds of corresponding size. Hens as a rule do not come up to that length, and so you necessarily have recourse to a large, i.e., long cock to balance, but whichever way you pair, always keep in mind the fact that the progeny are apt to be smaller than the parent birds, and that as length plays so important a part we cannot for a moment afford to lose sight of it.

The Importance of Feather.

With feather, too, we know that some birds are short and others long; some are loose-feathered, while others are so tight as to appear as though the feathers were fixed firmly to their bodies, not a feather hanging loosely or out of place, described by reporters of shows as being "like boxwood." This is the description of feather we want, called by one of our most prominent breeders "hard"; like the feathers clothing our Game Bantams. Others say we require feather of a soft, silky texture; but call it by what name you like, we certainly do not want an over-abundance of loose hanging body feather, but a covering fitting perfectly, every feather shining. While we require a short body feather, however, we want in the wings and tail feathers as long as possible.

We have been told many times that a poor specimen of a good strain is likely to do more for us than a good-looking bird of a poor strain, and many people have cheerfully paid good prices for a name, and a mongrel looking pair, in the full belief that they would produce something good, as the former owner had the best strain in the Fancy. There may be some truth in the strain business, but I am firmly convinced that unless you have face value as well you are to a very great extent being taken in. Give me face value first, and I am willing to chance the remainder.

Face Value an Asset.

If you carefully note the birds and their progeny, you will see many points of similarity between parents and young, and that leads me to the belief that in almost every case you should go for face value first. Get them from a prominent breeder, by all means, and as cheaply as you can, but see that purchased birds answer your requirements. If you require a long bird to bring size don't be misled by buying one supposed to have been bred from large parents, although itself a bit small; have a big bird or none at all. My experience is that in almost all cases the birds bred do not excel in length their parents; so be careful in this most vital point, always remembering that a good long one is better than the best of short ones.

But, again, do not do as I did for some time after starting, that is, continually pair the largest cocks to the largest hens. If you do, you will get size in abundance, but with it coarseness, rough feather, and thick legs. If you can manage to keep most of your birds show size, with a few more lengthy birds, you will be on the right path.

I do not think I need say anything about the care of birds during the breeding season, but a few words referring to the training of a Yorkshire may not be out of place, especially as the show season is only just commencing.

It is as well, I think, on making up our minds which of our birds appear to us as being worthy to grace the show bench, if we put them in such a position as to see us, or anyone coming to our rooms as soon as they enter. I mean in a prominent position, so that they get used to persons looking at and handling them, and it is as well also to give them some training, such as running them into a show cage and scratching the bottom to make them fearless and used to handling.

The Show Cage at Home.

Leaving them in the show cage occasionally for an hour or so is a good practice, and one likely to get them steady, and to do away with the nervousness so noticeable with some birds. If you hang the show cage on the front of your stock cage and let the birds enter and leave at will, it gets them used to it, and generally they will, with a little coaxing enter at your desire, and after a few times they get steady and in many cases appear to relish the idea of being talked to and made much of.

A good plan to make the birds stretch themselves to full length is to put two or three in show cages side by side, with cardboard between them sufficiently high up to make them stretch in order to see their fellows on either side. The position must be bred in the birds, but training brings it out, and improves them to a remarkable degree. Once you've got the birds steady, a run in the show cage for a few minutes daily will keep them so, remembering that an over-trained bird sometimes gets too tame, and will, for that reason, fail to show off its good points.

We will naturally suppose that the birds have been colour-fed, and are now finishing, and that they have been receiving some linseed, the great agent for making the feathers glossy. This, together with much soft food, will in many cases leave the birds over fat, and perhaps a little loose in feather. If so, nothing is better than the bath, a judicious amount of raw grated or boiled carrot two or three times a week, and a gradual bringing back to hard seed, and little or no colour-food. We want the bird in the best condition possible, fleshy, but not fat, and as hard as possible, and only plain food will do. Canary seed, German rape, occasionally carrot or apple, plenty of baths on fine days, and your bird, if healthy, should soon be tight in feather and fit for the show bench.

Then, if you have what you imagine would look well on the bench, don't keep it at home; send it out to try its luck, and if you go yourself, take notice as to where it differs from others, particularly if it takes a back seat; you will then have had a lesson as to how you ought to shape your future breeding arrangements—I mean, where your bird, or birds fail to the winners, you can then mend matters. Don't put sand or sawdust in the cage, or you may be said to be trying to catch the prize by marking your cages; put canary seed only.

Keep on Trying.

If you fail to win, don't be downhearted, but try again; think where you fail, and do your utmost to improve in that respect, and then you will come up smiling; it is only the stickers that ever make a name even in Canary breeding. Think of your own society first, and don't forget to support it when opportunity comes.

Lastly, as the parson says, a word to those who have birds in plenty. Now is the time to choose your next year's breeders, not in March, remembering, as I said before, that, firstly, we want position; secondly, shape, length of body, good wing and tail carriage, well filled shoulders, nice round head, neck long and straight, long legs, the best of feather, and the longest birds we have. Mind, no frills, no heavy beaks, if we can help it, and lastly good health.

Don't sell any decent-looking bird until you have selected your intended breeders and show birds. Keep in your room the plate of a typical specimen; it will be a guide in selection, and will if you study it help you immensely.

HOW TO PRODUCE A STUD OF WINNING NORWICH.

A lecture given by Mr. W. A. Wilson before the members of the Leeds C.B.S.

THE first three eggs should be taken away, and replaced on the evening of third day. The young will then hatch about the same time, and you will have a better chance of getting them all reared than if left to hatch out one after the other. Do not remove the cock if he behaves himself; he will be useful to help the hen to rear her brood, and to wean them if she is eager to nest again.

For soft food I use eggs and bread, with an unlimited supply of hemp seed, and give green food in abundance—watercress for preference. Always take care to clean out the food glasses before giving a fresh supply, and remove greenfood which may be left over. The last thing at night I put a good supply in a jar of fresh water and place it in a corner of the cage. This entices the hen off the nest practically at daybreak.

When the young are about 21 days old they will be ready to leave the nest; then place them out of reach of the hen, or she will surely pluck them to make a second nest. A good plan is to put the young in a Yorkshire show cage and hang this on the front of breeding cage. Give them a supply of egg food, and some you will find start picking straight away. At a month old they should be able to feed themselves; then give a supply of soaked rape, and a few days later plain canary seed; but do not discard the egg food.

Keep a sharp look-out for any that look thick, and give a milk sop, for if neglected at this stage acute inflammation of the bowels will set in. Isolate any which show the least signs of this disease, and treat accordingly. A good plan is to give a few drops of gentian in the drinking water. This acts as a tonic, and also prevents them drinking too much. Do not give any greenfood to the young after they have left the parents. At five weeks old place any which show promise in separate cages, and start training them to the show cage. From now up to the moult is the proper time to break them in, and by doing so you will save yourself a lot of trouble and vexation. I contend that nothing looks worse than a good bird untrained; it is without doubt badly handicapped when placed on the show bench, besides being a source of trouble to the judge.

It is not policy to take more than two nests in one season, nothing is gained by doing so except worry and interference with the colour-feeding. As soon as the second nest is completed, break the pairs up, and place any hens which show a desire for another nest in the darkest corner of the room and cover them up. A few days of this treatment will have the desired effect. Start colour-feeding the first nest birds at from eight to nine weeks old, and in the second nest at about ten weeks, giving it in a mild form at first, and gradually adding till when at about half-way you should be giving a mixture of one egg, a good thick slice of old bread, and four heaped-up teaspoonfuls of colour-food. I generally add two ounces of hot pepper to one pound of cold. When mixing colour-food, add two teaspoonfuls of sugar, and a pinch of salt, this makes it more palatable, and the birds eat it more readily.

System Does It.

You must be systematic in colour-feeding; do not keep missing a day, or the colour will come patchy. Neither will you get the density of colour required on an exhibition bird if it is neglected in the thick of the moult. When the body feathers are moulted it is beneficial to give the colour-food every other day to ensure getting a level colour throughout. When the moult is nearing completion, give a crystal of sulphate of iron, about the size of a split pea, in the drinking-water every other day, it will both act as a tonic and fasten the colour.

Previous to colour-feeding, I generally give everything a scrub down as though I were preparing for breeding operations. By doing so you will get rid to a great extent of that dreadful pest the red mite; otherwise, you will be sure to breed them in abundance, especially if you get a lot of sun. Birds require to be quiet at this season, and you will be compensated for a little extra labour by having your birds in more forward condition.

By now you will see the results of your year's work, and if you have been fortunate to breed a winner or two, you will be looking forward to the most interesting part—exhibiting. It behoves you therefore to get them in good condition as early as possible. I give birds which I intend showing mixed seed three times per week, and colour-food right through the season, also a supply of hemp seed, this will put more chest on, and give a bolder appearance, a necessity in a winning Norwich. Put baths on regularly, they are a good conditioner. I should strongly advise the novice to join the Norwich specialist club, he will then get in touch with prominent exhibitors of his own variety, who will not be averse to giving him sound advice if needed.

In View of the Show Season.

We will now presume it is show season, and your birds are fit for the fray. Pause here, Mr. Novice; if you have been fortunate to breed a winner do not enter it in a £3 or even a £5 limit novice class, or sure enough the dealer, the dealer-cum-exhibitor, and the exhibitor with the deep pocket will be bidding against one another who is to secure your champion, to add lustre to their names and to the remainder of the stock which they have got, under similar conditions. Mind you, I am speaking on good grounds; your best plan is to get advice from an experienced fancier as to the value of your bird.

Providing you have had good luck you will have something decent for pairing up for next season, and in selecting pick out all the yellow hens; do not let them go to the dealers at any price. What you do not require for your own use, you will have no difficulty in disposing of at a fair figure to brother fanciers. You will have proof of that the first time you try to purchase one. Select your best yellow cocks and buff hens; I always try to pair up more of these than vice-versa, as I consider that a better percentage of yellows is got from the cross, and also more typical birds, as the buff hens are, taken all round, larger and better substance than the yellows. There is not the least doubt that the hen is the mould, so do not be tempted to part with your good hens. I have always found the supply of good buff cocks greater than the demand.

Now, as Rome was not made in a day, neither will a strain of winning Norwich Plainheads be made in a day, or a year, but the fancier who uses his brains and whose disappointments make him all the more keen is bound to succeed in the end. It takes a fancier about three years to know what to expect from his pairing, and even then only to a certain extent. Do not discard any that are slightly on the under-side, but are good in all other respects; these are birds I should recommend to be run over for a season, and in many instances that is all that is required to make them into good specimens. It is a bad plan to dispose of all your surplus, as generally before the season has been long under weigh you will find one or two which are wasters, bad feeders, barren, or which have developed some other fault. Among the birds on which you have been pinning your faith some may die from apparently no cause, and these are only a few of the many obstacles which bar the headway of the enthusiastic fancier.

Correspondence.

Sixteen Young, Sixteen Cocks.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Sayers in last week's issue, it may interest him to know that I bred six Siskin Mules in 1914, and four Goldfinch Mules and six Canary reared Chaffinches this season, and all of them proved to be cocks. I should be pleased to know if anyone can equal this.

F. C. NICHOLAS.

"All in the Game."

SIR,—I should be glad if you would state in your next issue of CAGE BIRDS that owing to the bungling of the railway officials at Warrington Station, only one case of my birds reached Liverpool show. I sent both cases away from Sale at 6 o'clock on Thursday night by the same train, but one case of six arrived back home next morning, the day of the show. Disappointing! Yes, but it's all in the game, and there is some excuse for even railway porters in the present crisis.

WM. MIDDLETON.

Sheffield O.S. All England Show

£150 in Prizes in 100 Classes.

SIR,—It having come to my knowledge that there is a little misunderstanding amongst exhibitors in connection with the holding of Sheffield Open Show, I feel it my duty to pen a few lines in the interest of all. The country at large seems to be under the impression that we in Sheffield have no time for anything but the making of munitions and guns. This I am pleased to say is satisfactory to the Minister of Munitions, but at the same time we can manage to work a show of the magnitude of the Sheffield O.S.; which, Sir, is no little matter. The flourishing state of trade has enabled us to place before exhibitors one of the most generous schedules ever put before the Fancy, representing £150 in prize-money and specials and 100 classes. We have also made arrangements with the railway companies to ensure delivery of birds immediately upon arrival. All trains will be met by our own drays at all stations, not only during the early evening, but all through the night. Messrs. Fletcher and Woodall have arranged to act as night stewards, and any bird will be unpacked and staged immediately upon arrival. By this means they will be nicely settled down, ready for judging. Another arrangement which we think will be to the benefit of the exhibitor is to pack all birds on the Sunday afternoon and despatch during the night mail trains on the Sunday night; of course when otherwise asked for, exhibitors' wishes will be carried out.

A. T. WOODALL,

Press Correspondent, Sheffield O.S.

Mr. H. J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—"Hyson Green" saw that I was to give a talk to the members of the Nottingham and Notts. O.S. on Oct. 12, so had he wanted an argument with me, he could have availed himself of the opportunity. I dealt fully with the article written by Mrs. Dalton on the Yellow Bunting, and no doubt if he had been there he would have learned something about the bird, or perhaps taught me something that I don't know. I have no need to "boost myself up sky high." The local members know what I have done with British Birds. If I am so bad as "H. G." tries to show, it is strange that the members of the Nottingham and Notts. O.S. selected me to judge their show last year, and that they have asked me to give them talks on British Birds, and judge their table shows. No, "H. G." I can see it is only a little bit of petty jealousy, because I have taken up British Birds again. I have been out of the Fancy for six years, so I have not been the cause of bringing the Nottingham and Notts. O.S. to the low ebb of to-day; that's one thing I have not done, I am pleased to say! What I have done for the Fancy of Nottingham is nothing to do with fanciers outside of Nottingham, so I will answer "H. G." by saying that if he will make it convenient to come to the next meeting and be prepared to back up the accusations that he has made, and to bring all those fanciers who he says can bear him out, I will be there to defend myself, and will show that I have done something for the Fancy of Nottingham. I have never been the cause of one member leaving the Fancy, but I will be able to prove, right up to the hilt, the reason so many members left the Nottingham and Notts. O.S. some eight years or so ago. I have never exhibited a borrowed bird, nor a stained bird. I have always endeavoured to keep the Fancy clean, and when I see things going on that are not straight, I am not afraid to speak, nor shout, for that matter.

I have always been able to take my own part without any help from a croaker. I have plenty of sympathy for anyone who is trying to get to the top of the tree in the Fancy. I have helped dozens of fanciers to select their birds, washed their birds for them, told them everything I know about British Birds, never keeping any secrets up my sleeve, and have always done everything I could for the Fancy generally.

"H. G." wants to know what my "wonderful birds" were doing last season. He knows very well that I only took up the Fancy again about 15 months ago. I never had any intention of exhibiting again, or I should not have sold the dozens of birds that I have. I can show "H. G." my books and letters to prove what I say is correct. The few birds I exhibited last season were all F.M., and had only been caught a few weeks. "H. G." has never heard me use the slang word "rotten" to any judge. What has "H. G." done to improve the Fancy? Perhaps it is a good thing "H. G." did not sign his name to the latter, because it would have carried no weight amongst the Fancy generally. He is not known, except amongst his own little circle.

HERBERT J. CHICK.

SIR,—In reply to that mighty atom of the Cage-bird world, Mr. H. J. Chick, I would like to ask him if it is not time he told readers something about Cage-birds and less about himself. Now Mr. H. J. C., how can you take so much credit to yourself for doing under the most opportune circumstances what a working man has to do under the most adverse circumstances?

Take yourself, on the one hand a prosperous tradesman, always at home in a lovely mid-county town, where the best specimens are to be picked up on the market, able to buy just what your birds want, and within a short walk of the country. On the other hand, take the working man, the backbone of the Fancy; he lives, say, in a cold north-country town, smoky and foggy, is at work from light till dark, is not too well off, is many miles from the country proper, and in the show season only sees his birds by daylight on Sunday. He does not write and tell us he is going to put a team of birds on the bench, expecting to take all the cakes, and then grumble because he cannot get the half-pence at the other shows by judging.

Then again, Mr. Chick, when a man living in a lovely town like Nottingham, within a short walk of the lanes and hedges where the most delicate British Birds thrive, writes to CAGE BIRDS and tells readers that he wishes he lived in the country, don't you think that man ought to be in the Dardanelles? A good many readers think so, I can assure you, but perhaps in your own words, you take "exception" to their way of thinking. Now, Mr. H. J. C., I have no axe to grind with you, and I am sure other readers besides your humble will be pleased to read any articles you write, providing you really do tell us something about cage birds. But for goodness sake, if you are unable to do that, do not waste your time pulling to pieces the articles of other correspondents that do.

STEPHEN SHERWIN.

Is the Southern Norwich P.C. to Live or Die?

SIR,—My object in penning my letter to CAGE BIRDS was to try and find out if the club was still in existence, and in that I have been successful, thanks to Mr. Crawford. I was pleased to hear the club is still alive, but what an existence! Friend Crawford says a few of the committee met and decided to go to rest till the war was over. The thing is, had that few the power to decide such a question? If they had, why were not the members acquainted with their decision? Just fancy, a Norwich Plainhead club, which usually boasts that the Norwich Canary is the "John Bull" of the Canary Fancy, when trouble comes, and things point to a bad time for Canary breeders, shutting up shop, "going to rest" until the war is over, when we have the Southern Yorkshire and the club of the Wee Border giving its patronage to shows.

Why, it hardly bears thinking about. Is that the way to encourage the breeding and exhibition of the Norwich Canary? Then Mr. Crawford says the club is on the right side of the balance, despite the fact that practically no subscriptions have been paid this year. I am quite aware, perhaps just as much as Mr. Crawford, that no club can exist without subscriptions, but considering the club did nothing much for its members last season, it ought to be on the right side financially, and if Mr. Crawford thinks members are going to subscribe to a club that is "going to rest" for years, he will be disappointed. I was at the meeting at the Crystal Palace when the secretary agreed to hold his post for another year, so that was no fresh news to me, and I consider when the secretary's and committee's time had expired, a meeting should have been called, and secretary and committee appointed, instead of the club being allowed to slide, as it has been allowed to do. I really cannot see that there is much credit due to anyone on the state of the club at the present time. I may say my subscription has been paid yearly, except this year, and I am still willing to pay to a live club. I am pleased to see an invitation from Mr. Ramsden to a meeting at the Lamboth Baths to consider the situation. As to signing my name to my letters, I find very often if one signs his name, someone soon wants to know if your grandfather paid his rent, or some other silly thing, and as it makes no difference to the state of the club at the present time whether I sign my name or not, for the present I sign myself,

MEMBER.

Has the L.C.B.A. Been "Collaring" Dates?

SIR,—I was much astonished to read friend Goodall's ill-considered letter in your last issue, and I have no doubt but that our show manager will be able to deal with the matter in such a way that will prove Mr. Goodall's statements to be false and misleading. As I happened to have a conversation with some of his committeemen at the Clapham show, I will ask him if it not the fact that the real reason of their having to abandon the Watford show is on account of their hall being commandeered by the military authorities.

I thought it was generally known that the L.C.B.A. was not solely responsible for the proposed Horticultural Hall show, but that the N.B.B. and M.C., together with the F.B.E.L., were standing shoulder to shoulder, sharing profit or loss together, notwithstanding their loss of some £40 on their last year's joint show, and willing once more to incur a similar loss—solely in the interests of the Fancy. Mr. Allen Silver will no doubt explain through CAGE BIRDS that because of the police restrictions it is now impossible to go on with the arrangements, and unfortunately we have to give up any idea of holding a show for this year. Nevertheless, I consider the three united clubs are deserving the thanks of all true fanciers throughout the Kingdom for their public-spirited efforts, and that another year, when we trust we will be living in more peaceful times, they will show their appreciation by sending us a bumping entry. We promise them that they shall have a show worthy of all their help.

JOHN FROSTICK,

Hon. Show Sec., N.B.B. and M.C.

SIR,—Messrs. Silver and Watcham seem to have taken Mr. Goodall's protest very badly—surely the members of the Watford C.B.S. have a right to express their opinion against the appropriation of dates clashing with their show fixtures. Watford's date was fixed at a special meeting held on Feb. 3 last, for Dec. 8 and 9, the judges appointed, and the hall secured right away. The show and all particulars were announced in CAGE BIRDS of Feb. 13, and the show was entered in the list of Show Dates Fixed. Two halls were suggested, and the secretary was instructed to secure the Corn Exchange; failing that, the Concert Hall of the Conservative Club. As nothing definite could be booked for the former, the other was secured the following week.

Friend Silver's letter seems very inexplicable. As he had himself accepted the judging of the British Section at Watford, he must have known that the dates of the two shows clashed. He will probably remember he advised me to get Watford to alter their dates to January. Further, he wrote to another member saying he thought he would have to cancel his engagement to judge, but in neither case did he mention the clashing of dates. Knowing in what esteem he is held by the members of Watford, if he had written to the secretary when he found that the clashing was unavoidable, the matter would have been dealt with in a friendly spirit, but, instead, he now charges our secretary with want of taste and excess of zeal. He seems for once to have forgotten his usually tactful manner. I would also remind him that we at Watford also give our time and money to help on the Fancy in our district. Now another serious point crops up which reflects discredit upon Watford C.B.S. Last Friday I called on a friend who very bluntly asked me the reason of Watford abandoning their show. I replied, the clashing of the dates. He said "Be candid, what is the real reason?" I repeated my former answer, and he asked if it was not abandoned in consequence of the Military authorities taking the hall. This was a surprise to me, and I denied it, and he said he was informed that that was the cause. I emphatically deny that the Concert Hall is, or even likely to be, taken by the Military authorities, and whoever is responsible for this statement must be in utter ignorance of the situation. I made it my business to go over to Watford on Saturday last, and I saw Mr. Goodall, and also made enquiries which prove the statement is false. I have now arranged that a special meeting is to be held on Nov. 3 to rescind the resolution cancelling the open show. As to Mr. Watcham's letter, it speaks for itself, lacking both tact and discretion, but I would remind him that Watford C.B.S., although of minor importance, pays prize-money within a week of the show, the judges with equal promptitude, and the balance-sheet is presented one month after. Finally, if our secretary's remarks have offended these worthy gentlemen, by his likening them to "The Kaiser," I express my apologies, as such a similitude at this period is hurtful to the feelings of any Englishman, but I can assure them that no offence was meant, that being, I am sure, one of the last thoughts of our friend John Goodall.

R. J. PRETTY,
Chairman, Watford C.B.S.

Why Was Clapham Show a Failure?

SIR,—With regard to the question raised by myself re Clapham Entries, the answer given by "An Old Clapham Exhibitor" that we "made the exhibitors deliver and fetch the birds to and from the show" seems to fit the case, and this must be seriously considered by our committee before another open show is held. To "Londoner" I would say that I shall be pleased to answer all his queries, if he will sign his name, but having in a plain way asked a question and received an answer which appears to fit the case I am satisfied, and do not intend to be drawn into a controversy with an unknown antagonist.

T. J. HOSE, Hon. Sec.,
Clapham and Dis. C.B.A.

[Mr. E. J. Whitmore, show sec., writes to a similar effect.—EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

Moulting British Birds on Wild Seeds.

SIR,—I notice Mr. Chick in his reply to my letter says it would be very difficult to prove whether a bird is moulted better with the addition of wild seed. I cannot agree with this, as I have proved more than once that they can be, for I have purchased Linnets and Redpolls moulted on ordinary seed, and the following season have moulted them with the addition of wild seed, with very gratifying results. I quite agree with Mr. Chick that no wild seed or colour-food would ever make a Mealy Redpoll as good a colour as a Lesser 'Poll. In the first place a Mealy is a distinct species of the same family, and its colour is a greyish-brown with a silver sheen all over it, and a very light breast, whereas the Lesser has a good rich-coloured back, and in a good specimen the throat, chest and flanks have also a rich colour. To cite this as an example is very poor argument against wild seed.

Why is it that you seldom see a Greenie or Bullie moult as bright and pure a colour as a field-moulted one? I for one have for years tried to discover this, and I must confess that up to now I have failed. Naturalists have told us what they know, yet I doubt if any ordinary fancier would be able to give his birds the variety of seeds they would get in their wild state. Mr. Chick's query would equally well apply to the Linnet and Redpoll. What is it that they eat in their wild state that gives the cocks that rich, rosy breast and poll? I have many times tried to moult one with a red breast, and I recollect once having a Mealy 'Poll that did come out with a rosy breast and poll, but alas, in a few weeks the red colour vanished. Birds of all species in their wild state eat a lot of larvae, and perhaps this may account for it. I notice Mr. Chick says he has moulted a Bramble this year, a grand coloured one, without colour-food. He does not tell us that he has not given it insectivorous food, gentles, grubs, etc., all natural food to the Bramble. Exceptions do not prove the rule, Mr. Chick, and most fanciers will tell you that the largest birds are usually more vigorous than smaller ones. My Greenies and Bullies were moulted with wild seed, and I do not profess to be able to beat nature, therefore I cannot say they were better colour than when caught, and I can conscientiously say that I have never yet seen on the show bench a Greenfinch with the richness of colour of the juncques that I saw in the net of a catcher many years ago, from among which I was fortunate enough to find the winner at the Scottish National.

Regarding the Yellow Bunting, some of the very best have been fed on natural food, and have done a lot of winning. I never moulted a Corn or Reed Bunting, so cannot speak from experience, still I see no reason why an addition of natural food should not improve either of these equally as much as colour food.

A Tall Story of a Great Indian Hornbill.

MY friend told me this funny story of his bird. 'Some years ago, when I was in India, I had a Hornbill who was very fond of having games of ball with me. One day I went out in the garden to have a game of ball with him. I had a lighted cigar in my mouth, and when I was not looking at him for a moment the bird snatched my cigar away, and to my horror, swallowed it! I rushed indoors to get something to put it out, in my hurry not noticing what I laid my hands on, and ran back to the Hornbill and forced some brandy into its mouth. This caused a kind of volcano inside the bird's body, and it brought the cigar up.'

My friend is now living in London, but he still hears news of his bird, which is alive and well in India, and has games of ball with a native servant who comes to play with him every day. I believe the bird is twenty-one years old, as my friend obtained it in August, 1894, when it was quite young. It measures about 4 feet from the tip of its beak to the tip of its tail, and if you touch it it bites you!

THE TREATMENT OF YOUNG CANARIES.

Biscuit versus Bread in Egg Food.

THIS is my fifth year of Canary breeding, and I am pleased to say that it has been my best year. The first four years in the breeding season I fed on egg and bread, but this year I have fed on Crawford's Italian Wafers, and my birds have fed better than ever. In my opinion biscuit is better than bread for egg food, for my experience has been with bread that the hens pick all the egg out and leave the bread, and I think that is sometimes why the hens pluck the young, because the food is too rich. With egg and biscuits they eat all the lot; it is a bit more expensive, but what is that if the hens feed better? There is not the same risk of losing the young when they are taken away from the hen.

I give the young egg and biscuits and crushed hemp until they begin cracking seed themselves. The bath I give as often as I can, as I think it is a good thing for them, but I always give it early in the day. For a tit-bit I give a little maw seed one day, and on other days I give a little niger, or a little crushed groats, a little linseed, and a little millet. Once a week I give egg and biscuit or carrot and biscuit.

In giving carrot I boil it until soft, and then press it through the egg sieve as I would egg. I may say I give about 20 biscuits, or one carrot to one egg. I only give carrot when they are moulting, as I think it puts a gloss on the feathers.

My idea of keeping birds is that you should try to make them as happy as possible. Keep plenty of good seed and plenty of sand in the cage, look after them, and they will repay you for your trouble. Out of 13 nests I have bred 53 young, so I think that is not so bad. For red mite I go over my cages once or twice a week with paraffin, as it helps to keep them down a lot. JOHN FENWICK.

TIT-BITS FOR SOFT-BILLS.

The Value of Live Food.

DURING the summer months many a fancier has been tempted to try his hand with small softbills, and has perhaps been able to keep them up in condition until winter set in, then to become wrecks. I will try and make it clear how this disappointment can be avoided, and at the same time try to win half-a-crown.

In the first place give up the idea of feeding entirely on so-called "stock foods." They may, with the help of live food, keep the birds going, but not in show condition. The birds waste more than they eat.

For 'Gales, Redstarts, Wrynecks, and similar birds, do as I do, and you will be surprised how nice your birds will look and always be ready to send out. I get 1lb. of best ants' eggs at a time (cost 3s.) and I give them some of these dry every day as a stock food. A pound lasts a long time, and every one is eaten up, so in the long run they are cheaper than "insectivorous foods."

Gentles I use in abundance; these cost me nothing, for I get a piece of dry meat and hang it up in an outhouse and place under it a pail with a supply of meal in it for the gentles to drop into and clean themselves, which they soon do. It is possible to get a supply now to last through the winter. Always take care they are dry and clean before giving them to the birds. It is always wise to have a supply of mealworms by you in case of shortage, but these cost money.

My next is a splendid food, and to be had all through the winter. I have a beetle trap, which is placed in a bakehouse, and catches thousands at a time, large and small. These are tipped into a paper bag, which is placed in a bowl and boiling water poured into the bag. The beetles are dead in an instant, and are then drained through a sieve and are soon dry and ready for use. Some may be too large for your small birds; give these to the Blackbirds and Thrushes, and so improve their condition. These cost nothing unless you meet the baker out, and even then it is likely he would thank you for reducing his stock of beetles. As for spiders, there is nothing to beat them. An easy way to catch them is to go round your garden walls and outbuildings at night with a lamp and can; hosts will be found hanging in their webs. A very easy and sure way of colour-feeding is to mix the colour-food dry with the ants' eggs; begin with it soon enough.

A Pleasant Surprise

Still Waters Run Deep.

I HAD kept Canaries for years, and had often thought I would some time try my luck at Mule breeding, but something always happened; it was either too much trouble to send for a cock Finch, or I had no Canary hens to spare at the moment for, as I thought then, second rate work.

The opportunity came when a friend mentioned he had bought a bird and cage from a neighbour who was leaving the district and asked me to call round and see it, as he was sure something was amiss with the bird, as it was so quiet, or he would bring it to my place. This I agreed to, and he brought it the next evening.

It was a finely-marked cock Linnet, in splendid condition, but never, before nor since, have I seen such an exceptionally tame bird. You could push it about, or lift it from the cage without a flutter. I have a very large flight, well fitted up, and when my friend saw this, he suggested leaving me the Linnet for a few weeks, as he thought the flight cage was just the thing, and might put new life into his bird.

I readily consented, and in exchange put into my friend's cage a smart colour-fed yellow hen, which he could take back to comfort his children for the temporary loss of their pet.

I put the Linnet up with a hen which had been "resting" that season, supplied them with nesting materials, gave them my blessing, and left them. I was rather disappointed with the Linnet's manner, for though it was in tight feather, and appeared healthy, it lacked the wildness or "devil," which a good muler ought to have.

The hen Canary built a nest after about ten days, and laid four eggs. I did not, as is my custom, take the eggs away as laid, and replace at the end of the third day, but left them with her, being satisfied that they would not be fertile, as the Linnet had shamefully neglected her, and I decided she should sit them; it would keep her quiet for a fortnight, and maybe a tone for the loss of her cold-blooded and indifferent partner, as I intended to return him the next day.

And now, to be brief, for the Editor's stipulated 400 words are almost up.

The hen sat well, and at the end of the twelfth day I was astounded to see half a shell on the cage bottom. I immediately put her on "Class 1" treatment, and a few days afterwards peeped into the nest and saw four fluffy dark balls, which thrived well, were on the perches at fifteen days, and turned out to be one hen and three cocks, the bonniest Linnet-Canary Mules ever hatched. But at this day I feel annoyed when I think how their father's misleading behaviour fooled me

GREAT SHOW AT LIVERPOOL.

The Liverpool O.S. has again proved to the Fancy that it knows how to run an open show with the certainty of a successful issue, both from a financial and a spectacular viewpoint. It is now eight years since these fanciers put their heads together and their hands in their pockets with the determination of running an open show for Liverpool, and right from the incipient stages it was an instant success. Now it is a national institution, and this, the eighth show, can only be written down as no less successful than its predecessors. To see the names of the Liverpool fanciers on the outside of a catalogue is to be assured that the show can be nothing but successful. The men at the head, in addition to being fanciers, are business men. They know how to advertise, and the value of it. They know how to get the maximum of efficiency from the minimum of labour. A glance in the secretary's room, with its order and its minutest attention to detail, is an earnest of the enthusiasm, the determination, manifested by the managers for the welfare of the birds entrusted to their care. If a bird is the least bit out of sorts it is brought into the secretary's room for quietness and treatment. If an exhibitor has a grievance—a rare occurrence—he can have it remedied in an instant. If a fancier wants to catch a train for a long distance, there is no bickering; he is got off as expeditiously as is possible. If one wants one's prize money, it is literally thrown at him. In fact, Mr. Green's voice is continually inviting fanciers to accept money; and if every exhibitor is not a winner, it is not the fault of the committee—blame the judges and the exchequer.

Mr. J. W. Metcalfe was in charge of the clerical department, and it is scarcely necessary to say that everything is done by the shortest route to success when he is at the head. There is no overlapping; there seems to be a place for everything, and everything seems to be in its place. He is courteous and efficiency personified; has show work at his finger tips, and nothing is a trouble to him. He gives one the impression that to oblige anyone is the height of his ambition. In fine, he is almost Eastern in his politeness. Mr. Geo. Green is the show manager, and one has but to hear his robust voice calling for stewards, and to see his geniality—not to say humour—when conversing with fanciers, is to know that he is the horn show manager. He was ably assisted by the hardest-working set of stewards it would be possible to get together. Few can attain, none can surpass, the Liverpool men in efficiency.

This show is one of the few where ladies are to be seen capably attending to and packing exhibits. Women are peculiarly adapted to the handling and packing of exhibits; and if there is one thing that gives a fancier more pleasure than to have a capable steward, it is that that steward should be of the gentler sex, and no less capable than the mere male. It puts him in a good temper, even if he has drawn a blank financially. Some of the lady helpers were Mesdames J. Walker, J. R. Jones, F. Handley and Miss Bratherton. All railway birds were packed and despatched by 5 o'clock.

The visitors were as numerous as cakes at a juvenile tea-fight. Many fanciers from the country look forward to this event as their annual rendezvous, where they can talk over past failures and future prospects. We noticed faces from afar, including Messrs. Curphey, Gill, Boddam, Teare, and Kelly, from the Isle of Man (please note, not the Kelly); Messrs. Jones (two), and J. O. Williams (Wales); Eppwood (Wolverhampton); Wagstaffe (Barrow); Joe Thomas (Halifax); Turner, Beswick, Cooper, Garbutt, and Oldham, from the Manchester district; Helsby and Richards (Chester); also a big contingent from Southport in charge of Mr. Tom Nixon; a link with the past in the person of Scarsbrick Taylor; and a crowd of fanciers from various parts. We would like to mention that the committee invited all the wounded soldiers in the town free, and they availed themselves of the opportunity on the Friday, and responded in good numbers. A very kind thought of the society. Sales were brisk, competition being so keen that some cages were nearly covered with claim labels, and the aggregate reached just on £50.

Norwich were rather above the average, being a level lot without any exhibit outstanding. The palm went to a novice exhibit, winner in the buff hen class—a real beauty. In fact, the novices as a whole were really fine, and it is pleasing to note that many prizes went to Prescott, once a hotbed of Norwich Borders were down. We heard some little grumbling at the classification, and we understand that this is to be remedied another year. The committee are always willing, nay, anxious, to meet the wishes of fanciers. The judges were Messrs. Cowgill and Munsell, Yorkshires; W. Vardy, Norwich; J. Dixon, Borders; and C. Houlton, British and Foreign. The Kozy Carrier Co. had a stall in the show and we were pleased to see business very brisk.

Yorkshires were a fine lot; over 400 birds were staged, and most of the classes filled well. The Greens were, perhaps, not as good as we have seen before at the great Liverpool show, but this can be accounted for: the show was held very early in the season, and the birds are not quite ready. Messrs. Rogers, Richardson, Robinson, Smith, Jones, J. W. Handley, staged some nice birds, and we think that Mr. Jones' unfledged yellow is one of the best ever benched; with care it should make a great name for itself. In the clear or ticked Yorks, Dr. Craig, Messrs. Dykes, Thomas, Hibbert, Harrison and Johnson were at the top with some fine birds, but in this section also many of the birds were not fit.

Hybrids had three classes this year, and contained a few old champions. It is full early yet, and some of the exhibits still were showing pen feathers here and there. The best-conditioned Hybrid of the day was undoubtedly the Chaffinch-Greenfinch shown by Dr. Wilson—simply perfect. British birds were well represented by a fine lot of exhibits, and only the most forward in grand condition could gain premier honours. A good average was maintained under the exceptional war circumstances, and the society is to be congratulated. Mr. Brade's exhibits were absent at judging time. Only two of the specials for natural colour Siskins could be awarded, and these both went to Mr. Rimmer with a hc and a cardless bird.

OXFORD.

Annual Open Show of the Oxford C.B.S., British School Room, Oct. 21. The room was well adapted for the purpose, and the exhibits were nicely staged, with plenty of room for visitors. Entries were not quite so numerous as last year, but quality was up to the standard, Norwich, as usual at Oxford, being very hot, special mention being due to Messrs. Stubbs Bros., ticked yellow, and Mr. Lovegrove's uidlighted bull hen, the latter will again be heard of. Mr. J. Lees won special for best member's bird. Some good birds were shown in Amateur Norwich. Mr. Mitchell's uidlighted yellow being a real good bird and quickly claimed by a well known breeder. Mr. O. C. Smith took members' special for best bird shown by an amateur member. Yorks were also a nice lot, and the judge had no easy task to award the cards. Dutch Frills were very dainty, but not enough of them. In the A.O.V. Canary Mr. Hayling exhibited a crest of the first water. Mules and Hybrids were few, but choice, Mr. Parlett's famous "White Rose" and Greenie-Canary being much admired; the former looked lit, but perhaps a little lighter. In the light class Mr. Gilbert's Goldfinch-Canary was a gem. British were few in number, four classes having to be cancelled, but all exhibits were really nice, especially Mrs. Dalton's team. Foreign only included Parrots, one class being cancelled, but all were nice birds, and one especially made its presence felt by a constant chatter. The Society is to be congratulated upon having such a secretary as Mr. Holliday, a real good worker, obliging to the extreme, and everything was in tip-top order. He was ably assisted by Mr. A. Fifield and a hard working committee, and other members who all worked with zeal to despatch birds, especially those that were to be sent on to other shows. Mr. J. Robinson judged.

ABERTILLERY.

Third annual open show held at the Gymnasium Hall on Oct. 20. A generous classification was provided, and we were pleased to see an entry of over 400 birds, a decrease of only 8 on last year's total. The hall is an admirable one, well lighted and free from draughts, the staging, which was admirably arranged in two tiers, and covered all round with bunting, making a very pleasing appearance. Or the management we cannot speak too highly, everyone being most anxious to see that everything possible was done for the welfare of the exhibits. The following are the office bearers: Pres., H. Campion, Esq.; Chair., W. Cooper; Vice, F. Selby; Treas., J. Pritchard; Asst. Sec., W. Newell; Show Manager, J. Parfitt; Committee, Messrs. Morton, Terrett, Bibbings, Russell, Hyde, A. Parfitt, Broome, Edwards, Phillips, Salter, Lewis, Orill, Moule, Blackmore, Richards, and Warr. The Secretary, Mr. H. H. Mortimer, is a very energetic and obliging official, and was well supported on show day by Mr. J. W. Bibbings, who acted as his assistant.

Norwich was a very level lot, some really good birds being put down by Messrs. Davies, Allsopp, Selby, and Tedstone, and the Rev. Jolliffe. Yorks were a grand lot, and gave the judge an anxious time in sorting out. The novice classes in this section contained a wonderful entry of 85 in three classes. Borders were the best lot we have seen staged at this Society's shows, and it is evident the wee gems are winning their way into the hearts of Monmouthshire fanciers. Mules and British were not up to the usual standard. What has become of the Welsh British bird exhibitors? Committees cannot be expected to provide classes if they are not supported, and it behoves Welsh fanciers to patronise their own shows, otherwise we shall find Committees curtailing the classes. We were sorry to hear that Messrs. Walker and Jones' Norwich Class 3, No. 9, arrived at the show dead. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

NOR. CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK. (11): 1, Davies, nice model, good head and neck, nicely packed flights, beautiful feather, perfect order; 2, Rev. NEWCASTLE.

A Crested Canary Claimed at £15

Tenth Annual Show of the Newcastle C.B.S., in the Co-operative Hall, Oct. 23. Seeing that some societies have had to abandon their shows this year, the Newcastle Society decided to run an open show if it were possible to secure a hall. After long search a hall was found, but being small the classification had to be curtailed. Being convinced, however, that even a small open show would do much to keep the Fancy going, they cut down their classes according to the space available.

It is highly gratifying to record that their efforts have been appreciated by fanciers, as they received a bumper entry, showing a higher average per class than at any previous show they have held. Border Fancies were the strongest section, with over 20 per class. Norwich made a good second with 19, and some grand birds were staged in every section. The Haggie Challenge Bowl for best young bird in show was awarded to Radley and Sons' Crest; and the Kate Haggie cup for best member's bird (any age) went to J. Maddison's clear Goldfinch Mule.

Quite a few sales took place, the most notable being Mr. Jim Taylor's winning Crest, claimed at catalogue price, £15. It need scarcely be said that the management was of the best, the officials being men of experience and keen fanciers. Mr. Reid, Sec.; Mr. Tindale, Chairman; Mr. Espie, Vice-Chair, and a hard working Committee got through their work in a thoroughly methodical manner, and there is some warm work to do in a short space of time at a one-day open show with such an entry. It was even warm for the visitors, there was such a crowd of them during the afternoon and evening. The judges were T. C. Crawhall, Nor. and Crests; T. B. Tomlinson, Yorks. and Sell.; T. Robson, Border and Scotch Fancies; C. Waters, Mules, British and Foreign.

NOR. YELL. BURTON-ON-TRENT.

Eighth annual show of the Burton-on-Trent C.B.S., Oct. 23, Victoria Hall, High Street, a room well adapted for holding an exhibition of cage birds, being of good size, warm, and free from draughts, and well in the centre of the town. Taking into consideration the prevailing conditions, visitors were fairly numerous, and the entry was a splendid one, being quite up to previous shows, while the quality was grand. The 11 classes of Norwich contained some charming specimens for both type and quality, and to this section went the coveted special for best bird in show, a very handsome bowl. This was awarded to the Yellow bird exhibited by Mr. Elliott, a bird of grand shape and size. The Yorkshire classes were grandly filled, and made a very pleasing display. One bird which stood clear away was the winning Yell. ck. The entry in the British classes was just about what we have seen at Burton for the last few years. Several old faces were again to the front, getting additional honours to their already long list of wins. The arrangements again were capital, the exhibits being splendidly staged, so that every bird could be seen at a glance. A special word of praise is certainly due to the excellent set of stewards. No society could wish for a better lot, each one taking great interest in his duties and sticking to it throughout the day, and no stone was left unturned. An early start was made with judging, which was got through in good time. Catalogues were on sale with awards a very few minutes after the slips were handed in. The Society has a splendid secretary in Mr. A. Wood. Mr. Shirley won special for best non-member's bird, and Mr. Glover took Sandford's Cup. Mr. J. Robson judged.

CLUB REPORTS.

PORTH AND RHONDDA VALLEY.

General meeting, Porth Hotel, Oct. 20; chair, A. H. C. Legg. Decided to hold an open show on Dec. 9, with prize money on the sliding scale. Sec. was instructed to write to different firms of printers for quotations re printing of schedules and catalogues, also judges. New member proposed, W. Jones. We shall be pleased to see members turn up to give a hand to make our show a success.—J. H. Bevan.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Meeting, headquarters, Marlboro' Hotel, Oct. 13. Final arrangements were made for young stock show, Nov. 13. Decided to add a selling class, fee 2d. per bird, to be returned in prize money. Entries close Nov. 10, next meeting night. Birds staged at 5 on day of show. Judge, Mr. J. Burke. Members please make a special effort to make the show a success, both by entries and attendance.—G. W. Bayliss, Asst. Sec.

HUDDERSFIELD O.S.

Meeting Oct. 18 we were favoured with a lecture by Mr. W. A. Cowgill, of Bradford, on Preparing for Exhibition; it was a very instructive lecture indeed. The lecturer dealt with the birds from the nest to the benching. There were many questions put to the lecturer, which he answered in very fine style, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Cowgill, to which he suitably responded. New members elected, R. Cleetman and W. Barker, making a total of 68. We are holding an open show this season on Nov. 20. Judge, Mr. E. Clegg, Dewsbury.—A. Lawford, Sec.

LIVERPOOL B.B.A.

Meeting, Oldham Hall, Oct. 14; Mr. J. Abbott, chair, and a fair attendance. 13 classes for Yorkshires were added to the schedule for the amateur section, and two classes for fowl green hens in the champion section. One cup and 2 medals were offered and accepted. One new member was made. The chief item for the evening was a lecture on "Preparing Birds for Exhibition," by Mr. F. Handley. It was late when the chairman called upon the lecturer, but we thoroughly enjoyed the lecture, and Mr. Handley gave us many useful hints. Many questions were asked and suitably answered. A vote of thanks was unanimously carried, and Mr. Handley suitably replied.—T. R. Jones, Sec.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Meeting headquarters, Crown Hotel, Station-street, Oct. 6, Mr. Broadhurst chair, and about 40 members present, the largest gathering we have had for some considerable time. New members elected: Messrs. Robinson, Savagar, and Roath; also nominated: Messrs. Camm, Salmon, and Nash. Decided to accept the patronage of the O.N.P.C., and to add classes for the Liverpool G.C.A. (Norwich Section) at our open show Dec. 1 and 2; otherwise same classification as last year. Decided to hold our open Roller show on Dec. 8 and 9. It is with regret we accept the resignation of our old sec., Mr. Jones, who is forced to resign on account of illness. We wish him a speedy recovery. Members please make a special effort to be present at next meeting, Nov. 3, at 8, to make final arrangements for open and Roller shows.—A. C. Shirley, Sec.

BORDER FANCY C.C.

AN OPEN SHOW IN EDINBURGH.

A meeting of the local members of the Border Fancy C.C. was held at 142, High St., Edinburgh, Oct. 21, Mr. G. W. Brown presiding. The chairman explained that owing to the Scottish National Show being cancelled, the committee, with the promised support of a great majority of the members, had decided to hold a purely Border Fancy open show in Edinburgh, on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1, and they had been called together that night for the purpose of discussing matters in connection therewith, and forming a show committee. After hearing the chairman's report it was agreed to go on with the show, all present agreeing to act on the committee, they having powers to add to their numbers. In order to relieve Mr. Smart, the club sec., who has little time at his disposal for work in connection with an open show, Mr. J. Lumsden, 13, George-sq., Edinburgh, was unanimously elected to the post of assist. sec. Agreed to fix the same classification as at the Scottish National, with an additional class for heavily variegated. Prize-money was fixed at 10/-, 6/-, 4/-, 2/-. Entry fee, 1/6. Agreed to fix on a membership fee of 1/-, which will entitle exhibitors to free admission to show and to compete for all specials other than those confined to members of B.F.C.C. Fanciers wishing to compete for B.F.C.C. specials should communicate with Mr. W. B. Smart, 13, High-st., Loanhead, who will send them all particulars of same. Agreed to secure the services of three judges for show. A number of the leading fanciers were nominated, and it is hoped we will be able to secure three of the foremost gentlemen in the Fancy for this show, which is expected to be the largest exhibition of the "Wee Gems" ever seen. After some discussion regarding the prize list and catalogue, the meeting was adjourned till Nov. 2, at 8, when the committee will be glad to welcome local members who are willing to assist and who may have been unable to be present at last meeting. It is hoped that all lovers of the popular Border will rally round their Edinburgh brethren at this time, give them support with specials and entries, and so assist in making the venture a success worthy of the Border Fancy Club. I will be glad to hear from anyone who may be interested in our venture, and shall be pleased to receive and acknowledge any special prizes which fanciers may wish to give.—Jas. Lumsden, Asst. Sec., 13, George Square, Edinburgh.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

RENEWED MOULTING (N.P., Tottenham).—The place to which you removed the bird was undoubtedly decidedly colder than that which he had previously occupied, and possibly the incidence of a cold spell of weather would intensify the condition, and this would quite suffice to set the moult in action again. Keep it now in a comfortable place, not necessarily very warm, but see that it is fairly equable and quite free from direct cold draughts. Then in addition to its usual seed diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake in which you have well mixed four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion, and sprinkle it with maw seed every second day, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a split pea and six drops dilute sulphuric acid. Continue this for a fortnight, and if the feathers have not quite ceased dropping by that time, substitute for the above medicine four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of steel, and dilute sulphuric acid, and give this every second day for a week.

CLAW AND CREST (A. B. C.).—(1) No. a bird which has lost a "toe-nail" would not be disqualified on the show bench, but the defect, if noticed, would tell against it, more or less, according to the keenness of the competition. I have known claws lost in this way to be reproduced again after a few months; possibly this may be the case with your bird. (2) Colour and markings are of very secondary importance in a stock bird for breeding Crests fit for show. Plenty of size and feather are much more essential; so, as the Crested cock is a yellow, you should get a buff hen to match him in other respects apart from colour. It will be of little importance whether she is ticked, clear, or even variegated, so long as she has plenty of head-gear and feather of the right sort, and size and substance. A nice short beak, thick and stout at base, giving a wide entrance, a broad skull, densely furnished with long, wide feather, which reaches to the tip of beak when turned over forwards, and showing a stop at the forehead, is the type to look should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battley's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." for, and you need not allow colour or markings to weigh against these properties. But if you can get the necessary points in a clear buff hen which is bred from a clear-bodied, dark crested strain, then you might give the preference to such a hen, on the offchance of getting a clear-bodied, dark crest or two in the progeny. Unfortunately, there is in these days far too little attention paid to markings in this magnificent breed.

VARIED (Waterval, Boven).—(1) Yes, a young Roller cock that was not trained in song would evolve a type of song similar to that of untrained common Canaries, with this difference, that if he was bred off a well-trained stock of birds, his untutored performances would show an inherited tendency towards a rather better type of song than that of one that was of wholly untutored stock. (2) Hen Mules may sometimes be turned to account as "feeders," or foster parents, for rearing the young of other hens which fail from any cause to bring up their own young. Apart from this their use in the breeding room is nil. (3) A trained Roller which was kept in an aviary in company with, or in close association with, common singing birds would certainly lose much of its classical song, and drift into a corrupt type of song little better than that of a wholly untrained bird. Individuals, of course, vary in their susceptibility to corrupting influences, but sooner or later any trained bird would deteriorate under such conditions.

NERVOUSNESS (W. F. D.).—The behaviour of the bird is due to excessive nervousness. As it only commenced to act in this way three months ago you should consider whether you introduced a cat or dog about that time, which may be the cause of the display of terror when the cage is brought down. If this surmise is correct, the exclusion of the animal whilst the cage is being cleaned would suffice to stop the attacks. If not correct, then you must deal with it as gently as possible, but at the same time attend to it frequently, and endeavour to win its confidence, by frequent attention and gentle treatment. It would be well to gradually bring its cage into more prominence for a few minutes daily until it loses fear of being brought down. Medicinal treatment is of no use in such a case, but it may help matters to give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape only, and give all other seeds and foods as tit-bits separately, and generally on the occasions when you bring its cage into prominence for a minute or two. You may also add to its drinking 20 drops of fluid magnesia every third day for two or three weeks.

DIET FOR NORWICH (C. Cartwright).—An elaborate mixture of seeds such as you mention is certainly not the best staple for any Canary, as it allows of no material change in the diet if such is needed for any purpose, besides which it is wasteful and not always wholesome, as the birds frequently pick out the particular seeds they like best—not always the best for them—and scatter the rest about the cage floor. If the birds are breeding stock for next season, the best diet is the simplest—plain canary seed only. But if they are songsters they may have a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. Beyond this give all other seeds and soft foods separately in small quantities, and at intervals of a few days, as you will have seen frequently detailed in these replies. You would doubtless find our Nutshell booklet, No. 5, on "The Canary," which our Manager would send you post free for 2d., very useful. MAKES SCRAPING NOISE (Roller).—This bird is undoubtedly more susceptible to cold than your other birds, and you would do well to move it to the cosiest part of your room, or take it for a time into a slightly warmer room; but do not overdo it, and be careful to see that it is not exposed to direct draughts, nor to fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre. This should set matters right. Do not trouble to look after mites in the bird's throat; so long as the cage is kept free from this pest you need not worry at all about the bird.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

Answered by H. NORMAN.

HOW TO PAIR (L. Scott).—You can let your birds fly all together during the winter months, and then in the early spring separate them according as you wish to mate them for breeding. If you let the two hen Canaries, the cock Canary, and Linnet fly in one aviary, the cock Canary will be almost certain to pair with the two hens, so if you have any desire to produce Mules you must place the Linnet and one of the Canaries in a separate cage or aviary. For the present keep them as they are, and procure one of our books on Hybrid breeding. It will increase your knowledge of the subject, so that you will know how to proceed in the spring.

BIRDS DYING (Greeno).—I presume your birds were freshly caught, and that you obtained them direct from the dealer. If this is so your treatment was not quite what it should have been. To be successful with freshly caught birds requires a little management on the part of owner. In the first place I presume you had no evidence as to where the birds were caught, nor upon what food they had been living; therefore, you should have supplied them with a little soaked seeds, such as teazel, rape, and canary, or, what would have been still better, you should have placed a handful in a damp corner until it commenced to germinate. In dealing with new purchases, it is always as well to give them an aperient when you have had them a few days, because when these birds get well on to seed they generally put away rather more than is good for them. Before you get any more I would advise you to send to this office for the Nutshell booklets on the Bullfinch and Linnet. Follow out the treatment advised in them, and I have no doubt you will be more successful next time.

WINTERING FINCHES (W. H. Hurst).—Yes, you could certainly keep the two old birds all the winter in your large flight, providing it is not exposed to very rough weather, and that you could give them just a little protection if we should have an extraordinary severe spell. A piece of tarpaulin or a couple of sacks thrown over them just at that time would be quite sufficient; also see that the top perch is in a sheltered position, as this is the one usually selected by them to roost on. (2) There is no reason why you should not put your two Finches in also, but I would strongly advise you to get them fairly steady first or you will have a difficulty with them in the spring. They will probably be just as wild as though fresh caught.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERIST

should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Siskin," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

SEXING FINCHES (F. L. Rymer).—Your birds are certainly late in moulting, or their blaze would be sufficiently marked to assist you in sexing them. Your best guides would be the following: The cock has a more snaky head than the hen, the beak long and pointed and somewhat thick at the base. Open the bird's wings and examine the butts carefully; if you notice any very black or greenish-black feathers it is a good sign. Lift up the breast feathers with the forefinger or a lead pencil. Here a cock should have a decided tinge of yellow. A good hen may have one of these points, but if you have a bird with all of them you may be pretty certain that it is a cock. The style and carriage of the bird should also assist you.

TREATMENT OF STARLING (Starling).—As a rule this bird is not a difficult subject to manage. He will eat almost anything that any other Soft-bill will, but if fed for any length of time on a high-class diet he will starve rather than eat meaner food. His stock food should be fairly plain but nutritious, such as broken puppy biscuits, soaked in hot water or gravy. For a change you can give him a feed of soaked "Molox" or best quality chicken meal, with a spoonful of meat meal added. In addition to this, he should have scraps from the table, such as boiled potato, suet pudding, rice pudding, bread and milk, and occasionally a little lean meat. Give him a bone with a little meat left on it; he will amuse himself for quite a long time. In addition to the above he should be supplied with whatever insects or grubs you can obtain for him. Have you our Nutshell No. 26 on feeding Softbills? If not, I would advise you to get it. The cock bird is not so boldly spangled as the hen, and his plumage is darker and more glossy, particularly in the spring. If you have a suitable aviary, I see no reason why a pair should not breed; they are, as a rule, very prolific. If you intend to have a try you should obtain a mate for your bird as early as possible and let them fly together all the winter.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

A FEATHER PULLER (Greenway).—Bathe in several times a week with a tepid quassia solution. So long as the howels are not watery loose, put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia into the drinking water every fourth day, and on the intermediate days just colour the water with chemical food. Keep up a continuous supply of the seed mixture, and when you give boiled rice or maize lightly dust same with flowers of sulphur. Also give ripe fruit freely, and such extras as nuts, pieces of stale bread, biscuits, plain cake. Once the habit of feather pulling becomes fixed it is seldom entirely given up, and I have seen specimens almost nude, yet healthy withal and good talkers. Persevere with the treatment, and even if a cure cannot be effected, this annoying vice may be mitigated, but keep the hope of a cure in front of you. A bird so afflicted, that is tame, etc., should be kept where you can, more or less continually, keep it interested and active—liberty outside its cage, etc., all will help to keep its activities in other directions and away from its plumage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or animal food of any kind.

ZEBRA FINCHES IN A CAGE (F. E. N.).—To say that this popular species will breed in a cage is not correct, for many have been so bred, and to say that they will breed as freely in a cage as they do in an aviary is equally incorrect; at the same time, once you have got a pair to settle down to nesting, as you are giving them an ample dietary, and they should have reared; nevertheless, I do not think Zebra Finches are quite happy in a double breeder for nesting purposes; they build rather a bulky domed nest. If you give them an ordinary open box nest or pan they will roof it in, and in the ordinary breeder this is too close to the bottom of the cage, and also too near the front. Occasionally a pair will turn up that will refuse to breed. If you make a cage, say, 30ins. long, 18ins. deep, and 24ins. high, you should have a good prospect of success. Fix a wire flowerpot basket up near the top of one back corner, and in the other corner a small box about 9ins. square all ways, with a small hole (1ins. dia.) near the top of one side, this hole to face the light, screening both receptacles with a heater spray, you will have done all you can to make success probable. I may say young are thrown out of the nest at times in the aviary. Grass and hay will suffice for nesting material. Push a little hay in the wire basket roughly, so as to indicate its purpose. Bengalese, because they are in a cage, should not continually lay shell-less eggs, it's a case of weakness, but Bengalese are a domestic species called into being by the crossing of two nearly-related species, in the far past, and are very irregular as to nesting, incubating, etc., but they have been bred in a cage, also successfully crossed with others of the Mannikin group. You must keep the new arrivals warm, not too soft in a cage; give them chilled water at first, soft water if possible. Introduce the bath carefully, not allowing them to get too wet at first.

BLUE-FRONTED AMAZON (R. W. C.).—It is presumably a newly imported specimen; a fair number have come to hand recently. A bird that was a talker will talk again just as soon as it settles down in its new home. Keep it amused, where it will see most of the household life without being unduly scared, talk to it, especially when it is in restless mood, and it should soon prove responsive. Diet: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, pieces of stale bread, biscuit and plain cake, with, of course, grit, cuttlebone, and water. If the bird has been accustomed to boiled maize continue to supply it. As you have received it at the commencement of the cold season, keep it fairly warm, out of draught, yet not in a stuffy corner.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

W. Wells.—We are making investigations into the subject of your letter, and will deal with the matter after these have been concluded.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post: It is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the effect of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Zam-Buk

VETERINARY

FANCIERS & BIRD LOVERS.

THIS new preparation, having already been put through the several tests, is found to fill admirably the requirements of a first-aid for the Aviary.

Zam-Buk in its veterinary form is still free from animal fats, and, as before, is essentially vegetable in origin. Veterinary or "Red" Zam-Buk is so soothing in its action that it can be used with the utmost safety and assurance of the best healing results. For Cramp, Baldness, Scaliness, Scurfy Leg, Feather Disease, Influenza and Bronchial Trouble "Vet" Zam-Buk is invaluable. Directions with each box.

To distinguish "Vet." Zam-Buk from the Zam-Buk sold for human use, Veterinary Zam-Buk is reddish in colour and is sold in RED TINS enclosed in a red-printed package. The prices are the popular 1/1½ for ordinary size or 2/9 for a large box containing nearly four times the small size. Of all Chemists and Medicine Vendors; or direct from The Zam-Buk Laboratories, Leeds.

LARGEST STOCK IN THE NORTH.

Gentlemen, I invite you to see the largest and best stock in the North. I have hundreds of first-class specimens. Please note, it costs you nothing to try my birds; I send all out on 7 days' approval for cash or deposit. Give me a trial please, and I guarantee you will not regret it. I am patronised by all the leading fanciers and judges, also Miss Vesta Tilley, Tom Leamore, Pat Rafferty, Dr. Bodie, Fred Ricaby, and other stars. Look, it is acknowledged that Mr. Harry Allen and myself have the finest strain of singing Linnetts ever heard; our wins are too numerous to mention. H.M., mad, proud, and will sing anywhere, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, 20/- each; also a grand lot of quality singing Linnetts, taught under my undefeated champion of England (cup winner), at 2/6, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each; these birds are same class as supplied to all the leading Linnet singers. I have a nice lot of kitchen songsters, 1/6, 2/- each, and a few good youngsters, 1/- each. Catching Linnetts, specially trained for call birds, 1/6, 2/- 2/6 each; time singers, 2/-, 3/- each; real giant peartree cock Goldfinches, on full song, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each; extra giants, with deep square cut blaze, richly tanned, grand shape, 4/6, 5/6 each, and two monsters, 7/6 and 10/6 each, win anywhere, one of this class won 3rd prize at York with damaged tail—hard luck. You will have to go a long way to see a better class of Goldies than these I have. Also a few giant Goldies, sold as Scandinavians, 3/-, 3/6 each. I will advertise the Scandinavians as soon as they arrive, if ever they do arrive during war; monster yellow Greenfinches, 1/-, 1/6, and one topper 2/6; h.m. Twite, win anywhere, 7/6; H.M. Bramblefinch, a good one, 7/6; Corn Bunting, giant, 3/6; cock Chaffinch, aviary moulted, ready to win, 3/-; Norwich type cock Linnetts, with extra rich brown, feather like silk, well pencilled, good heads and giants, 2/6, 3/6 each. I have sent winners all over the British Isles. Gem of a Redpoll, beautifully laced, 2/6; cock Larks, straight as arrows, fit for any bench and on grand song, 1/-, 1/6; and one topper, 2/-; cock Goldfinch Mules, giants, on full Finch song, 7/6, 8/6, and one stornor 10/6. I have sold my champion Linnet Mule at 50/-, but I have now the best Canary on Linnet song ever heard, he is marvellous, write for particulars. Cock Canaries, Yorks., Norwich, Borders, on full vigorous song day and gas light, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6 each. I have also a few winning Yorkshire cocks for disposal, at 12/6, 15/6 each, guaranteed honestly worth 40/- each; good hens, 2/-, 2/6; muling hens, 3/-, 3/6 each; state your requirements, please. I can supply any kind of British for show or singing; all on approval. Write at once, you will be delighted; no waiting: Fred Allen, British Bird Champion, 156, Porter-st., Aviaries, Hull. (22)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 21d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

Prize-money for Burton show has been paid out, writes Mr. A. Wood; anyone overlooked should apply to the sec.

Mr. D. Hamilton writes that he has bred 100 young birds, not 10 as stated in his advertisement under Border Fancier last week.

We hear that all claims, tradesmen's accounts and prize-cards in respect of Liverpool show have been posted. Anyone overlooked should apply at once to the Secs.

Despite a heavy loss on our open show, all prize-money and money specials were paid within a week of show, writes Mr. J. A. Lees, Hon. Treas., Oxford C.B.S.

Mr. H. Best, hon. sec., Leeds Roller C.C., 5, Alma Place, Beckett Street, Leeds, writes that schedules for the open contest, Nov. 12, 13, are ready, and a copy will be sent on application.

All birds were dispatched from Alfreton by 8.30 p.m. on Saturday night, and all prize-money was paid out on Nov. 2, writes Mr. G. Beardall, Sec. Any exhibitor who may have been overlooked please write.

I have sold my yellow Norwich hen, 1st at Newcastle, to Mr. A. H. McLean, of Bonhill, Dunbartonshire, for £10, writes Mr. W. McGinn. This is the third Norwich I have sold for two figures, and I wish the purchaser every success.

Owing to a printer's error in our last issue, the wrong name and address appeared in the advertisement beginning "Inimitable Bargains" under Norwich heading. This should have been G. Cubley, Lutton Gowts, Long Sutton, Lincs.

Barrow C.B.A. Committee, writes Mr. D. McFarlane, hon. sec., has sent out this week over four hundred letters, each containing five tickets to secs. all over England, with the patriotic view of helping the widows and orphans of our heroes who have given their lives for King and country, and I hope secs. who have received these will do their best to help those in need. Everything is looking well for a great success.

The Sheffield O.S. is getting so well known that four entries have been received from New South Wales for its show on Nov. 5-6. We hear by wire, just as we are going to press, that the entry amounts to nearly 1,000.

We paid all prize-money out in four days, writes Mr. H. H. Mortimer, hon. sec. Aber-tillery C.B.S. Many exhibitors who visited the show were paid on the day of the show. Kindly thank all exhibitors who entered at our show for the support they gave us.

The winner of 2, vhc, and c, in the Un-flighted Yellow Norwich class at Oxford show was Mr. A. Lewin, not Lewis as reported, and in Buff Green Border Hens at Liverpool Mr. J. Johnston, not Montgomery, was 1st and 3rd. At Burton show, 2nd in Goldfinch class, and 1st in Bullfinches, should read Camm, not Canner and Cannon, as printed.

Crest fanciers are requested to note, writes Mr. W. Hutchison, hon. sec., that Glasgow and Dist. C.B.A. is under the patronage of S.C.C.C., and exhibitors competing for medal must show in club cages with regulation drinker attached. Entries to be marked "S.C.C.C." (omitted in schedules posted).

Owing to the Military having taken over the village hall, writes Mr. J. Napier, hon. sec. Colinton and Currie Parishes O.S., we have been compelled at the last moment to transfer our show of Saturday to the United Free Church Hall, which is quite a good hall for a show, it being well lighted.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR CANARY BREEDERS.

WE wonder if Canary breeders have grasped the significance of the advertisements which appeared in our issue of last week asking for Canaries in any quantity for export.

The war has told hardly upon many classes of our countrymen, and there can be no doubt that among those that have suffered with the rest are bird-keepers in general. There is no cloud without a silver lining, however, and Canary breeders will certainly have justification for optimism. An opportunity without precedent is now before them. The trade in German-bred Roller Canaries is at an end for a long period, if not permanently, notwithstanding the statement in a London newspaper that the traffic is still being carried on via Holland, and a boundless prospect is opened up in connection with the supply of English Canaries, Rollers or others, to the United States. Wages in America are reckoned by the dollar, and in many cases a United States citizen, earning, as he does, dollars to the English worker's shillings, spends them with about the same degree of respect for their value.

The American demand for English Canaries has always been large, and it will now be multiplied in its extent. If our breeders do not rise to the occasion they will have only themselves to blame. We think there is little fear of such a contingency, and we are looking forward with full confidence to a period of prosperity for our English breeders who are able to grasp the opportunity now being presented to them.

Since going to press with schedule, writes Mr. J. Jackson, Sec. Cockermouth F.S., we have appointed Mr. G. Wilson, Frizington, to judge British and Foreign Birds. Schedules will be sent to all last year's exhibitors. We have the patronage of B.F.C.C. and Cumberland and Westmorland Y.C.C.

The Sale C.B.S. will hold an open show on Dec. 10 and 11, writes Mr. Horace Widnes, asst. sec. Schedules will be sent to all who exhibited last year, and full particulars will be advertised in CAGE BIRDS, as usual. Northern societies who have not fixed date should kindly take notice of dates, to avoid clashing.

Mr. Jas. B. Clarke, whose articles on wild seeds must have been of great value to many of our readers, writes as follows:—"I am at present stationed at the Bridge of Earn, and as I cannot get CAGE BIRDS I should be greatly obliged if any of your readers would kindly send any of their old copies to me at 5, Robertson Street, Dundee, or addressed Pte. Jas. Clarke, No. 4246, Company A, 3.4 Black Watch Royal Highlanders, Bridge of Earn. There are many fanciers in our battalion who miss their CAGE BIRDS."

Special arrangements have been made for collecting and delivering all exhibits arriving by rail for Eastleigh show, writes Mr. J. Alderslade, sec., 64, Desborough Road, Eastleigh, and they will be carted from and to the station free. We trust that fanciers will give us a bumping entry, as we are giving 30 per cent. of the gate for the wounded soldiers arriving at this station. There are at present over 500 here, and fresh arrivals are coming every week, this being a large receiving station. I shall be pleased to forward a schedule to any fancier who has not received one.

Schedules for Halifax O.S. Show are being sent out, anyone who has not received one should apply at once to the sec., H. Clegg, 15, Melrose Street, Lee Mount, Halifax.

All birds arranged for direct transit from Carlisle Show to Manchester Show were delivered in plenty of time for judging, writes Mr. F. Hayward, hon. sec., but part of Mr. Fairhurst's team, which were not sent direct, were delayed in transit, and were absent from judging.

I have taken over the secretaryship of the City of Birmingham C.B.S., writes Mr. A. C. Shirley, 155, Hobmoor Road, Small Heath, Birmingham, and hope that fanciers will give me a good start by sending a bumping entry at our open show, Dec. 1 and 2. Our late sec., Mr. J. H. Jones, has been forced to resign on account of illness.

The Coventry Godiva C.B.S., writes Mr. A. Wright, Show Manager, has put on two classes for novice Norwich for the show Nov. 27, with full prize-money guaranteed independent of entries. Novices should see that the guarantors are not called upon, so that we can give more classes another year. Members have also decided against any sliding scale, and, as we have specials in galore, we are looking forward to a bumping entry.

THE D.C.M. FOR A MEMBER OF "THE POULTRY WORLD" STAFF.

IT is with great pleasure and no little pride that we learn that a late member of the staff of our sister journal, THE POULTRY WORLD, has been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for gallantry on the field of battle. We refer to Sergeant K. S. Bowron, who up to the outbreak of war was indoor advertising manager of "P.W."

Sergeant (then Private) Bowron was called to the colours on the fateful day in August of last year when Great Britain's ultimatum to Germany expired. As a member of that distinguished corps known as the London Scottish, he has played his part nobly in the stern work which has fallen to the lot of his regiment, passing unscathed through the historic charge at Neuve Chapelle which so stirred the pulse of the English-speaking race, and winning his way to the rank of Sergeant.

Unfortunately, in the recent conflict which brought him the medal coveted by all soldiers, two dum-dum bullets found billets in his shoulders, and Sergt. Bowron is at the moment invalided at an Edinburgh hospital, where our readers will be glad to know he is making very satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Enquiries made, as we go to Press, at the Headquarters of the London Scottish, confirm the good tidings. The officials there are naturally proud of the honour that has come the way of Sergt. Bowron, and, through him, to his regiment. We understand that the distinction was earned by the cool and capable manner in which he handled his platoon while under heavy fire.

We are sorry to hear from Mr. J. Duncan, Inverness, that his noted Thrush "Highland Queen" had its long journey to the London and P.O.S. show for nothing, as it was delayed in transit and arrived too late for competition. Mr. Duncan says "The bird arrived home safely, and we are not downhearted yet."

Mr. F. W. Jordan, hon. sec., Derby C.B.S., writes that the society is holding its 57th annual members' show on Nov. 13, at Norman-ton Hotel, Derby. The schedule contains 54 classes, 28 for young birds, 18 old birds, and 8 Brit. Two cups and seven medals are for competition. Mr. J. H. Roe is to judge, and the committee expect a record in entries.

I have had a successful first year as a Canary fancier, writes Mr. E. H. Simmons, Oxford, and have derived great help from CAGE BIRDS every week, and also from "Canary Breeding for Beginners," for which many thanks. Next year I hope to try my hand at exhibiting.

An Address Wanted.

Will the querist who sent us a query last week over the nom de plume of "Jack Watford" please send us his correct address? A reply has been sent to the name and address given, and has been returned endorsed "not known."

Extra Specials at Cardiff.

Mr. Alf. Shellam is giving 10s. 6d. for most points in the Mule and Hybrid section at Cardiff Show, Nov. 17, 18, writes Mr. E. Thomas, sec., also 5s. for the best Light Mule and 5s. for the best Dark Mule. I received these specials too late to put in schedule.

Extension of Entries at Bradford.

It has been suggested to me, writes Mr. A. Simons, hon. sec. Bedford and Beds. C.B.S., that it may be inconvenient for some to get their entries to me by Saturday night, so I am accepting entries up to mid-day post Monday, Nov. 8. However, all who can get them in by Saturday should kindly do so, as it will be better for all concerned.

A. COLLEY, Sec.

IN LIEU OF THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL.

THE cancelling of the Scottish National for the current year was a blow to the Fancy, not only in Scotland, but also over the border, and, as already published in your paper, an Open Show in Glasgow has been arranged to fill the vacancy. At a meeting on Nov. 4, the following officials were entrusted to carry out the work:—President J. F. Park; vice-presidents, Messrs. John McLay and A. Macleod; sec. and treas., R. Heggie, Stepps, N. Glasgow; assist. sec., W. Hutchinson, 167, Hospital St., Glasgow, S.S.; show manager, F. Taylor; committee, Messrs. R. B. Gibb, A. Sloan, R. Jeffrey, Arthur Hunter, D. F. Webster, P. Houston, E. Barron, J. Sinclair, M. Craig, R. Hamilton, A. Chalmers, R. Martin, R. Watson, E. Taylor, Jas. Crone, T. Fraser, Geo. Smart, John Fulton, Wm. Steel, E. Steel, A. F. McLeay, S. Woods, J. Pin-nock, C. Martin, J. Sloan, Smith, McClymont, A. Steel, etc.; auditors, Messrs. Peter Thorn and John Young.

The new Central Halls, 25, Bath-st., have been secured, but not without difficulty. The managers granted same at a much reduced cost owing to the object being to Red Cross Fund. The officials are very fortunate to have such a hall for the occasion, it being well lit, both in day time and night time, also free from draughts, and is the most central of halls in the City for stations.

The patronage of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Glasgow, has been given, and the Right Hon. the Countess of Glasgow is to open the Show on Friday, 31st December.

The classification has been adjusted and runs as follows, viz.:—Nor. 20, Crest 11, Bord. 13, Yorks. 12, Mule 10, British 20, and Foreign 7. Novice and selling classes have been provided in all sections. Mr. P. Arnott, of Alton, the well known exhibitor of foreign birds, is to attend to the wants of the foreign section, and exhibitors may therefore send their most valuable exhibits without fear. Well known and competent judges have been selected, and these will be made known later in "Cage Birds."

Now, as this show is being run for one year only, and entirely for the Red Cross Society, the object in view being that a bed or beds be instituted in some hospital in name of the Cage Bird Fancy, it is to be hoped that all fanciers will do their best to make the show one of the best yet held, and a little help from all will see the object attained. It is to be hoped that if a bed or beds be secured that all fanciers' names will appear on the roll, and a little done by each will secure this honour.

Tickets at 1s. and 6d. each have now been issued, and if any one wishing to help in the cause by disposing of a few of them will drop a postcard to secretary and state the number required these will be sent by return. Donations, or specials will also be welcomed from any one.

Schedules will be posted early in December to all exhibitors at the Glasgow and District Show. Others wishing to patronise the Show please send a postcard at any time, and same will be attended to. This step has been taken owing to printed matter being so expensive at present, besides which lots of past exhibitors have joined His Majesty's forces, and others are engaged in Government work. A postcard will do all that is necessary, and it now lies with fanciers to make this a show above all shows.—R. Heggie, Hon. Sec.

Midland Roller Canary Contest.

The Nationality of One of the Judges.

SIR,—May I as a Briton protest against the employment of a German judge? The Club is evidently ashamed to publish his name under your show advertisements, but it is mentioned under Club Reports. If the members of the M.R.C.C. are worthy of the name of Britons they would not only debar enemy alien judges, but all exhibitors with the faintest trace of enemy alien blood in their veins. If they are naturalised, so much the worse.

W. WELLS.

[Upon receipt of this letter we communicated its purport to the hon. sec. of the Midland Roller C.C., and his reply is printed below.—EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

SIR,—In reply to yours of 21st inst. re the appointment of Mr. Jacquemin as a judge at the forthcoming Roller Contest of the M.R.C.C. As to the nationality of M. Jacquemin, although born in Germany, his parents and grandparents were French, and this fact no doubt was the reason of our authorities granting him exemption from internment. He was denationalised by the German Government twenty-three years ago, because he would not return to Germany to undergo the usual military training. It is quite evident from the above facts our authorities do not look upon him as an enemy alien, so your correspondent has quite overstepped the mark.

Our reason for appointing him to judge is his undoubted capabilities; he has judged at Roller contests held by every Roller Society in England and Wales for several years, and not only is he a very capable man, but also very popular with exhibitors. Why his name did not appear in the advert. of CAGE BIRDS I cannot say, as I am under the impression it was sent on the copy for the same along with others. In our Club report of a month ago, which appeared in CAGE BIRDS, he is down to judge along with Mr. Willows, the only two we at that time had fixed upon. I may mention we have had very great difficulty in getting judges, as the bulk of the prominent fanciers cannot afford to give the time from their business to go out judging. We have tried for months to get judges outside our own society, and have only been able to get one, viz., Mr. Tomlinson, so that our own members have had to come out to save the show from being abandoned. You can quite set your correspondent's mind at rest, as the authorities are quite satisfied as to the nationality of the gentleman in question, or he would not have been at large.

J. W. THOMSON, Hon. Sec. M.R.C.C.

Will the Fancy Stand the Sliding Scale?

SIR.—Fanciers will stand the sliding scale if worked properly. Most exhibitors want to know what chance they have of paying expenses, and most societies limit their liabilities. They are willing to lose two or three shillings on a class. Most societies limit the entry to eight to carry full prize money, though, if there are seven they would still be getting a little over, but they lose a little on five. I think in cases where the entry does not exceed four, the society should add sixpence to each entry, and pay on the sliding scale. But one of the chief causes of short entries is cancelling of classes. When a fancier makes his entry, he makes it to suit his case or cases, and nine times out of ten the classes cancelled are those he thinks he has a chance in. He has to send empty cages and pay cost of carriage the same as if they were full, and this disgusts him.

Take Hanley as an illustration. Seven classes—four cancelled. I should have made a few entries but for this clause. I know four fanciers entered one each in Class 1. If they had worked on the sliding system there would have been something for visitors to see, without much cost to the society.

The Returning of Birds from Shows.

SIR,—In this week's issue of CAGE BIRDS I notice Mr. Wm. Middleton giving his experience of railway bungling in regard to sending his birds to Liverpool show; now I would like to give a bit of my experience, and leave it to your readers to judge who bungled. I sent four birds to a show in the North of England, and took care to send them by Caledonian Railway. My reason for this is that the North British Railway refused to deliver my birds, and it would have meant a loss of time for me to leave work and call for them. My experience of shows is that birds at close of show are despatched by same railway as they come. Last Sunday I called at the Station for my birds and was told they were not there. I at once thought the show officials had kept them over till Monday, but imagine my surprise on Monday when I got a wire from railway office telling me to call for my birds. I did so, and found two of them just dying, and the other ones pretty soft. I don't know how long they were on the journey, or when they were sent off, but I think that if stewards had sent them by the right road there would have been no cause for complaint. I don't mention name of show, just to see if other exhibitors have had some experience.

Mr. H. J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—I have known Mr. H. Chick for 14 or 15 years as a noted British bird exhibitor and judge, and I am most surprised that anyone should try to run Mr. Chick down. I have shown birds on the same bench with him, I have shown birds under his judging, I have listened to his discourse or lecture on birds in Nottingham, and have never heard anyone speak disrespectfully of him, of his lectures, or his judging, but have always heard him highly spoken of as a good, honest, straightforward British bird judge. When a man can say openly what Mr. Chick has said, that he has never shown a borrowed bird, or a bird with stained plumage, there is not much wrong with that man. It is often the case that those who talk most have the least room. For the sake of the fancy, let all disputes drop; try to do good and not harm.

R. HOLMES.

Moulting British Birds on Wild Seeds.

SIR,—Having read with interest the articles in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, as to the feeding of British Finches, I should like to add a few words if it would be of help to my fellow fanciers at this trying, and I may add expensive time for the bird fancier.

Mr. S. J. Nicholas referred, in CAGE BIRDS of Oct. 9, to the value of wild seeds from the thrashing machine. I have kept every British Finch, from the Redpoll to the Hawfinch, have bred Goldie-Bullies, also Greenie-Bullies, and have kept my Hybrid pairs in vigorous health all the winter through entirely on seed from the thrashing machine, with a few sunflower seed about twice weekly as tit-bits. But the fancier must make sure that he has a good sample before keeping his birds entirely on this diet, and a walk round the fields during the summer months will give the fancier some idea which farmer to visit when the thrashing time comes. I have also found the wild seeds very beneficial for Canaries, giving them a handful in the flights twice a week after the moult; they seemed to take great delight in picking it over. My experience with British Birds is that if fed as near to their natural diet as possible they keep in better health and plumage than when fed on an artificial diet.

F. GROOM.

Has the L.C.B.A. Been "Collaring" Dates?

SIR,—If you will allow me, I should like to reply to my friend Mr. Pretty's letter which appeared in last week's issue, although I do not know that the matter can be considered of general interest. Naturally one would not object to a reasonable protest, i.e., if these dates had been purposely "filched" or the protest had been couched in less offending terms. The only reason that a reply was made at all was to do away with such an impression. It is quite pardonable; in fact, one admires the Watford folk for highly valuing their fixture, but it is as well to also remember that conditions unknown to them influenced the unfortunate settlement of the time.

To be explicit, these dates were offered and accepted in June, and it was not until after this that I found that they were almost the same as those chosen by Watford. It is expecting a good deal for me to remember above all other items in a busy year that I should be judging at Watford a day or so before that time. At a later date I certainly did see Mr. Pretty somewhere, and under the circumstances I did advise him that January would be a better time, because I knew the bigger show, if held, would damage the smaller, and as January (the month in which their last show was held) proved a pretty successful time I thought that by doing this both would have better chances of success. Later, when I had been asked to act as show manager, I also did state in the course of correspondence with another esteemed Watford exhibitor that I might have to cancel my engagement; but I wished in any case to avoid doing so. Then when I had accepted the position of show manager I had hardly inserted the advertisement before I received notification from the proprietors of the Horticultural Hall concerning police regulations, which I immediately could see would probably cancel the show, and naturally under such indecisive circumstances I made no formal resignation of the engagement. Had I done so I should have been prepared to find them an efficient substitute, or pay them the amount of my fee.

I am quite willing to believe that Mr. Goodall did not wish to offend, because I have never known him willingly so to do, and I think Watford folk will believe me when I say that I have always had the greatest respect for their enthusiasm, a regard which I also know is shared by many other London fanciers. If they will only remove from their minds the impression that the committee of management wilfully rode over them I think there is nothing more to be said, and I think we all know each other well enough to believe that this little correspondence contains neither resentment nor bitterness.

ALLEN SILVER.

SIR,—As Mr. Bunce and myself were the only two committeemen who visited Clapham show, I take it we were the two committeemen our friend Frostick was alluding to. If so, I should like to point out to him a little mistake he has made in his letter. In the course of our conversation I was asked what we were going to do about our show, and I said that as we could not fix our hall for another date, and as the military authorities had commandeered all the halls in the town, we were compelled to cancel our show, which puts quite a different light on the matter. I am sure we all agree that the three clubs are deserving the thanks of all fanciers for trying to keep the Fancy going, but I am sure there is no small society that has done more to keep things going than Watford. A glance at the L. and P.O.S. catalogue will prove that 29 exhibits came from four members of the Watford Society. I may say I should not have written this letter, but as committeemen we have been placed in an awkward position. We trust that should our show be held, our friend Frostick will send us a good entry.

W. BUCKINGHAM.

Why Was Clapham Show a Failure?

SIR,—It is a matter of small moment whether my name is Smith or Brown, and it certainly behoves Mr. Hose to answer the questions I put to him. Should he fail, then the Fancy will answer them at their next venture. It is perfectly clear that what the London and P.O.S. could do toward helping the Fancy the Clapham people could have done had they the well-being of the Fancy at heart.

LONDONER.

SIR,—Would "Londoner" please explain what he meant by saying he paid sixpence for "a piece of paper"? He has made a mistake if he is referring to the catalogue.

I held the gate from the time the show opened till it closed (or rather until the birds began to be packed up), and only absented myself a few minutes. I even had my tea brought to me, so that the other members of the show committee might not have to leave what they were doing to take my place; therefore I ask when and at what time "Londoner" paid the sixpence for the piece of paper. The catalogues were fourpence, and I do not think sixpence was demanded.

Perhaps "Londoner" was in a hurry to see how he stood on the cards, and did not stop to pick up his change, and I am sorry if there has been a mistake, but if "Londoner" would kindly send his or her name and address to our worthy sec., I am quite sure he would be only too delighted to refund the twopenny; or if sent to me, I will forward two penny stamps.

"Londoner" must please remember that I am not a paid commissioner, but a member, not only of the Clapham Committee, but also of the L. and P.O.S. Committee, and should be pleased to rectify any error (if there has been one made).

The Standardising of Show Cages.

SIR,—At a meeting of the Committee of the Brighton and Hove C.B.A., held Sept. 8, the question was raised as to the varieties of show cages, and the distinct pattern of show cage used by certain fanciers different to those in general use. After much discussion it was agreed to write the National British Bird and Mule Club Committee—the British exhibitors being the worst offenders—as to the adoption of a fixed pattern of cage for the exhibition of British birds, etc., and also to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, asking him to kindly publish this letter in the correspondence columns, inviting open discussion as to what means can be taken to standardise all show cages, say by the formation of a central committee of authority to which any club can be affiliated, they to have the power to adopt standard patterns of show cages for different varieties of cage birds. In this slack season and scarcity of open shows, it seems to be the time to move in this all important question.

Hard Lines for the City and Suburban A.C.B.

SIR,—By an unworthy subterfuge the date of our show, which was booked since last February, has been taken from us. Novice Birds in Open Classes.

An Exhibitor's Straightforward Apology.

SIR,—I wish through the medium of your valuable paper to apologise to the other exhibitors in Classes 31 and 32 at the L.P.O.S. show for having, by a stupid mistake, entered my birds in these classes. I am no longer a novice. I did not know of my error till I received my catalogue, when I at once wired to the Hon. Sec. to disqualify them.

Is the Southern Norwich P.C. to Live or Die?

SIR,—A meeting was held at the London and P.O.S. show to consider the present position of the club. After discussion it was decided to serve a requisition on the chairman (myself), calling for an extraordinary general meeting, and notice was given that a resolution would be moved that the meeting should reconstitute itself into the annual general meeting for 1914. It was fully recognised that the rules will have to be amended to meet the altered times, and members desirous of proposing an alteration of any rule or rules should communicate with me without delay.

The business of the meeting will be to appoint officers to carry on the affairs of the club till January, consider proposed alterations of rules, and any other business that members may bring before the meeting. Notice of meeting and copy of agenda will be sent to each member by post.

The Scottish Plainhead Club Show.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to announce that the Club Show will be held at Cowdenbeath on Nov. 20, Mr. Fleming, Musselburgh, officiating. Eight classes, confined to rung birds belonging to members of the S.P.C., have been provided, and the club's gold medals are placed to this section. There is a very generous special list provided for the members of the S.P.C., and the novice members have quite a lot to themselves. The Cowdenbeath executive are also providing four open young bird classes, and for those members of the S.P.C. who are competing therein either with rung or unrung birds two good specials have been awarded. It is up to the members of the S.P.C. to support the show, as it is in the interest of a good cause. Anyone who fails to receive a schedule should apply to the secretary of the Cowdenbeath Society, whose address will be found among the show advertisements in CAGE BIRDS. Now then S.P.C., all together.

A British Bird Fancier in Khaki.

SIR,—Not having noticed my name on the Roll of Honour in your popular paper, CAGE BIRDS, which I continue to take, I should like to mention that I enlisted in my old corps, the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, in which I am Battalion Sergt. Major. I have now been in it for four months, and although I have had some very hard work to get through, I have never been happier since I donned the khaki. I would mention that I am at present on a few days' leave, and am stationed as below. If any Nottingham or Mansfield fanciers would like to correspond or visit me I should give them a most cordial welcome. There must be many Nottingham fanciers who know me well, and I feel I should still like to keep in touch with the Fancy and help fanciers in general as much as I can. I have decided to sell all my stock.

THE BULLDOG OF BRITISH FINCHES.

By
J. B. CAUNT
(Beeston).

A well-known British bird exhibitor gives his idea of a perfect exhibition Hawfinch and how to obtain it.

NOTHING in the long list of British birds has captured my fancy and interest more than the "Bulldog" of British Finches, the formidable and kingly Hawfinch. If I remember correctly, my attention was first drawn to this bird by seeing the beautiful specimen exhibited by Mr. R. J. Howe, of Wellingborough. There and then I mentally vowed to obtain one, and one that would not only be a specimen, but, if possible, one that would be a superior of the grand bird which had first taken my fancy.

I may say that in those days there were not many birds of this species which could be compared one with the other, but, thought I, there are plenty flying, so I must get a number, make a selection, moult them, and gain experience in my endeavour to obtain all the necessary show points combined in the one individual bird. It is my purpose here to endeavour to give to the readers of CAGE BIRDS my own idea of a perfect Hawfinch and the way to obtain it.

As a beginning, the would-be possessor of an exhibition Hawfinch must train his mind and eye and fix well in his head what he wants. If he starts with a young bird from the nest, this must be a big one, that is, with plenty of width across the chest, a thick neck, head of a good size and width, and showing a tinge of golden yellow in ground colouring. In a cock bird the whole of the wing flights are black, while in a hen the inner feathers of the flights are grey, and this is the only deciding point of difference in a young bird.

Now we will go straight to the adult stage, and here I would say that a Hawfinch is not in perfect show form, i.e., in size, colour and distinction of markings, until it is at least three years old.

The Points of a Good Bird.

Shape and carriage should be the first points in making a selection. The bird should have a nice, well-moulded body, well filled-in back, and should stand on legs not too short or too long, the body ending in a tail which is very short in comparison with the tails of other Finches. The short, thick neck must carry a massive skull which, looking at the bird from the front, must be as wide as possible. It must show a good rise from the front to the back and continue wide until it meets the neck.

Do not be persuaded that a bird with a very big body, simply because it is a monster, is necessarily a good one; if it has a small, insignificant head and a thin neck it would be more after the ideal of a duck than a Hawfinch. I have seen birds of this nature on the show bench, and have heard remarks that they should have won because of their size; but size is not the only point necessary. It is size all over, combined with proportion, that is wanted on an ideal specimen.

Now as to colour and markings, I think I cannot too strongly impress that each individual marking must be as solid as possible in colour, the edge of each marking or colour not being lighter than the whole. The back of the bird must be very dense and solid, and its shape must be like the impression of one's thumb, and it must continue up the side of the beak right up to the eye. The beak should be short and thick, a long beak entirely spoils the expression of this noble bird.

The whole of the head and cheeks must be a rich solid chestnut in colour, such as some Canary enthusiasts would describe as "hot." If the bird is particularly good in this respect all the other colours on the body will be good also. The neck should be of a bluish grey, which should merge into the rich warm brown of the back.

The wing bar should be bold and well defined, and greyish in colour, the tail coverts ruddy brown, tail blackish brown tipped with white. The chest of the bird should be of a rich warm brown colour, showing slightly a pinkish change, and merging into a pure white at the abdomen. The feet and toes are of a warm bluish colour. The hen Hawfinch in colour is of a much paler shade all over and shows, as before stated, three or four grey feathers in her wing flights. The breast and under-parts are of a very pale brown.

To get the Hawfinch steady, continual handling should be the rule, and the confidence of the bird should be obtained by giving him a mealworm or two several times a day.

The Proper Kind of Cage.

The stock cage I prefer for a Hawfinch is about 14 inches long, 10 inches wide and 12 inches high. It should have a seed-hopper running along one end, and the wire front should be fitted with a door, in order that a bath may be given when necessary. The judicious use of the bath is very necessary to obtain that beautiful condition upon which keen exhibitors set so much value.

A good stock food for a Hawfinch is grey and white sunflower, sound Dutch hemp, clean and sweet, canary seed and linseed. Berries of all sorts may be given as they come into season, those of the mountain ash and hawthorn being a good natural colouring agent. To colour feed a Hawfinch artificially is, in my opinion, on a par with colour feeding a Greenfinch; the natural and lovely colour of the bird is altogether spoilt thereby.

British versus Foreign.

Some exhibitors have a fancy for Siberian Hawfinches, and these no doubt have the advantage of size. I have imported dozens of these directly, and find that usually they have a greyish cast about the feathers very similar to the Continental Goldfinch, and I think this tends to reduce that richness of colouring so very ideal in an exhibition specimen.

In giving my opinion of an exhibition bird I do not claim to have any monopoly of the knowledge of what an exhibition Hawfinch should be, and I would only state that in expressing my opinion I am giving the experience of one who is a British bird fancier for the love of the thing, and one who takes a special pleasure in rambling in the country and watching and noting British birds in their natural state. If any prospective keepers of the Hawfinch profit by the reading of this short article I shall feel amply repaid; anyway, I shall have the satisfaction that I have endeavoured to do my little bit for the Fancy generally.

FINE SHOW AT MANCHESTER.

The Manchester and Northern Counties O.S. held its 33rd Annual Show in the Co-operative Hall, Downing-street, Oct. 29 and 30, and, considering the present undecided state of affairs, the show can only be described as a pronounced success. Over 800 birds were on view, which, although not the number we are used to seeing at Manchester, must be considered satisfactory when we look at the reduced classification and other factors.

The position of Cottonopolis on the map is all on the side of success for the holding of a bird show. The city is what might be termed the pivot of the most important railways in the Kingdom, and is easy of access to any fancier, whether he resides in England, Wales, or Scotland. Then, again, being so central, the show generally gets its full share of visitors—an essential factor on the financial side. We noticed many fanciers from both far and near, including a good sprinkling of the gentler sex. We always think it augers well for any hobby when we can get the ladies interested, for, after all we may say or do, it is the hand which rocks the cradle that rules the dovecote.

The room is well lighted from above, and is spacious and lofty. The birds were staged on the three-tier system, which is advantageous in regard to space, but has its disadvantages when viewing the birds. One has to be a kind of a cross between a Guardsman and a Goliath when viewing the top row, without taking down the cage—and some fanciers object to handling them. Anyhow, the show was voted a success on all sides. Many were heard to speak in eulogistic terms of the management. Birds were packed up in good time, and everybody seemed to be so pleased with himself that we wondered if everyone had been successful.

We hardly like to mention the officials for fear we should not be able to do full justice to them. Keenness is it which makes the fancier, and it is no less keenness which makes an ideal secretary. Mr. Hayward is one of those gentlemen that has keenness written all over him. He has tact and capability—two essentials to the making of a good secretary. Everybody knows the old war-horse, Mr. Raynes, the Assistant Show Manager. We hardly like to say how long we have known him in an official capacity for the Manchester and N.C.O.S., and don't see how he is to be replaced. He is one of those unselfish fanciers who never begrudge another's success, and comes up smiling every time; and his unselfishness is only equalled in capacity by his efficiency and willingness to do the spade work. Mr. S. T. Oldham, so prominent just now in Hybrid and British circles, is the President; while Mr. E. H. Fulcher is the genial Chairman. They are supported very ably by a big committee of workers.

Among the notabilities present we spotted Messrs. Baker (Cotes), Hayter (Notts), P. Waring, A. Hirst, Dixon (Wigan), Tatman, Howe (Wellingborough), Allison (Aberdeen), Yates (Cherterton), W. A. Bladen, Sam Cook, W. N. Turner, J. Critchley, J. W. Johnson, Whitney, Middleton, and many others.

Norwich were the feature of the show. They were not so numerous as usual here, no doubt owing to the N.P.C. patronage being given to Carlisle on the Thursday previous; but there were some real good birds benched by Messrs. Jones and Chester, Sam Cook, W. N. Turner, A. G. Smith, Stafford, Fielding, Green, and others. In Green Norwich, Messrs. Walker, Thornton, Lowe, and McAndrew were the chief winners.

British and Hybrids were fine. Mules especially so. Mr. Heggie, from Scotland, sent down a team of Hybrids, and captured everything possible with them. How do the Scotsmen do it?

We anticipated perfection from the British judge after the correspondence in the Press, but we have to admit a certain amount of disagreement with some of Mr. Chick's awards, notably in the Variegated Canary Hybrid Class and the Greenfinch Class. In the Hybrid Class he placed a Jonque variegated and a buff variegated, in front of a perfect five-pointed Jonque Goldie; while in the Greenfinch Class he placed a big buff first, a bird lacking in symmetry, and with a frilled neck. We agree that size is essential in a British, but we think it should not be made the predominating factor at the expense of colour, shape, and quality, or societies could save judges' fees by borrowing a pair of scales and weighing the exhibits. The noted clear Linnet Mule "Perfection" had to stand down; but he is not in condition. His secondaries are not folded up, and when in thorough condition we think he would give the clear Greenfinch of Mr. Heggie's a good run. We had a talk with Mr. Whitney, the secretary of Sale, and we learned that his society had decided to run an open show on the dates vacated by the L.C.B.A. Perhaps fanciers will bear this in mind, and look out for the advert.

Sales were well up, especially in the selling classes, while the clear yell. Nor. of Messrs. Jones and Chester changed hands at catalogue price. The judges were: Lancs. and Liz., Mr. B. Clegg, in place of Mr. Barras, absent through illness; Nor., J. Bewick; Bords., Mr. Dixon; Yorks., Mr. Dykes and British, Mr. Chick.

Lancashires, although Manchester fanciers have always been the pioneers, did not come up to previous standards. We seemed to miss the giants in the Yellow Plainheads, which were the envy of the Yorkshire breeders, who were on the look-out for length. The Copy seems to be taking everybody's fancy, to the detriment of the deep, long-sided birds we used to see. There seems to be too much of the Crest in the present-day Lancashire; if it is to be a Crest, let us have a Crest, but there was once known such a characteristic as quality. Fanciers go with the times, but are we improving this charming variety? We may be getting the depth, but are we getting too much length with it? Maybe the best were not on view owing to the late moult, or maybe their owners are on War work, but there is no doubt new blood is required. If exhibitors cannot support shows on their own madden, how can they expect outside shows to put classes on? We may be hitting hard, but the truth is better than a glorified report.

Lizards made a grand show, being very attractive to all visitors. We shall soon see new aspirants in this variety. No doubt the energetic push of the Sec. (Mr. J. Rukin) has had a lot to do with the success of this variety lately. He must have felt proud when he saw such specimens as were on view. Where does the magnificent "work" of a Lizard end? Looking at the wonderful clear cap, the perfect spangled back, and the choice facing at waist, there is no wonder the Lizard is a captivating bird. Mr. F. Hamer had quite a field day. It may not be good for the Fancy when one man is picking up all the spoils, but credit must be given where it is due. He who brings the exhibit to perfection is justly entitled to the honours he has won by careful study. Cannot Novice Classes be introduced in Lizard circles around Manchester? They have paid in other varieties; it is at least worth a trial.

Yorkshires made a wonderful show. It is a long time since we saw such classes at Manchester, and we are sure Mr. Dykes was in his element in picking them out. Mr. R. Heggie (Glasgow) put down a marvellous team, and picked up a few firsts. Some of the birds were a bit backward, but Messrs. Bulmer, Darlington, Henderson, and Crosby, and Potts staged some birds that will enhance their reputation. We noted many new names amongst the champions, which speaks well for the future of the Yorkshire.

Amateur Yorks. came up well in quality, but down in numbers; no doubt the late moult has affected them. Some of these exhibits would have given the champions a good run, so true were they to type. Size does not seem to be the main feature in Yorkies now—it is type and quality first, as it should be, but a good big one wants some stopping.

Yorkshire Greens were about the poorest lot we have seen out. There must be plenty of them at Liverpool, and good ones at that. Maybe there was a local show at Liverpool. Surely the Green men are not becoming home birds. There was a time when Manchester could bring out 120 in four classes of Greens. Mr. McDermott took three firsts out of a possible four, the odd one going to Mr. Jones.

The "wee gems" always seem to come out on top at this show; a specialist judge is engaged, and the Border men support him. The Greens took prior place, and a rare sight they were. The Tyneside men put down their usual teams, and honours were equally divided. Jimmy Johnstone taking the plums. Mr. Middleton, of Sale, staged a wonder of a buff cock. We saw many fanciers round this variety, and there should be plenty of sales in the near future. Quality was to the fore in the Clears. It is a great pity we cannot seem to get this characteristic in the Yorks. and Norwich to the same extent as in Borders. No wonder many take up the wee gems; they are very prolific, easily kept, and winners and stock birds can be bought at a reasonable figure. Mr. Nelson's buff cock was a spanker, and will be heard of again. Mr. Madagan put his usual well-known team out, and the exhibits of Messrs. Pennington and Egerton were worthy of their place.

Cinnamon Norwich were much down in numbers, but what were on show were a credit to their owners. We thought Mr. Godley's third yellow was about the best we have seen for some time; it is not a "big 'un," but for type and colour he will hold his own anywhere. Mrs. Twiddle had her usual winnings, while Messrs. Hartup and Smalley kept up their reputation.

LANC. COPY. CL. OR TKD. (8): 1, Jamison, buff grizzle copy, monster, deep shoulders, long sided, very leafy feather, clear win; 2, 3, c. Fitton, buff cl. copy, massive shoulders, neat copy, well finished centre, fine cond., 3rd, yell., rare length of side, broad feather for a yell., very nice even copy; 4, Collinge, buff grizzle copy, not quite so well finished, will improve; vhc, hc, Redgard and Stanfield. PLAINHEAD (5): 1, 3, hc, Kidgard and Stanfield, buff cl., rare size, abundance of feather, broad skull, well flashed, full of true Lancs. properties, 3rd yell. cl., bit too racy for a Lancashire, rare size and grand feather; no 2nd or 4th awarded; vhc, Collinge; c. Fitton. BRED 1915 (4): 1, Collinge, buff Plainhead, abundance of leafy feather, rare thickness at top, very long sided, in nice form; 2 and 3 not awarded; 4 and hc, Fitton, buff copy, well radiated from centre, quite covers back, capital feather and plenty of it; vhc, Redgard and Stanfield. HENS (4): 1, Collinge, Plainhead, not a great specimen, but excellent feather, fairly broad shoulders, will improve; 4 and hc, Fitton, yell. copy, nice droop, long sided, thick top end, well balanced wings; vhc, Jamison. LIZ. CL. CAP GOLD (5): 1 and vhc, Hamer, red hot, wealth of even spangling, nicely laced to vent, dark legs and toes; 2 not awarded; 3 and c. Barnes, not so distinct in rowing, lighter legs than winner, nice ground col.; hc, Hampshire. SILVER (5): 1, Hamer, rare spangling, teaming with work, nice size, full of qual, well put down; 2 not awarded; 3, Hordern, very near thing, only beaten lacing, perfect rows of even spangle; vhc, Barnes; hc, Hampshire; c. Mrs. Burgess. BROKEN CAP GOLD (7): 1, Hamer, like a ball of fire, rare finish, feathered like a Java, capital finish to each row of spangle; 2 and c. Hampshire, spangling stands out well, only beaten shape, nice legs and toes, put down in rare form; 3, Hordern, almost a self, topper for work, full of true Lizard properties, just a bit darker, in grand col.; 4, vhc, Barnes, wild, nice rows of even spangle when steady; hc, Redgard and Stanfield. SILVER (10): 1 and vhc, Hamer, like a silver cup for polish, well mooned, spangle almost perfect, in nice order, frosting very pronounced; 2, Rukin, exceptionally fine spangling, must have pressed hard; 3, Teasdale, fails col. and work to above, even work throughout, but small; 4, Hampshire, not the best of wings, otherwise shows nice even work, moves very free; hc, Bosworth; c. Barnes. HENS GOLD A.V. (11): 1, Howard, a gem of the first water, broken cap, a "hot 'un," put down in rare trim; 2, Hampshire, larger spangling, fails in col. of legs to winner, cl. cap, topper for qual. and style; 3, Ridyard and Stanfield, spangle runs into ground col. too much, or would be a good one; 4, Hordern, very smart, spangling neat and perfect, fails in col.; vhc, Rukin; hc, Bosworth; c. Teasdale. SILVER (9): 1, Hamer, clear cap, wealth of spangle, frosting perfect, nice dark legs and toes, well laced to vent; 2, Rukin, clear cap, wild, darker than 1st, will do better when steady; 3 and vhc, Barnes, cl. cap, rare work, well laced to vent, nice col. throughout, wants a bit more time; 4, Hordern, cl. cap, not so well finished in waist markings; hc, Hampshire; c. Howard. YORKS. YELL. (13): 1 and 4, Heggie, a "hot 'un," streets ahead, straight as a rush, full of go, well filled in top, on its own, 4th rare pos., stands like a guardsman, neat wings and tail; 2 and hc, Kearns, nice wedge shape, but faulty wings, capital qual., rare top end for a yell.; 3, Bulmer, grizzle neck, rare length, neat head, shows nice shoulder; vhc, Potts; c. Knowles. BUFF (20): 1, Bulmer, cl., rare top end, boxy feather, well up on pins, full of swank, pipe tail; 2, Heggie, hotter, but not quite so stylish, showed a bit of waist feather when taking notes; 3, Spiby, not the length of winner, and wants a bit more behind, excellent top end and good feather, sweet bird; 4, Heggie, uneven mkl., rare length and style, well up on leg, long sided; vhc, Norton; hc, Wilkinson; c. Hibbert. HEN, YELL. (16): 1 and 4, Heggie, wing and neck mkl., flyer for style, round as a pencil, red hot, a hen to be proud of, 4th a "red hot 'un," full of style, gives the others a good run; 2, Wilkinson, grand wedge shape, nice gloss, rare length behind, well balanced wings and tail, in nice order; 3, Darlington, wing and eye mkl., well up on leg; clear waist, round as a gun barrel; vhc, Knowles; hc, Potts; c. Dooley. BUFF (14): 1, Darlington, wing and eye mkl., neat head, full neck, straight as an arrow, clear win to-day; 2, Heggie, bigger but not so neat, but a wonderful hen for the stud; 3, Henderson and Crosby, racy and well filled in, straight back, glorious wing carr., grand pair of pins; 4, Brown, well up on leg, clean at waist, full of swank, in grand form; vhc, Rothwell; hc, Broughton; c. Bulmer. UNELIG. YELL. (5): 1, Henderson and Crosby, a wonder for Yorks. properties, should make a name, straight as a rush and round as a bottle, wins; 2, Knowles, slimmer, fails at throat to winner, red hot, grand back and wing carr.; 3, Broughton, small but smart, gets up well, clean waist, neat legs, which it uses; 4, Darlington, mkl. wings and head, very racy, plenty behind, round head, good shoulders; vhc, Heggie; hc, Sharples; c. Norton. BUFF (13): 1, Potts, big, rare qual., long sided, round head, well balanced wings, shows plenty of daylight for a buff; 2, Heggie, good shape, nice qual., not a big one, but smart, all there for qual. and col.; 3 and hc, Dooley, very racy, bit weak at neck, neat wing carr., full of swank; 4, weak at neck, neat wing carr., grand bird, wants Bulmer, bit hoopy, otherwise fine. NORWICH. CL. VELL. (8): 1, Jones and Chester, medium size, nice col. and qual., nice head, well filled neck; 2, Fields, Mr. Barker Clegg's ideal, grand bird, if a trifle more subs.; 3, c. Thorpe, nice type, con., and style, loses in qual.; 4, Hardman, rare head, nice round back; vhc, Huggins; hc, Howarth. BUFF (11): 1, Jones and Chester, nice shaped head, grand texture of feather; 2, Hirst, bigger, better col., equal in head, not quite the qual.; 3, Godley, massive head, beaten wing and tail; 4, Fielding, massive head, deep body and well-rounded back, traffic browy; vhc, Sharples; hc, Waring; c. Turner. TKD. OR VAR. BUFF (9): 1, Cook, grand var., lovely round body, broad chest, short wings and tail; 2, Chilton, massive var., big wide head, nice qual. and shape; 3, hc, Turner, var., nice round-bodied bird, good head and type, well-filled neck; 4, Mattinson, eye tick, bigger, round body, very metrical; vhc, Hirst; c, Jones and Chester. HEN, YELL. (11): 1, vhc, Smith, the noted var., grand head, wide and short body, lovely qual.; 2, Jones and Chester, var., very good hen, nice head; 3, Fielding, cl., hot col., neat, not the head; 4, Bruybrook, eyes and wing mark, grand qual., grand entrance; he, Hirst; c, Hartup. BUFF (12): 1, Stafford, massive hen, cl., big body, trifle long; 2, Hargreaves, var., lovely hen, better qual., equal in head, well-filled neck, grand col., not the size, we preferred; 3, Hartup, dark head and wings, very neat, nice type and qual., paler in col.; 4, Grewar, big, rare head and body, almost green; vhc, Sharples; hc, Cook; c, Thorpe. UNFLIG. YELL. (10): 1, he, Turner, well-known var., good wine needs no bush, wins Ramsdens; 2, Lee, very short-bodied cl., neat head; 3, Lingard, rare col., good head, and well-filled neck, not quite so deep in chest; 4, Hargreaves, monster, great head, grand qual., fat on chest spoils his symmetry; vhc, Sharples; c, Stafford. BUFF (16): 1, Fielding, beauty, nice head, short thick neck, and body well rounded, not a big one; 2, 4, Shilton, leader cl., nice bird, beaten in neck; 4th, var., paler in col., and smaller; 3, Allsopp, massive var., good shape and qual., trifle bony, but managed to "push" himself in; vhc, Cook, grand cl., Carlisle winner, extra good; he, Millward; c, Grewar. UNFLIG. HEN (9): 1, Turner, well-known neck mark, grand head and body, trifle pale; 2, Cook, massive buff cl., big head, well-filled neck, grand qual. and col.; 3, Stafford, rare qual., not the size or type; 4, Huggins, cinn. mark, rare head, thick neck, extra qual.; vhc, Thorpe; he, Fields; c, Mitchell. YORKE. GREEN. YELL. (8): 1, and he, Jones, self, not a big one, but neat, rare pencilling and col., gets up well when handled; 2, Postlewaite, self, but stronger, rare cond., nice tone of col., markings well defined, close up; 3 and 4, Rogers, self, looks like the Liverpool winner, full of go, nice shade of grass green col., slimmer than 2nd, 4th bit down, but shows nice pencilling and col. when moved; vhc, Roberts; c, McDermott. BUFF (7): 1, McDermott, self, big strong exhibit, bit dark in col., nicely pencilled, gets up well; 2 and 4, Jones, self, very racy, neat head, long sided, stands on good legs, even shade of col., well put down, 4th self, neat and full of go, nice col. and markings, well carried wings; 3, Hickson, fine, rare qual., nicely pencilled on a grand ground col.; vhc, Roberts; hc, Rogers; c, Postlewaite. YELL. HEN (6): 1, McDermott, self, a big one, nice tone of col., even wing carr., markings a bit blurred; 2 and vhc, Jones, fine, nice qual. and cond., well up on leg, sweet expression, not a big one, but good; 3, Hickson, self, smart, a Yorkie throughout, good wing and tail, fails in col.; 4, Roberts, self, smart and neat, head and neck perfect, wings full of col.; he, Postlewaite. BUFF (5): 1, McDermott, fine tail, nice size, well up on leg, shows nice tone of col. and pencilling; 2 not awarded; 3 and c, Hickson, self, grand pos. and col., wedge shape, plenty of leg, which she uses; vhc, Rogers; hc, Roberts. NOR. YELL. (7): 1, Walker, light throat and underneath, rare massive head, qual. and col.; 2, McAndrew, self, grand head and type, only beaten size; 3, c, Handley, self, grand shape and col., not quite so well filled in neck; 4, vhc, Pugh, light throat, nice col. and type; he, Raynes. BUFF (16): 1, McAndrew, rare head, neck, body, and type; 2, Bruce, self, very similar, only beaten size; 3, Pugh, rare depth, short body, beaten qual.; 4, Handley, light throat, rare type and qual., grand head and neck, we preferred; vhc, Thornton; hc, Fields; c, Hayward. YELL. HEN (9): 1, Thornton, self, excelling in Nor. properties, short and deep; 2, McAndrew, light throat, not so typical; 3, Bruce, light throat and tail, hardly so deep in body; 4, vhc, Walker, fowl tail, grand body and type; he, Handley; c, Pugh. BUFF (9): 1, 2, Lowe, nice hens of good type and qual.; 3, Hargreaves, light throat and tail, hardly so deep; 4, McAndrew, beauty, grand shape, qual., head, and neck, probably an unfluffed, we thought best in class; vhc, Pugh; he, Raynes; c, Walker. BORD. YELL. (12): 1, 2, Johnston, wonder for col., neat head, shows just a nice shoulder, well balanced wings and tail, easy win; 2, similar type and col., not quite so jaunty, but a good one; 3, Collier, bit weak at top, rare col. and cond., moves well; 4, Affleck, sweet head, nice contour, grand tone of true green col.; vhc, he, Middleton; c, Colbeck. BUFF (9): 1, c, Middleton, well moulded buff, full of col., nicely drawn, stands at correct angle; 2, 4, Johnston, similar build, beautiful contour, very jaunty; 4, topper for col. and markings, superior finish, faultless cond.; vhc, Greenwell; he, Whitelaw. YELL. HEN (10): 1, Johnston, a marvel of a lady, a real wonderful col., rare type, about the best we have seen; 2, c, Montgomery, another good one, not disgraced, full of style, markings well defined; 3, vhc, Middleton, sweet contour, grand col., not quite up to winners, moves very freely; 4, Affleck, charming tone of col., boxy feather, takes her perches well. BUFF (7): 1, Johnston, nice type and cond., full of go, well braced wings and tail, clean cut, very jaunty; 2, he, Montgomery, stylish, well pencilled, lacing runs well down waist, neat head, fails col. to winner; 3, c, Middleton, rare qual. and style, correct angle, nicely carried wings and tail; 4, Greenwell, smart, neat, pencilling and col., bit strong; vhc, Collier. CINN. (7): 1, c, Middleton, yell., wonder for true cinn. col., shone like burnished gold, easy win; 2, Colbeck, buff hen, marvel for style, charming feather, well staged, should win in a hen class; 3, Willaston, grand coloured yell., bit strong, stands at nice angle, sweet head and well cut away; 4, vhc, Clare, yell. hen, daisy for type, full of swank, very jaunty, well put down; he, Whitelaw. CL. OR TKD. YELL. (8): 1, Nelson, feathered like a Java, neat head and neck, wings perfect, staged to perfection; 2, Madagan, stronger, wonder for col., well braced wings, full of go, marvel for qual., must have pressed hard; 3, Moore and Son, grizzle cap, rare type and qual., neat head and grand carr.; 4, Drinkwater, clean cut as a cameo, faultless feather, grand head and wings, well staged; vhc, Garbutt; he, Royle; c, Pennington. HEN (5): 1, Madagan, very taking lady, moves freely, charming feather, clean cut away; 2, not awarded; 3, Garbutt, paler in col., but very natural, marble head, moves well, just fails in qual.; vhc, Drinkwater; he, Moore and Son; c, Royle. CL. OR TKD. BUFF (9): 1, spl., Nelson, wonder for qual., rare col., neat head and self shows a bit of shoulder; 2, Egerton, nice outlines, capital round head, well carried wing and tail; 3, Madagan, in rare trim, full of swank, nice feather and very compact; 4, McLoughlin, nice type and qual., neat wing and tail, bit unsteady; he, Williston; c, Moore and Son. HEN (11): 1, Pennington, feathered like wax, marble head, nice tone of col. for a hen, clean cut away; 2, 3, Nelson, all there for qual., well braced wing and tail, carried perfectly, only beaten head properties; 3, good type and feather, moves very freely, good outlines, put down in form; 4, McLoughlin, bit stronger, sweet expression, very compact throughout; vhc, Madagan; he, Clare; c, Royle. UNEVEN.

ETC. (6): 1, Egerton, almost even mnd. yell., charming exhibit, glorious type and qual., good win; 2, Pennington, buff, not so far behind, rare feather and cond., closely packed wings; 3, Leigh, var. yell., close feather, sweet expression, just fails wing carr.; 4, vhc, Colbeck, var. yell., real good one, but marking against it, shown in capital trim; he, Royle. CINN. YELL. (5): 1, Smalley, massive head, grand body, teeming with true cinn. col., will improve, but at present in bad feather; 3 and he, Mrs. Tweedie, good big one, but again poor feather, plenty of good col., but might have given way to; vhc and c, Godley, rare qual., a full 50 points for col., we thought quite an easy win, an out and out "good un"; he, Mrs. Tweedie, longer, rare col., might have been further up, rare qual. for a "big un". BUFF (6): 1, Hartup, rare bouncing exhibit, in grand form, fair Norwich shape, shown to perfection; 2, vhc, Mrs. Tweedie, even richer in col., clean cut away behind, well laced at waist; 3, 4, he, Godley, larger, but not quite qual., rich copper col., 4, paler in col., nice silky feather, will improve. HENS (5): 1, 3, vhc, Godley, yell. leading, grand col., a rare lady, and she knows it, shows remarkable sheet; 3, buff, nice tone of col., cobby, and moves well, rare head and neck for a cinnie; 2, Smalley, yell., not quite col. of winner, sweet carr. of wings and tail, well put down; 4, Hartup, red hot, just plucked at top, grand wings and rich copper col. SELL. 30s.: 1, Wallwork; 2, Rev. Gaul; 3, Millward; 4, Jones; vhc, Field; he, Mattinson; c, Sykes. 20/- (30): 1, Watts; 2, Radford; 3, Sykes; 4, Jones; vhc, Hartup; he, Knowles; c, Bowden. 12/6: 1, Collinge; 2, Appleton; 3, Fielding; 4, Raynes; vhc, Smith; he, Norton; c, Mattinson. CL. ETC., HYB. (4): 1, Heggie, cl. Greenf.-Can., good size and qual., pale col.; 4, Martin and Archer, cl. Linnet "Perfection," not in show condition, secondaries down; vhc, he, Hubbard. UNEV. CAN. HYB. (6): 1, Heggie, lightly marked Greenf.-Can., nice col., size, and shape; 2, Martin and Archer, var. Goldie, a Jonque, nice cond. and size; 3, vhc, Oldham, rather heavy mark Goldie, big bird and good col.; vhc, a grand five-pointed Goldie, rich col., and in beautiful condition; 4, Wilson, heavy mnd. buff, big bird also; he, Sharples. CARLISLE.

A GRAND SHOW OF NEARLY 800 BIRDS.

Favoured with a record entry, and a collection of the best birds of their respective varieties, the seventh annual show of the Border City Ornithological Society was held Oct. 27 and 28. The Kings' Hall, in which the show is held, is in every respect well adapted for an exhibition of cage birds, being well lighted from the roof, easy of access, and roomy, all birds being nicely staged at a convenient height for seeing, and well looked after by an efficient committee of well-known fanciers, consisting of the following: Messrs. Jos. Robson, R. Thomlinson, T. J. Robson, R. Macartney, Fred. Bell, J. Robson, junr., T. Johnston, H. C. Palfrey, with Mr. G. Davidson Treas., Mr. G. Higgins, chairman, and the ever obliging Mr. J. C. Bell, sec., to whom our thanks are due for the courtesy rendered, and the prompt manner in which all requests were met.

Borders (judged by Mr. Thos. McCreadie) led the way, and as might be expected, here on the Border, with a liberal classification, turned up well. An average entry of 17 per class over the 18 classes provided speaks well for their popularity, and also demonstrates that when well catered for, an entry satisfactory to the promoters generally results. The winner of the Border C.C. medal was Mr. G. Bennett, with a ticked bull, a typical little beauty.

Norwich, handled by Mr. J. Robson, averaged just under 12 per class. The patronage of the W.P.C. was given, and several of the leading exhibitors of this variety were competing, and type and quality were well represented. The winner of special best bird was found in this section, an uneven yellow cock, owned by Mr. W. Crawshaw.

Yorkshires had the patronage of the Y.C.C., N.Y.C.C., and the C. and W.Y.C.C., and a fine collection of representative specimens from most of the leading exhibitors of the bird of position graced the benches. This section was also judged by Mr. J. Robson, and drew an entry of 124 in 11 classes, birds of wonderful type and feather being in every class.

The Hybrid section was really good, all the choicest specimens of the respective blendings being on view. A rarity appeared in this section, catalogued as "Song Thrush-Blackbird," first time seen on the show bench in England. However, it failed to score. If as described, the bird appeared to us to have inherited largely the Thrush characteristics, being very similar in shape, colour, and markings.

British also were good, the winners well selected, and put down in beautiful order, while Foreign were a small but beautiful collection, the colours and condition of the majority of the exhibits being unsurpassable. This section, and the British, were judged by Mr. J. Nicholson; Hybrids by Mr. J. Robson.

YORK.

Seventh Annual Open Show of York C.B.S., held Oct. 20. An entry of over 300 was obtained, the officials considering this most satisfactory, under the existing circumstances. The Ebor Hall, in which the exhibits were staged, is of a very suitable description, well lighted, lofty, spacious, and cosy, absolutely void of draughts, and beautifully decorated. The staging of the specimens had been well thought out, and those responsible for this neat arrangement are worthy of being highly congratulated. The President is Mr. A. Richardson, and Chairman, Mr. B. Marshall, a brace of greatly esteemed officials. The Show Committee consisted of Messrs. B. Marshall, A. Humphries, Robinson, Carolin, Sissons, Camppling, Jefferson, and King. Most are well known and practical fanciers, and all worked like Trojans for the welfare of the show. Mr. V. G. F. Zimmerman, the Sec., is most courteous and energetic, and although quite a novice as regards secretarial work, frames like an old hand. In V. G. F. the York C.B.S. possesses one of the right kind to steer successfully the Society and its shows.

Quality throughout was superb, comparing favourably with the best, and beating many past shows that have been held since Dick Turpin's noted ride to this famous Cathedral city. Norwich were truly a splendid collection, type, colour, quality, and substance all being present. What gems to be sure were the yell. mtd. neck cock, owned by Mr. W. A.

Wilson; the mtd. buff cock, which is a topper, the property of Mr. D. Hunter; and the var. yell. unflight, that, with luck, should have a future, put down by Mr. A. Humphries.

Yorks. found many admirers, and well they might, undoubtedly a very fine and characteristic display did the "slim and lengthy 'uns" make. Eye-openers were those of Messrs. Dr. W. Craig, L. Dykes, J. Thomas, A. W. Hartley, and A. Price. Amongst the novices fine exhibits were put down by Messrs. F. E. Richardson and A. Cass.

British were voted a superb lot; certainly our "national songsters" did themselves credit. The rattling Goldie (Mr. W. Hearfield), the finely-pencilled Linnet (Mr. S. Wetherell), the richly-coloured and well-marked Twite (Mr. R. Parlett), the delightful Chaffinch (Mr. W. Woods), the majestic and magnificent Hawfinch (Mr. H. E. Shorrey) were all specimens far above the ordinary, and many envious eyes were cast on these beautiful creatures. Foreign gave a little tone, and selling classes provided the bargains. The show in every detail was managed most excellently, and a good attendance of visitors patronised the venture. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his placings were well received.

YELL. NOR. (11): 1, Wilson, mtd. cock, bouncer, marvellous qual. and col., lovely shape and carr., will do some winning, gem; 2, vhc. Humphries, mtd. wing and head, capital shape and subs., A1 qual., and ablaze with col., very close up; 3, Thomas, mtd. head, nice feather and col., rare size, longer in barrel, wings, and tail, yet most pleasing; he. Brown; c. Livingstone. BUFF (12): 1, Hunter, mtd. wings and eye, possessing superb feather, topper for type, red hot in col., delightful carr., eye-opener; 2, Thomas, mtd. wing, more subs., exquisite col., shapely head, neck, and chest, bit slack behind, requires a little more time to brace up; 3, Thomas, mtd. back, rare size and shape, A1 col. and feather, good carr., well worth its place; vhc. Potter; he. Parlett; c. Humphries. YELL. HEN (11): 1, Wilson, thigh tld., round as a ball, magnificent feather and col., neatly frosted, rare size, most charming; 2, Thomas, cl., lovely shape, feathered to perfection, capital col., clean cut, beaten in size only, beauty; 3, Humphries, mtd. wing and head, richly fed, and delightfully clothed, sweet head, expression, wee bit longer in build; vhc. Wright; he. Harland; c. Hunter. BUFF (6): 1, Wilson, cl., ablaze with col., slashing qual., true type and good size, clean cut away, should be heard of again; 2, Tose, lightly var., tight as wax, red hot, shapely, capital size and carr., not far behind; 3, Carolin, cl., a bouncer, good in shape and feather, nice col., bit sour in head, yet a choice exhibit; vhc. Brown; he. Hunter; c. Robinson. UNFLIG. HEN (15): 1, he. Thomas, bewitching cl. yell., well up in size, captivating shape, delightfully groomed, with rich col.; 2, Harland, charming var. yell., sweet shape, nice subs., lovely feather and col., graceful movement, gem; 3, Hunter, cl. buff, cooby, cap. feather, nice col. and markings, good shape and carr., worth her place; vhc. Humphries; c. Brown; No. 8, W.C., a cock. NOV. (15): 1, Hennon, magnificent cl. buff, for shape, size, col., and qual., all one could desire, quite capable of winning in the upper circles; 2, Mrs. Stamp, yell., mtd. wings and eyes, full of qual., tending with col., nice outline, good size, clean cut, very bonny; 3, Varley, cl. buff, wonderful subs., A1 col., silky, but rather free in feather, still a good one, valuable for stock purposes; vhc. Conway Bros.; he. Carolin; c. Boddy. HEN (12): 1, Hennon, finely shaped cl. yell., superb feather and col., well up in size, carries herself delightfully real charmer; 2, Hennon, lightly var. buff, tight as wax, capital shape, rich undercol., not of the biggest, but of the best; 3, Boddy, typical cl. yell., rich in col. and silky in texture, not the subs. of winner, but a real good Nor., in the pink; vhc. Conway Bros.; he. Parviss; c. Lieut. B. Drew. YORKS. YELL. CK. (10): 1, Dr. Craig, cl., marvellous length, very slim, as straight as a pencil, not a feather wrong, lovely col., clever legs, a knockout; 2, Simeson, mtd. neck and eye, full of style, stands like a Guardsman, capital length, best of backs, flights, and tail, another real topper; 3, vhc. Marsh, mtd. wing, red hot, superb col. and feather, sweet expression of head, rare length, bit down or might have won; hard lines; he. Veitch; c. Smith Bros. BUFF (14): 1, Dr. Craig, cl., a picture, smooth as polished marble, true pos., rare length, beautiful back, perfect wing carr., pipe tail; 2, Hartley, mtd. wing and eyes, stands delightfully, rattling length, capital feather, and col., clever legs, close up; 3, vhc. Thomas, lovely cl., straight, good length, tight as a Java, nice back and wing carr., neat and stylish; he. Dykes; c. Price. YELL. HEN (12): 1, Dykes, exquisite cl., slim and upstanding, perfect feather, grand col., rare length, full of true character; 2, Dr. Craig, cinn. mtd. wings and eyes, superb feather and col., capital pos. and length, nice back and wings, neat tail, gem; 3, Price, cl., fine length and pos., A1 feather and col., stands nicely, not so sweet in head character as might be, yet good 3rd; vhc. Watts; he. Camppling. BUFF (10): 1, Thomas, cl., delightful outline, well filled in, rare length and qual., full of style, and on rare legs, beauty; 2, Sutcliffe and Son, mtd. wings and eyes, feathered to perfection, sweet head expression, nice length, capital back and wing carr., bit down or might have won; 3, Smith Bros., cl., straight, capital length, A1 feather, full of style, clever legs, capable of beating more than beats her; vhc. Dykes; he. Moffatt; c. Simeson. UNFLIG. (9): 1, Dykes, gem of a cl., slim and upstanding, very lengthy and leggy, richly fed, best of feather, should make a name; 2, Watts, cl., rare stand and length, good col., nice head and neck, well filled in back, capital wings and tail, scarcely qual. of winner; 3, Sutcliffe and Son, mtd. wing and eyes, red hot, superb qual., good length, not quite so upstanding, appeared nervous somewhat, more cage practice required; vhc. Hutchinson; he. Smith Bros.; c. Hartley. BUFF (12): 1, Hartley, grizzled tail, tight as box, grand type and length, well on leg., read model, etaged to the moment; 2, Dykes, sweetly-moulded cl., good feather and col., lengthy and leggy, in the pink, and pressed hard; 3, Simeson, mtd. head, capital qual. and col., good pos. and length, well on leg., beaten a little in style; vhc. LONDON AND P.O.S.

A Fine Show of Over 600 Birds.

The Autumn Show of the L. and P.O.S. was held at the Lambeth Baths on Oct. 27 and 28. The building is a grand one for a big show, well warmed and lighted both by day and night. The birds were arranged around the big bath, and in a tier down the centre, and made quite an imposing display. The entry was a very fine one of over six hundred birds, and made one of the best autumn shows the Society has ever held. Birds were sent from all parts and arrived well up to time, excepting five consignments, which unfortunately did not arrive until midday, and were therefore too late for judging. Probably these were not dispatched very early, as other long distance ones were well up to time, the Committee having made arrangements to clear the receiving depots over night.

The Norwich section was a grand one and included some very fine specimens. Mr. G. W. Saunders, of Haslemere, securing the cup with a lovely yellow of wonderful quality. Other exhibitors were Messrs. Spillman, from Devonshire; Rippon, Chelmsford; Miles, Chichester; Hodder and Martin, London; and other well known lovers of the chubby ones. The Novices staged some toppers, Mr. Head's huff being much admired, as was also his winning hen.

Yorkshires were a grand lot, some of the Yorkshire men sending down some lovely specimens; but the Southern exhibitors did well. Mrs. Holliday winning in clear buff and Mr. Green in marked birds. Mr. Ayres also staged a couple of winners. Mr. Broad, of Borden, sent in some lovely Crests and C.B.s. winning in both classes, as did Miss Onslow, of Bournemouth, in the Novice section. (A letter from Miss Onslow referring to this is published in our correspondence columns.—Editor, CAGE BIRDS.) The Hybrid, British and Foreign classes were very well filled, although many birds are not yet fit, and the collection was a good one. Mr. Francis won the Members' Cup with his well known Linnet.

The management was all that one could desire. Mr. Huggins, the new Show Manager, taking hold with both hands and keeping a tight grip of everything all through. The society is fortunate in possessing young blood to step into the breach at such a time as the present. The worthy Chairman, Mr. Crabbe, lent valuable assistance, as did also Messrs. Ramsden, Day, Clarke, Fairman, Burt, Silver, and Harris. Madame Feist-Madewell and Mrs. Harris.

The Members' Yorkshire Cup was won by Mr. Dykes; Crest Cup, Mr. J. Broad; Hybrid Cup, Mr. E. J. Lamb; Foreign bird up, W. Buckingham; Abrahams' Memorial Trophy, for rarest Foreign bird, Allen Silver; trophy best Australasian bird, Mr. Frostick.

The judges were: Messrs. Heath, Canaries, except Novice Norwich; Ramsden, Novice Norwich (in place of Mr. Hodder who was indisposed); Norman, Mules and British; and Watts, Foreign. There was a capital attendance of visitors, and over £25 worth of birds was claimed, the highest price being £10 for a C.B. hen.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

CASTLEFORD.

Open sing, Oct. 30; about 50 or 60 members and friends entered 74 birds to sing for 5 very good prizes. We had birds from most of the leading Linnet clubs in Yorkshire, thanks to the valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, but the weather was bad, and it grew dark before half of the birds were through, so the singing was not up to the usual standard. 1, J. Williams; 2, Longfield; 3, Scott; 4, W. Nelson; 5, Liversidge and Plows shared. Next week will be a members' sing; anyone wishing to join may do so. Open sings every week. W. Dobson.

KIPPAX.

Kippax Linnet Club members visited Clarence Hotel Linnet Club, Leeds, Oct. 23, to sing with the Clarence Club for two medals and six money prizes, for time and quality. Five of the prizes went to Kippax members. Quality: 1, Cooper; 2, Chippendale; 3, Binns. Time: 1, Cooper; 2, Collinson; 3, Wallis. Judges for quality: T. Summers, P. Madden. Minute man, S. Butterfield; Time-keepers and tappers for time, Messrs. J. Wallis, R. Plows, W. Perkin, W. Nelson. 43 birds entered and only three minutes time was allowed each pair. General meeting of Kippax Linnet Club, Nov. 6, at Headquarters. —R. Plows, Sec.

LEEDS.

MIDLAND ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Headquarters, "Seven Stars," St. John-st., Wolverhampton, Mr. Willows presiding over a fair attendance. Correspondence was read from various intending exhibitors. One from CAGE BIRDS concerning one of our elected judges. A reply to this I hope will be in CAGE BIRDS this week's issue. Final arrangements were made for the show.—J. W. Thompson, Hon. Sec.

STANLEY (Empire) F.F. & C.B.S. Meeting, Oct. 31, Mr. R. Part chair, and a good turn up of members, a lot of business was got through. Specials turned up fairly well. Will all members get as many specials as possible and bring them next meeting, Nov. 14? I will take Pigeon entries at Club Room between 6 and 7 on Nov. 7. Please oblige by fetching the same at the above time.—R. Hutchinson, Sec.

PORTH AND RHONDDA VALLEY.

General meeting, Porth Hotel, Oct. 27. Chair, Mr. Legg. Decided to accept Spratts' offer re printing of prize cards, and Percy Phillips for schedule. The sliding scale for open show to be: 1st 50 per cent., 2nd 25 per cent., and 3rd 12½ per cent. Judges: T. L. Castree and E. J. Davies; birds to be hatched by 9.30 on morning of show. Mr. J. Challenger was nominated show manager.—J. H. Bevan, Sec.

LONDON AND P.O.S.

Meeting, Raglan Hotel, Aldersgate-st., E.C., 21st Oct., there was a good attendance, and a most interesting evening was spent in a judging competition for Yorkshire, Norwich, and British. Mr. T. Heath was final judge; Madame M. A. Feist-Madewell won the silver medal presented by the society; she was the only competitor who placed the winning bird in each class correctly. Will all members who had tickets for the Autumn Show kindly settle for the same at their very earliest convenience.—H. L. Huggins, Hon. Sec.

WELSH CAGE BIRD CLUB.

Annual General Meeting, Ship and Bell, Merthyr, Nov. 1, Mr. G. T. Jones, presiding. Decided not to alter rules, also not to alter the name of the Club, but wherever our patronage is given it will only apply to the Canary section unless we obtain British bird members. At shows held under our patronage, two club medals will be competed for amongst our members, for most points with three highest birds, one for champions, and one for novices, no member to win more than one throughout the season. The first show to receive our patronage is Cardiff. Our rules, etc. do not appear in the schedules, as our meeting was held too late. Members please note this, and remember that points count at Cardiff. Officers were elected and cups and medals were presented to last season's winners. Will members in arrears please send subs. without delay.—A. E. Brown, Hon. Sec.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Special meeting, Oct. 25, Mr. F. S. Whetton presided over a good attendance. We were pleased to see a few of the old school at the meeting and are grateful for their promises of help. Resolved that Mr. E. J. Banks, Mr. P. Braille, and Mr. E. J. Davies purchase the challenge bowl for the best young Canary bred 1915. Unanimously agreed that the bowl should be called the Carlton Challenge Bowl. Mr. Alf. Sheilam promised 5s. for the best light mule, also 5s. for the best dark mule, also the 10s. 6d. specials for most points in the Mule and Hybrid Section Open Competition; Messrs. Wiseman, Dare, Pearce, and the Rev. C. B. Jolliffe and F. Howard volunteered to act as judges' stewards, and a number of the members promised to act as packers, etc. Mr. A. Dare volunteered to act as a night steward. Resolved that we pay the night steward please let me know, we want three more. I appeal to members to see to this part of the show work. If any member has sold all tickets let me know, I will send a few more on. It is up to the members to make this charity show a huge success. This can only be done by every member doing his share of the work.—E. Thomas, Sec.

EDINBURGH C.B.S.

Meeting, Cairns Memorial Hall, Gorgie-rd., 19th Oct., a good turn out present; Mr. G. Staines, chair. Mr. Watson referred to the sad loss one of our members, Mr. Wm. Thomas, had sustained by the death of his wife, and it was unanimously agreed that the Sec. write a letter of sympathy and condolence to Mr. Thomas and family. Reply from Sec. of Edinburgh Western, re staging for Annual Show, was considered, and it was agreed that we get loan of staging, etc., at the price mentioned in letter. Agreed to get catalogues for Annual Show printed in Dalkeith, as per quotation received from Mr. Aitken. A short discussion took place in connection with a Canary-Bullie reared by one of our members, as to which class he should show it in at the Annual Show. Decided that the bird be shown in the Hybrid class. The following members were appointed to buy specials for show: Messrs. Adams, Russell, Watson, Stormont, and the Sec., the place of purchase to be settled at next meeting. Prize winners at Table Show, Mr. A. Thomson judge. Nor. Yell. 1, 3, Staines; 2, 4, Huster; 5, Morrison. Buff 1, 2, 4, Muir; 3, 5, Morrison. Crest or C.B.: 1, 2, Morrison. Yell. Bord.: 1, 2, 4, 5, Muir; 3, Brast. Buff: 1, 3, 4, 5, Brast; 2, Muir. A.O.V. Can.: 1, Watson. Mule or Hyb.: 1, Staines; 2, 3, Watson; 4, Adams. Mr. Thompson was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks for the services he had rendered.—J. C. Charlton, Sec.

HIGHGATE & HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Meeting, Spencer Hall, Oct. 25, Mr. R. T. Dann, chair. The business of the evening was a washing demonstration by Mr. W. Knight, and the fact that all birds washed took to the sticks without skinking on the bottom of the cage proved the quality of the entertainment. Mr. Knight received a hearty vote of thanks from all present. At a committee meeting preceding we arranged schedule for our autumn show, Nov. 19 and 20. Judge, Mr. G. Gardner. Three silver cups and a goodly number of other specials to be competed for.—J. Hyde, Hon. Sec.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.C.

Meeting, Oct. 30, Old Boar's Head, Manchester, Mr. Wareing presiding over a largely attended meeting. All were very pleased to see Mr. Percival again in attendance. Four new members were elected; patronage was given to the Wigan Roller Club; several money specials were given, also two cups for young bird classes. The club will offer a cup as first special in four classes. Schedules for open show are expected in about a fortnight. Judges appointed: Messrs. Wareing (Bury), Massey and Kilshaw (Bolton), and Lyons (Blackburn). Trusting our annual show will prove as successful as the last one.—J. T. Smith, Sec. pro tem.

DARLINGTON AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting, Oct. 30, Mr. Cartwright, chair, and a good number present. It having been decided to join the N.Y. and S.D. Federation to further the interest of the cage bird fancy, and to avoid clashing of dates, we regret it is too late to alter our schedules in accordance with Federation classes, as they are already printed, but we trust they will give us all the support possible. We have a liberal classification and fine list of specials, and beg to call the attention of fanciers, especially those in the North, that this is an entirely new society, and the only one in Darlington. We have a membership of 31, and are all enthusiastic and progressive fanciers. There seems to have been some misunderstanding; schedules are now ready. Judges, Mr. Cowgill, Bradford; Mr. Marwood, Eaglescliffe.—F. Stothard, Sec.

RICHMOND (Surrey) C.B.S.

Meeting, St. John's Hall, Richmond, Oct. 25, Mr. W. Phipps chair, and a good attendance. Final arrangements for annual show completed. It is to take the form of an evening show, in the embroidery room, St. John's Hall, and a schedule of 35 classes was arranged. Special prizes were given by Messrs. W. Knud and Co., Osborne and Young, W. Phipps, and G. Birch. Two of our lady members also gave specials, Miss Squires 3 half-crowns and Mrs. Eagle 2s. 6d. Messrs. Sandford and Son presented the society with a gold centre medal, to be competed for by birds fed on their Royal Red Feed. The show will open at 7 p.m., and admission will be by catalogue, price 3d. each. Mr. J. Robson judge. Visitors are heartily welcomed, and anyone wishing to become a member may do so by applying to the assistant sec., Mr. Parmer, who will be at the desk as usual. I hope members will give the club their fullest support.—G. Birch, Hon. Sec.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE (East End)

Meeting, Oct. 27, at Mr. G. Armstrong's, tobacconist, Shields-road (the military having suddenly taken possession of our usual meeting place, Hall's Cafe, and no word having been sent to me, we were at a loss what to do until Mr. Armstrong kindly volunteered the use of his saloon, which we gladly accepted). Mr. MacPartling chair. Two new rules were drawn up for our show—(1) That there be no cross entries allowed; one bird, one entry. (2) Relating to novices; a novice is one that has never won a first prize in open competition, or three firsts in open novice competition in connection with our show. A novice is one who has not won a first in open members' classes, or three firsts in novice members' classes; to take effect from this year. With a handsome donation from Mr. A. J. Haggie it was decided that we buy a silver cup for best young bird bred by a member, to be won twice in succession, or three times in all. Resolved to hold a special meeting at Mr. Armstrong's Saloon, Shields-road, Nov. 10, at 8, to allot the many specials we have received. Members please note. Other business having been got through, a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—J. W. Coutts.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

MATING BROTHER AND SISTER (W. D. W.).—The chances are all in favour of material harm accruing to your stock from mating brothers and sisters. It is the closest possible inbreeding, and should never be attempted unless the conditions are most exceptional, and the object in view renders it unavoidable. Even then one must be prepared to put up with a certain amount of physical degeneration in the young from such stock. When there is no more important object than the making up a pair of birds the practice is wholly reprehensible.

WHENCE THESE TROUSERS? (A. C. S.).—You omit to say whether the ragged feathering at the thighs occurs only with the birds of the season or are found on both young and adults. In the former case there is a possibility that the raggedness is due to a superabundance of feather, which would not show itself in the nestling plumage, but now the birds have moulted off the body feathers it is apparent. In the latter case, and to a certain extent in either case, the looseness will disappear more or less, and, perhaps, entirely, as the birds tighten up in feather after moulting, which they will still continue to do for a time. In addition to the staple diet, give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle, linseed, and broken groats twice a week. In the drinking water add 20 drops of whisky, six of tincture of gentian, and four of tincture of steel every third day for a fortnight or so. Allow the birds to bathe quite freely, every day if they will do so, for a week or two. This should enable them to tighten up all right.

DOCK SEED (W. D. W.).—If they will eat it, you may quite safely give dock seed to Canaries as a wholesome change. My own experience is that they do not at all care for it, though some British Finches, and notably the Bullfinch, are extremely fond of it.

METHODS COMPARED (Second Year).—Your birds would certainly breed, and with a very fair chance of doing well, flying loose in the wired off portion of the room, but it is not possible to say in any particular case whether the system of breeding flying loose in this manner would be more successful than the ordinary plan of keeping the birds caged separately. In different hands, or even in the same hands at different times, either system might show better results than the other. In the case of the aviary the work of attention is reduced to a minimum, but that is about all the advantage that can be definitely said to be certain. With a stock of good feeding hens you should be able to show as good results from cage breeding and running one cock alternately with two hens as can be got by aviary breeding. Taken altogether, I think you should get the highest possible results by caging a hen separately in each of the six cages and working two cocks with them, and leaving the other two hens and the one cock in the aviary. In the latter case you should put up four or five nesting sites, but if you leave all the birds loose in the aviary put up at least twelve nesting places.

All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

FLYING FEATHERS (A. J. H.).—As you seem satisfied that the bird is not exposed to any cold draughts, you should look carefully into the situation to see if it is subject to extreme or rapid fluctuations, either in response to changes of weather or between day and night temperature, and see also that it is free from damp. Either of these exciting causes must be removed as a preliminary to treatment before you can hope for success. Give a staple diet of a simple mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately every third day half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, white millet, teazle and broken groats. On the intervening days give first a morsel of green food, or of carrot, boiled or raw, as a substitute, and next half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. In the drinking water add ten drops of lemon juice and a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea every second day for a week, and after this give instead six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day until the feathers cease dropping. The song is not likely to return until the moulting is stopped, but should do so soon afterwards. As regards spraying I certainly do not advise you to do this. A better plan would be to keep the hen in the same room for a time in such a position that the cock could see her enjoying the bath, and offer him the bath daily, and remove the drinking water for an hour or so, and if the example of the hen does not induce him to bathe voluntarily let him go unwatched.

MAKES NO SOUND (Ayrman).—It is not at all unusual for the voice to be hoarse and somewhat indistinct when a bird is making its first attempts at singing after the moulting season, but this should gradually pass off and not increase. As it seems to have increased with your bird you should look carefully into its surroundings to see if it is exposed to such exciting influences as damp, cold direct draughts, or constant and extreme fluctuations of temperature. In either case the cause must be removed as a first step towards treatment. Keep it in a comfortable temperature, not necessarily overheated, but quite off the chilly cold side, and see that it is fairly equable. Do not allow it to hang over or very near burning lights in the evenings. In addition to the usual seed diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a small spray of watercress. Also give the following concoction in place of pure water to drink two days in every three during the fortnight. Place a small teaspoonful of linseed in a teacup, add a piece of Spanish liquorice the size of a small hazel nut, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a shilling. Fill cup with boiling water, stir until liquorice is dissolved, then cover and allow to stand until cold. Then strain off the clear liquor, add a teaspoonful of sweet spirit of nitre, and fill the drinker with this instead of plain water. It should come in full song soon after it is quite recovered from the effects of the moult and this trouble.

J. K.—Replied to by post.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BREEDING IN AVIARY (Aviary).—Many Hybrids have been bred in aviaries with a mixed collection of birds. Your selection would scarcely do as it is, because you have an excess of cock birds, which would cause considerable fighting. The usual plan is to have more hens than cocks, and I would therefore advise you to procure another hen or take out the cock Greenfinch. If your object is to produce some mules, that is, crosses with Canaries, you would do far better with half-a-dozen hen Canaries and about three cock British birds. In mixed collections there is no certainty of parentage; the most forward cock birds are usually the ones the hens mate with. (2) Canary 3 parts, teal 2 parts, rape 1 part. Give a little mixed seed or wild seed mixture three times a week, and sunflower on other days. Watch the Goldfinch and see that he gets his share, and if he does not thrive take him out and feed according to the instructions given in our Nutshell Booklet No. 1.

THRUSH WITH FRAYED TAIL (J. Smith).—I suspect that the cause of your birds being in bad condition is that you are keeping them in unsuitable cages, and that you omit to give them their daily bath; it also looks as though you are not feeding them quite correctly, but as you give me no information upon this subject I am unable to say precisely if it is so. The best advice I can give you is to procure our little booklet on the Thrush (Nutshell No. 4). It gives you full instructions upon feeding and keeping, and an illustration of the most suitable cage. You will then be able to judge for yourself if your housing and treatment are correct. If you are in any trouble with them afterwards I shall be pleased to advise you.

LINNET MOULTING WHITE (E. Somersfield).—Yours is quite an interesting case. I have known this to occur before with certain British birds, and it is not an infrequent thing for a bird to have a few white feathers, but if I understand your letter correctly your bird is all white. This not only interesting, but makes him a likely exhibition bird to show in the Albino or rare feathered class which some societies provide.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

DIET FOR DOVES, ETC. (F. S. B.).—If you add canary and white millet to any ordinary Dove mixture it will suffice for most species of foreign Doves. The best method is to supply canary and millet seed in one hopper, and a mixture of wheat, hemp, small maize, tares, and jaro, in another. They do best in a roomy aviary, amid grass, trees and bushes, with a roomy, weather-proof shelter attached. Flint grit, rock salt, and cuttlebone must also be supplied. The damp temperature of a greenhouse suits very few species of birds, and I should not expect Doves to thrive therein along with the plants; exclude the plants and the house can be suitably adapted. Only birds of marshy districts could thrive in the humid atmosphere of the greenhouse; again, you would have to contrive something to even things up at night; if you can secure this, and the damp is not excessive, the birds may do fairly well. A rough, well-lighted shed, and a wired-in enclosure should not be costly, and would give you good results. If the shed be made roomy enough the birds could be shut up therein during very bad weather.

CARDINALS (Mrs. A. F.).—Cardinals are certainly not the most amiable of birds, but there is considerable individualism among them, and in the aviary, providing they have plenty of space, they usually interfere little with their fellow captives. You, however, do not state how or where you wish to keep yours. In a small aviary, or within the limits of a Crystal Palace cage I do not consider it advisable to mix them with such small birds as Waxbills, and I certainly do not advise you to make the attempt, as, even supposing they did not attack the small birds, there would be continual scares among the latter, whenever the Cardinals indulged in active exercise.

AILING GREY PARROT (E. H. Mc A.).—Give it the warmest position possible, and one where there will not be a big drop in the temperature during the night. A Parrot should not be given "anything" to drink, as a rule water only is all sufficient, though should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (8d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pelican Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." a tonic may be put into it at moulting time. Put a little honey and borax into its mouth twice daily, smear a little on the end of a stick; if you tap its beak with the stick it will bite at it, and thus get the mixture from off the end; only a clean stick must be put in the mixture. Put into the drinking water for one day one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia, and then repeat it every fourth day; on the intervening days well colour the drinking water with chemical food; do not give any other drinkables. It would be the better for fruit if you could induce it to take any. As you are giving it boiled rice, well mix half a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil emulsion and a little sugar with the daily supply. Do not give table scraps, soups, tea, or other messes. Of course, while it is ill you must not make too radical a change in the dietary, but as soon as there is an improvement it would be well for you to bring its dietary into conformity with that given in our Grey Parrot Nutshell, 3d., post free, from our Manager. Report progress about a fortnight hence.

GREY PARROT PICKING ITSELF (J. W. L.).—Probably it is only the result of the moult which the bird is assisting, and in consequence is a bit run down. It is, however, best to make sure, and I should spray it once a week with a tepid quassia solution, but keep it strictly out of draught till dry. Put one teaspoonful of fluid magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day for a month, and on the intervening days lightly colour the drinking water with chemical food. Also put a little honey and borax into its mouth twice daily from the end of a stick, but only a clean stick must be put into the mixture; if it will so take it, you can lightly spread it over a crust of bread, piece of biscuit or cake. The diet of a Grey Parrot should be confined to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, grit, cuttlebone, and water, with such extras as stale crusts, biscuit, and plain cake. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Keep it where it will be out of draught, yet get light and air, and the temperature be fairly even. Our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," 3d., post free, from our manager, would help you materially.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A NOVICE (E. W.).—Pollards is a term applied to bran with a proportion of the flour still unsifted. The commodity is known by various other terms, which all mean the same thing; namely, sharps, seconds, thirds, middlings, boxings, etc.

A. B. C.—You would be entitled to show unfledged birds in any class, unless, of course, the schedule distinctly states "old birds"; the fact that there is a class for unfledged birds does not affect the question, so there is nothing to prevent your showing one bird in each of the classes. The same applies to the non-fed birds; if you choose to enter a natural-coloured bird to compete against the colour-fed ones you are at perfect liberty to do so, and you could also enter another in the non-fed class if you thought proper. The point is, of course, that a non-fed bird seldom stands any chance against fed specimens.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply cage birds, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

AVADAVATS! Avadavats are very charming little birds, but they need care. The "Nutsell" booklet, "Avadavats," contains full information on the management of these birds. You cannot do better than have a copy by you, and we shall be pleased to forward same upon receipt of 2d. Write, The Publisher, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutsell No. 14," from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published).

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutsell No. 10," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the trans-

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

Complete in One Compact Volume, with accurate Coloured Plates of every known Breed, and supplied with An Anatomical Model of a Canary Invaluable to the Serious Breeder.

FREE ON APPROVAL

For a week's Free Examination at leisure in your own home.

Send for the Book To-Day. Refer to it for answers to the following questions. This is the knowledge you need.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT CANARIES?

DO YOU KNOW

How to distinguish the sex of young Birds before the cocks begin to sing? Also the colour distinctions in sex—and size and carriage differences?

See HOW TO DISTINGUISH SEX, page 143.

That the Green Canary is the strangest as regards colour and has the greatest power of developing or depositing it; and that breeders have recourse to the green as a source from which to derive fresh vigour and colour-producing power?

See THE GREEN CANARY, page 245.

How to mate your birds so as to increase size and tighten up feathers in breeding Norwich Canaries? And what "double buffing" means?

See BREEDING THE NORWICH CANARY, page 223.

How to treat quarrelsome Male Birds? (page 85). How to make a simple outdoor Aviary? Or a lean-to Aviary?

See THE OUTDOOR AVIARY, page 87.

How to make a wooden nest box? Or a tin nest box? Or an earthenware nest?

See NESTS AND OTHER APPLIANCES, page 64.

See THE INSECT PEST, page 62.

Or to clear a bird-room of mice? See MICE, page 42.

DO YOU KNOW

That it is just as advisable to feed the Cocks with egg-food as to feed the Hens? And how to arrange so that they shall both be ready to pair at the same time?

See PAIRING AND SITTING, page 101.

How to breed Hybrids from two British Birds? And what Cross has not yet been secured amongst British Hybrids? How to feed Hybrids?

See BREEDING OF HYBRIDS, page 367.

See AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRY, page 4.

How to treat loss of voice in a Canary. Or accidents to the joints? How to know when your Canary's digestive organs are wrong?

See DISEASES OF CAGE BIRDS, page 417.

How to rear a young Magpie by hand? How to feed it? What points are essential to success at Shows for the Magpie? The Jackdaw? The Wryneck? and other British birds?

See STARLINGS, CROWS, LARKS, WOODPECKERS, Etc., page 410.

Do you know Albin's list of varieties of Canaries, which was made in 1759? And the evolution of the domesticated species since then?

See HISTORY OF THE CANARY, page 27.

DO YOU KNOW?

The difference between the Yellow Bunting and the Girl Bunting.

See THE FINCHES, page 409.

What is meant exactly by a Yellow Bird? A Buff Green, a Yellow Cinnamon, or a Buff Cinnamon—since these terms are purely technical?

See COLOUR TERMS, page 212.

See THE FINCHES, page 401.

How to pair your birds so as to have the combined essentials of good points in the two birds?

See MATING SMALL BIRDS, page 326.

The scale of points for judging Scotch Fancies.

See JUDGING, page 323.

Why the London Fancy Canary is more of a Fancier's Bird than an every-day production? And how the erroneous idea gained ground that this is a delicate bird?

See THE LONDON FANCY, page 311.

See EXHIBITING AND WASHING, page 123.

The names of the nine (or more) articles of food that constitute "Colour Food" for birds when moulting, all of which do make the next coat richer and deeper? And what imparts a gloss to the coat?

See WHAT IS COLOUR FOOD, page 15.

Examination and Test it on the above Practical Questions.

"It has put me on the right track already."

Mr. JAMES BALL, Atherstone, Warwick, writes—

"The book is all you claim; it has put me on the right track already. I think the coloured plates are simply grand, and the 'Hybrid' section is full of strong information on that subject."

Our Buyers Praise it, but YOU may test it for yourself.

"It is all that the Publishers claim."

S. C. JOHNSTON, Kiltcronagh, Ireland, writes—

"This is the most instructive book on the breeding and management of Cage Birds I have ever read; it is entitled to all that the publishers claim for it. I am sure such a valuable book will be welcomed by every bird fancier."

Do not order on the strength of what other buyers say—EXAMINE THE BOOK FOR YOURSELF.

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutsell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 21d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

Robertson, 56, Arthur Place, Cowdenbeath. There are 96 classes, and we are giving all surplus to the comforts of our soldiers on active service. Those who have not been supplied with schedule please apply.

A Patriotic Family.

In the course of a business letter to us Mr. W. Rudd, the well-known bird specialist, of Norwich, incidentally says: "I have one boy a sailor, and three are soldiers, two of them being in the thickest of it, one in Flanders and one at Gallipoli; three of my girls are acting as nurses, and one girl is teaching English in France. I offered my own services to fight in any part of the world, as I am a good rifle shot from either shoulder, but they would not have me. I suppose they thought I was too old." We are sure that the many hundreds of our readers who have had dealings with Mr. Rudd will join us in our admiration for this grand family record, and in our hope for the safe return of his brave sons and daughters.

Recommended for the Victoria Cross.

Two Fanciers of whom Mansfield, and all of us, are proud.

The letter of Mr. Gabbitass, which appears below, will be read by all bird-lovers with great interest. It was only last week that we had the pleasure of announcing that a Distinguished Conduct Medal had been granted to a member of "The Poultry World" staff, and we are now glad to note that a bird-keeper has not only been awarded a similar distinction, but has a prospect of gaining the decoration, the possession of which is the ambition of Field-Marshal and Private alike.

Sir,—We have two members serving in France with the Notts and Derby's—Private A. Bennett, who has been gassed and wounded, but is now recovering, and Sergt. Johnson, who has received the D.C.M. and has now been recommended for the V.C. We are proud of these two lads at Mansfield, and we hope and trust that they will be spared to resume their hobby.

BERNARD GABBITASS.

What About the Welsh National Show?

A correspondent, who signs himself "Anxious," writes that a few bird fanciers would like to know if there is going to be a Welsh National show this season.

Llanelli Show Definitely Fixed.

The Llanelli C.B.S. has now definitely decided to hold its eleventh annual show on Jan. 11, 1916, as advertised, writes Mr. D. H. Davies, sec., and we hope we shall have the support we deserve.

Special Show Number Next Week.

Many reports of shows have again been unavoidably crowded out. Next week we shall publish a Special Show issue in order to include these and the important shows which will be held in the meantime.

Watford to Carry On.

It was decided at a meeting of the Watford C.B.S., held Nov. 6, to proceed with the open show to be held on Dec. 8 and 9. The show will be held in the Halsey Hall Conservative Club, High Street, Watford; judges, Messrs. H. Norman, A. Silver and R. J. Watts. Show manager, Mr. J. Goodall, 56, Market Street, Watford, Herts, to whom application for schedules should be made.

Now Lochgelly Helped the Red Cross Fund.

We are pleased to record a credit balance of £10 18s. 1d. on our show (Oct. 9), which has been handed over to the local secretary of the Red Cross Society, writes Mr. R. Muir, hon. sec. Lochgelly C.B.S. Considering the adverse circumstances, we think the fancy has done well by us, and we take this opportunity of thanking all those who helped to make our venture a success.

Breeding the Bearded Tit.

It has been thought that Dr. Loyd-Keays was the first aviculturist to breed the Bearded Reeding (or "Tit") in captivity in the British Isles. In this month's "Avicultural Magazine," however, the editor, Mr. H. D. Astley, announces that Mr. Richardson Carr has done so successfully for several years with three or four pairs on the Tring Park Estate, apparently without difficulty. The birds were kept in a large aviary enclosing a pond, with reeds, etc.

A Word of Thanks.

I should like, through the medium of your valuable paper, writes Mr. H. L. Huggins, hon. sec. London and P.O.S., to thank the following ladies and gentlemen for their kind help at the recent L. and P.O.S. show:—Mme. Madewell, who officiated at the gate, and in spite of the long hours and tedious work, retained her courtesy and good humour right up till the close of the show; Mr. and Mrs. Harris, Messrs. J. W. Ramsden, G. Crabb, Thurling R. J. Burt, Pretty, Allen Silver, Couzens, F. J. Day, and W. Shakespeare, who, with great care and attention, saw that all exhibits were well fed and watered.

Dublin Show's Invitation to Wounded Soldiers.

The Dublin show, to be held at the ancient concert rooms, Dublin, Nov. 24 and 25, promises to be more successful than any other show promoted by this society, writes Mr. Sholedec. Entries have already come to hand from most unexpected quarters. The classification caters for all varieties, and exhibitors can rely that their pets will be well looked after. Mr. Munnell (Bradford's all-round judge) officiates, and no doubt fanciers will like to have his opinion of their birds. The committee cordially invite all wounded soldiers to visit the show. To give the secretary a chance to cope with the huge amounts of work entries should be posted early.

Correspondence.

In Proof of a Lady's Sex.

Evidence which Admits Of No Doubt.

SIR,—On reading your report of the London and P.O.S. show I see that some doubted the sex of my variegated Norwich hen, 2nd prize in class 22. My bird which won 3rd in the clear yellow class was mated to this hen during the past breeding season, and should any of those who doubt this hen's sex care to call on me I should be pleased to show them some young ones bred from the pair.

A Ringed Thrush Found Dead.

SIR,—On the road between Dawlish and Teignmouth I found a Thrush lying in the road dead (apparently having been killed by flying against the telegraph wires). It had a ring on its leg, and I thought I would drop a line and acquaint CAGE BIRDS of same. I should like to know where it was rung; the inscription on the ring was Aberdeen University 37,090. Any information would oblige.

CONSTANT READER.

[We have furnished the particulars to the Aberdeen University, and have received the following reply.—Editor, CAGE BIRDS.]

SIR,—We are much indebted to you for your kind information regarding our marked Thrush 37,090. The earlier history of this bird has not yet been received by us from the marker, but will be sent to you when it is available.

(Signed) MARIBEL THOMSON,

The Trouble of the Sweating Hen.

SIR,—I read all correspondence on bird matters with interest, and I note Mr. Smithson's remarks on the sweating hen. I beg to differ from him, for I am one of those that think there is no such thing as sweating hens. What are the symptoms leading up to this idea? The young seem all right the first day, dry beautifully, and fill the nest with little puff balls; the second day they do not seem to have grown any; the third day their down gets clogged and the flesh becomes red, like a child with the fever; the fourth day they appear worse and gape and fail to pass their excrement. The hen, if she offers to feed them, cannot get them to respond to her call, and the poor thing tries to sit more closely upon them to dry them and so gets her own feathers clogged, and is then dubbed a sweating hen. I believe that when anything goes wrong with the birds it is the breeders who are at fault in their management.

But before you can adopt a remedy, you have got to get at the cause, and fanciers can rest assured that it is in the feeding. I believe one cause is that some hens will feed too much upon hard seed during the first two or three days, and by crushing the seed for them I have reared many which I should otherwise have lost. I have found also that too much maw seed may be the cause of a stoppage, which sets up fever, and soon ends in death. I should like to see a discussion upon this in our valuable journal, CAGE BIRDS.

Entries Refused at Sacriston.

SIR,—Will you kindly favour me with a little space in your valuable paper to place clearly before the members of Sacriston F. and P. Society my views with reference to the rejection of my entries at their show held Nov. 6? On Oct. 23, at the request of two members of this society, I applied for enrolment as a member, quoting the said two members as reference, and as a meeting was held the following Saturday evening I expected my application to be submitted to the meeting for approval. As Monday's post brought me no reply, I was advised by a member in this district to forward my entries, which I did, at the same time asking if they had received my letter of the 23rd ult.

Receiving neither a reply nor the return of entry fees and subscription, I concluded that I had been accepted as a member, and you may imagine my surprise on arriving at show to find my membership and entries rejected. My thanks are due to the fanciers present at the show, who practically unanimously agreed to permit me to show my birds under the circumstances, but no, these real sporting fanciers were ignored, and whilst they were patiently waiting outside the hall door to attend a meeting to decide my position, someone inside decided dead against them. Now how, and by whom, was this adverse decision arrived at? Why the real fanciers ignored? Why no reply to my letters; and why my entry fees, etc., not posted from Sacriston until 6.45 p.m. the day before the show? I had to leave Birtley by conveyance not later than 8 on the morning of show to arrive in time, and the first delivery of letters at my house is at 9. If the financial position of Sacriston show is so sound as to permit the rejection of 19 entries and 2s. 6d. subscription, then it is much to be envied. Surely the society cannot plead late entries as an excuse for my rejection, seeing that they, to my knowledge, received entries on the day before the show. And why were new members asked for at their meeting on the 30th October, and my application not submitted?

Herbert J. Chick on Himself and Some Others.

SIR,—As I cannot convince one or two fanciers that I am not writing in this discussion under the nom-de-plume of "Hyson Green," will you be so good, Mr. Editor, as to publish the fact (which you know for certain) that it is not so. I have no knowledge whatever of "Hyson Green," have never written under that name, and do not intend entering the discussion.

T. H. V. HAYTER.

SIR,—I have read with interest the correspondence on the above subject, and I have been thinking that, seeing Mr. Chick is so much opposed to the other correspondents' ideas of feeding, and that he has been such a successful exhibitor, this would be a good time for Mr. Chick to do something for the Fancy. I hope, therefore, he will tell us what he considers are the ideal foods, and on what he has fed his Hawfinch and Bramble. This would be a great deal better than telling us what not to do.

HYSON GREEN No. 1.

Two Crests at Cheltenham Show claimed at £25 each!

SIR,—I shall be greatly obliged if you will grant me a small space in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, in which to thank the many exhibitors who helped to make our recent show such a success. We had over 800 entries, and many of the best birds in the country were staged. The sales came to nearly £80, and included two Crests, which were sold at catalogue price, £25 each. We congratulate the new owner, and wish him the best of luck.

It is difficult to particularise any special section, all being good, but I may say the Foreigners were far above the average. Colonel Routh staged a magnificent team. We were very pleased to see quite a large number of fanciers from a distance, including Miss Onslow (Bournemouth), Mr. Allen (Newport), Mr. Bastock (Birmingham), Mr. Gilbert (Coventry), Messrs. Tedstone and Jones (Brecon), Mr. Bell (Coventry), Mr. Collins, junr. (Cambridge), Mr. A. J. Smith (Birmingham).

Do Birds Kill Imprisoned Young?

SIR,—There seems to be a fairly widespread impression that if young birds are taken and caged within reach of their parents, those parents will assiduously feed them up to a point, and then deliberately poison them.

Without posing as authority, myself, I think that a more feasible supposition is that the parent birds after a time cease to have any solicitude for their young, and simply neglect them in the preparation for a second brood, and the young birds die of hunger before their owner has noticed that the old birds have ceased feeding them.

Anyway, the point seems to be an interesting one, so I should be glad if you could see your way clear to publish the following letter, which appeared recently in a Liverpool paper, and we may then get some views which are more dependable than those of the laundryman therein mentioned.

"With regard to the story of birds killing their imprisoned young, Mr. B. Green writes:—My daughter, early last summer, caught a Sparrow evidently in its first flight. She put it into a small cage with seed and water and hung it out of her bedroom window. Very soon after, two Sparrows were seen feeding it. The laundry man coming up at the time said: 'That is all right, but you will not rear it; it will kill it on the third day.' The Sparrows fed it up to noon on the third day. In the afternoon my daughter found it dead, its mouth and beak, according to her, filled with soil. It was buried before I knew of its death or I would have endeavoured to have found the cause."

I hope some of the keen naturalists who are among the readers of CAGE BIRDS will give us their opinions.

UNDECIDED.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

An Open Show for Aberdeen.

SIR,—At a special meeting of the Aberdeen Amalgamated C.B.S. held Oct. 29, the members' show originally fixed was cancelled, and it was the unanimous feeling of the members present that we hold an open show on Dec. 13 in the Ball Room, Music Hall Buildings. A classification of 74 classes has been drawn up—41 open and 33 amateur (confined to 13 miles radius). Mr. Alexander Harris (Montrose), and Mr. George Bennett (Brechin) will judge the Norwich, and Mr. William Allison, Cults (Aberdeenshire) the wild birds. The committee hope, seeing that it is the only open show in the North of Scotland this season, that fanciers will rally round us, and give us a record entry—our enterprise surely deserves it. Schedules will be ready Dec. 1; see special advertisement later.

Thrush-Blackbird Hybrids.

The Winner of Our Silver Medal Gives an Account of Their Progress.

SIR,—As promised in one of my letters I will try to give you an idea of how my Songthrush-Blackbird Hybrids have developed since they started the moult.

About the middle of July the first nest began to show signs of the feathers loosening, and for a time you could hardly tell what they were to be like. By the end of August or the beginning of September, however, the development became much more rapid, and the shape and action of the Blackbird were easily seen, while the work on the breast unquestionably pointed to the Thrush. All four are now successfully moulted, though the one with the bad feet still remains a little weakly and backward, and, though it was one of the first nest, it has been last to finish moult.

Not having moulted their wing and tail feathers, I cannot say what colour these will be in adult plumage, but at present they show a much darker brown on the back and head than the Thrush, quite like that of a hen Blackbird, while the breast shows the markings of the Thrush very distinctly, only it does not carry so far up to the throat. Just under the beak the markings are very dense, giving the idea of the dark colour of the back carried round. The colour of the beak is like the hen Blackbird so far, but in the cocks this may change. The shape is more after the Blackbird, the head and neck thicker than the Thrush, as is also the body. So far I have had little difficulty in feeding them; they readily accept any soft food, but are always ready for a tit-bit in the form of an earth-worm or two. I am at present getting them broken in to the show cage, and hope to have the pleasure of staging them at some of the shows soon.

T. H. ANDERSON.

Identity of the Hybrid Doubtful.

SIR,—You would no doubt notice from report that I exhibited my new Song Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid at Carlisle show, but it seems the claim to its being a Hybrid has been doubted; in fact, I have a letter from Mr. J. Robson who judged its class, in which he says it is no Hybrid at all, but simply a Thrush. Now, in face of the fact that I lodged with you sufficient evidence to prove that it is what it is claimed to be, I need hardly say I resent being told that it is simply a Thrush. I have replied to the letter and have enclosed the egg-shell out of which the bird was hatched, to show that it was a Blackbird hen that laid it, and I have asked Mr. Robson to admit that he is wrong in his judgment, and so clear me in the Fancy of the charge of representing my bird to be something it is not. I would rather keep the bird at home than have such an accusation brought against me, but being, as you stated, a new cross, I thought it my duty to the Fancy to have it shown. I am quite willing to send you up one of the birds for your inspection if you can keep it for a few days till it proves its claim.

T. H. ANDERSON.

[We shall be pleased to see the bird, with a view of an expert opinion being passed as to whether it is, as claimed, a Hybrid between a Song Thrush and a Blackbird.—Editor, CAGE BIRDS.]

At the last minute, writes Mr. Geo. Haver, Hon. Sec. Blaydon C.B.S., the Military have taken over our hall, but we have been fortunate in securing another hall, which is a very good second to the original hall, namely the United Methodist school-room. It is also a little nearer the railway station, so fanciers need have no fear, and I also hope the local fanciers will patronise our show on Nov. 12 and 13 by giving us a visit.

Corrections in Show Reports.

In the yellow Yorks class at York 3 Marsh should read 3 Everitt, and in yellow Yorks hens 3 Price should read 3 Everitt. In Silver Lizard hens at Manchester, 3 the Barnes should read 3 Barnes, the Hamer. At Carlisle 2nd in tkd. Borders should read Brown not Young, and C Brown should have been included in the awards in the uneven yellow Border cock class. Mr. J. Harrison writes that he won 3rd at Warrington, not 4th as in our report.

British Birds at Halifax Show.

I should like to appeal especially to British Bird fanciers for their support at Halifax show, Nov. 19-20, writes Mr. Duncan A. Macpherson. The British section at this popular fixture has for the past few years only been very poorly supported, and is in danger of being left out altogether. As will be seen from the schedule, six classes are provided. The society pays good prize-money, and is noted for prompt despatch of birds at close of show. Now, British exhibitors, keep the most interesting section in the Fancy to the front.

THE BIRDKEEPERS' ROLL OF HONOUR.

Spen Valley C.B.S.

SIR,—Kindly add to your Roll of Honour the name of Sergt. H. Hardisty, 4th Batt. Duke of Wellington's West Riding Territorial Regiment, who was killed in action at the Battle of Loos. All our members sincerely regret the loss of a respected fancier and an honest, straightforward, jovial companion. R. Windle, R.F.A., at present training at Aldershot, is also one of our members.

S. B. GRAYSON.

Bowburn C.B.S.

SIR,—I have great pleasure in submitting the names of two of our members to be added to your great Roll of Honour, viz., Mr. J. Tipling, Durham Light Infantry, Pals' Battalion, and Mr. J. Tickell, Army Veterinary Corps. Their subscriptions are fully paid up as long as they are serving, and we allow a member to show a bird for them, and anything won in their name is to be handed over to their wives, for they are both married men.

A VISIT TO A WONDERFUL COLLECTION.

An account of the birds in the Aviaries of Dr. L. Lovell-Keays, East Hoathly, Sussex.

(BY ALLEN SILVER, F.Z.S.)

UCKFIELD is situated about 58 miles from London, and within five miles of this town is to be found among the rolling downs of the Sussex countryside the singularly restful little village of East Hoathly. Near the main road not far from one end of the village a passer by might be attracted by the sound of birds, and even the veriest layman would at once conclude that these voices were not those of the denizens of our own woods.

Here, in a pleasing old fashioned residence, lives Dr. Keays, who, when not engaged attending to the bodily ills of the inhabitants, may be found among his birds. It was my pleasure some time ago to have the privilege of inspecting his collection, and such a sense of gratification did I gain therefrom that I can only say that I wished all the bird lovers I know could also have been there.

I should think in all, that he possesses not less than 500 birds, and these include Parakeets, Conures, Lorikeets, Cockatiels, Lovebirds, Waxbills, Grassfinches, Mannikins, Weavers, Whydahs, Buntings, Cardinals, Starlings, Tits, Reedlings, Sparrows, Finches, Thrushes, Jay Thrushes, Doves, Quails, Pheasants, Toncanettes, and many others. These are all kept in aviaries to cover which it must have taken somewhere about 5,400 square feet of netting. Practically all of these aviaries, excepting those devoted to Parakeets, etc., are well filled with growing trees, shrubs, plants, and rushes.

Singularly Fortunate Experiments.

Dr. Keays has been singularly fortunate in his breeding experiments, and without wishing to worry the reader with tabulated lists, it would be unfair to refrain from publishing the following items of birds bred—Lovebirds: Rosy-faced 1914; Black-cheeks 1913-15; Madagascar 1913. Blue-winged 1914-15; Cockatiels 1913-14-15; Budgerigars (2 colours) 1913-14-15; Rosellas 1914-15; Redwings 1914; Cactus Conures 1914-15; *All-green Parakeets 1914; Diamond Finches 1914; Bib-finsches 1914; Zebra Finches 1913-14-15; Magpie Mannikins 1913-14-15; Mexican Rosefinches 1914-15; Red-crested Cardinals 1914; Bronze-winged Mannikins 1914; Twites 1914; Cuban Finches 1914; Green Cardinals 1914; Californian Quails 1914-15; Diamond Doves 1914-15; Cordon Bleus 1914; Avadavats 1914-15; Firefinches 1914-15; Green Avadavats 1914-15; Virginian Cardinals 1915; Yellow Sparrows 1915; Napoleon Weavers 1915; Orange-breasted Waxbills 1915; *Zosterops 1915; *Reedlings 1915. The figures denote the years, and the asterisks that it was the first occasion upon which the species had been bred in Great Britain. By the latter end of this summer no less than 78 young had left the nest, belonging to 17 species.

In addition to the aviaries described below Dr. Keays has several others at the top end of his garden, backing on to the stables. These consist of large roomy house shelters, to which are attached spacious out-door flights thickly planted with trees, shrubs and creepers. Flowers and weeds combine with the former in the making of cover.

The reader may perhaps be interested in an impression of the main aviary, or suite of aviaries. Starting from left to right one enters a passage and finds on either side two inner flights or bird-rooms heated when necessary by radiators. From the passage a door leads into the enclosure, out of which one can pass into the large warmed shelter at the left end of the aviary or into the flight and house situated in the front. In this smaller enclosure I saw a fine pair of Toncanettes, some Mandarin Starlings, and other birds, but the large flight taking up the bulk of this section of the aviaries contains the finest collections of Waxbills and Grassfinches one could wish for, and nearly every bird excepting newly-imported specimens, in absolutely perfect feather.

A fresh supply of food in the seed vessels would soon cause "the crowd" to congregate which a few minutes before were nowhere to be seen. Down would come pert Lavender Finches, to be quickly followed by a flock of Firefinches, Green and Red Avadavats, Melba, Orange-cheeked, St. Helena and Grey Waxbills would dart by, and the bright coloured black and red-headed Gouldians would sit in full view, apparently desirous of showing off their violet breasts to the greatest advantage. The squeaks of Long-tailed and Masked Grassfinches, together with the trumpeting of Zebra Finches, were conspicuous sounds. In this aviary were to be found practically every obtainable species of Waxbill and several of the common Grassfinches.

Leaving this enclosure, one can walk through the shelter into the 50 by 30 ft. aviary, and provided the observer be not impatient, quite a panorama of birds comes into view. On a heap near the water a Jackson's Whydah could be seen dancing and jumping. Tuha and Napoleon Weavers with their sober coloured wives "floated" from reed to tree and from tree to bush like yellow puff balls. Yellow Sparrows were fossily engaged in the work of propagation. Red and Red-crested Cardinals enlivened the scene, and a beautiful pair of Green Cardinals were almost at all times in view. A Madagascar Weaver in flaming scarlet quite eclipsed anything in the aviary for sensational colour.

A Confiding Nightingale.

Unless one was careful, it was quite possible to tread upon an exceptionally fine and tame Nightingale which "hung round" for mealworms, and the "cluck" of Californian Quails was audible from among the rank grass cover. There were far too many birds in this aviary to remember, but Whydahs, Tanagers, Weavers, Sparrows, Buntings, Finches, and Cardinals were well represented.

In the third aviary the family of Bearded Reedlings reared therein were conspicuous, together with Long-tailed Tits, Wagtails, and other small birds that continually gambolled in front of one, and in the long flight next to it Rosella Parakeets and Pheasants consorted. The 24 by 30 ft. right-hand flight contained a large flock of Budgerigars and Cockatiels, together with Conures, and the place makes an ideal enclosure for fairly hardy Parrots.

In the other aviaries, in separate enclosures which numbered about six or seven in all, were to be found Pennants, Mealy Posellas, Peach-faced Lovebirds, Black-cheeked, Blue-winged and Red-faced Lovebirds, the cocks of which were exceptional in their beauty. A nice pair of Red-collared Lorikeets were situated next door.

In the other aviaries Parrot Finches in red and green darted about, and Diamond Finches danced up and down "smoking" long straws. "Dumpy" Mannikins sat in the sun "singing" with great force and no sound, and the place fairly rang with the song of Green Singing Finches and a Pekin Robin. A beautiful pair of Colombian Siskins were certainly among the most charming of all the birds in these aviaries, much more so, to my mind, than the Red or Hooded Siskins. Here one saw Mexican Rosefinches, Grey and Green Singing Finches, Jacarini Finches, Indigo Buntings, Nonpareils, Grassfinches, Purple and Yellow-winged Sugar Birds and Tanagers, etc.

What the Birds Get.

Dr. Keays gives banana to practically all of his birds, and as soft food for birds other than Sugar Birds, and Lories, etc., he uses a well-known proprietary insectile food, which he softens with hot water and uses as it is, or breaks it down. The birds get plenty of naturally-grown green-stuff and, especially when breeding, are plentifully supplied with mealworms, gentles, wasp grub, and living ant cocoons, according to their respective needs and tastes. The doctor believes in keeping reasonably warm and protected all species that need such care in winter, and thinks it more or less folly to try to winter out many small and fragile tropical birds that cannot as a group stand long, cold, dark and damp winter nights, and one might say days. Consequently such birds are protected in winter in those enclosures that possess heat radiators.

Dr. Keays is a remarkably interesting man to converse with, and is very enthusiastic with regard to his hobby. In this he is supported by a tolerant but critical scepticism, which is absolutely necessary in the pursuit of natural science. His training as a physician doubtless has helped him to excel as an aviculturist, for it is the keenly observant man, able to diagnose and arrive at logical conclusions, who is a master of his subject in a much shorter time than those who are slow to assimilate obvious facts or, even worse, imagine they have solved all the problems of aviculture.

Although Dr. Keays possesses many rare and charming birds, he is not so built that the beauty of a common Budgerigar is lost to him, a virtue which is rare in these days of craving for something which no one else possesses or can afford. He has been quick to recognise that a selected and properly inured specimen at a fairly reasonable price is cheaper, by far than an inferior or unestablished specimen. I think the tip-top condition and excellence of almost every bird in his collection are largely due to this.

The interest taken in birds by the Doctor is almost equally shared by his charming wife, who has on several occasions taken splendid collections of birds to charm the visitors to certain of our leading exhibitions.

[By a coincidence the above contribution, promised us some time ago by Mr. Silver, reaches us at the moment when Dr. Keays advertises (see another column) his collection for disposal. EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

The Shows.

NORTHAMPTON.

The glory of Northampton as a cage bird centre is not what it was twenty years ago, but the Midland fanciers ought not to have left the good old society, the Northampton Good Intent O.S., so high and dry as they did on the occasion of its annual show in the 20th Century Club Hall, Oct. 27. Half the open classes had to be cancelled, but some very nice exhibits put in an appearance in those which stood. The veteran, George Gayton, now well over eighty years of age, acted as chief steward, and attended well to the wants of the exhibitors. Mr. E. H. Woodham made a most excellent secretary, and he was ably assisted by a hardworking committee, consisting of the following good fanciers: Messrs. G. Barrett (chairman), L. J. Bellham (vice-chairman), A. Dickens (treas.), J. Hill, F. Cox, W. Murdin, W. Golding, F. Letts, C. Harvey, and J. Mason. Mr. C. A. House judged.

ALFRETON.

The Alfreton C.B.S. held its Second Annual Open Show, Oct. 29 and 30, in the nicely-lighted Assembly Room, which is of good size, and free from draughts. The staging was all one could desire; every bird could be seen at a glance. Norwich were of good quality, but not very numerous, though we know there are plenty of the right sort of the chubby variety around the locality. Yorkshires were nice, but not great; in some cases more character was required. Amongst the novice classes were several really fine birds. We fell quite in love with Mr. clear yellow and clear buff cocks put down by Mr. W. Evans, a brace of beauties. British were admired, gems being shown by Messrs. T. H. V. Mayer, G. Lees, Butler and Barlow, E. Bent, and J. Admitt.

Mr. G. Beardsall, the worthy Sec., is the right man in the right place; he controls matters efficiently, and works like a Trojan. Stewards who officiated in a most practical and praiseworthy manner were Messrs. J. Admitt, W. Evans, and G. Sawyer; all kept top-side of their work. During the afternoon we had a chat with Mr. W. Vardy, who had been quite a field day in Norwich, and who, we are pleased to report, is better in health than a short time ago. One well-known figure we missed, Mr. Driver, who came to such an untimely end not long ago; our sympathy goes out to Mrs. Driver and her family. Judging was over in good time, prize cards displayed promptly, and everything went well. Mr. W. Evans won medal for best novice, also Hyde's, with a grand cl. yell. Nor. ck., and Sandi-ford's for hottest fed, went to an mfig. yell. Nor. ck., ablaze, owned by Mr. W. Vardy. Mr. Vardy also won Trower's spl. spl. most points in Norwich, and 3rd most points Yorks. Other special winners were: 2nd most points, Nor., Admitt; 3rd, Butler and Barlow; most points Yorks., Beardsall; 2nd, Lanckham; Banerott's medal, Evans; open novice, 1, Smith; 2, Cratchley. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards were well received.

YELL. NOR. (1): 1, 3, Vardy, former a bouncer, lovely shape and feather, capital col. and carr., will do some winning; 3rd, plenty of size, nice feather, paler in col. and longer in build, both clear; 2, Dean, cl., exquisite feather, hardly so good in shape or so large as 1st; vhc. Butler and Barlow. BUFF (8): 1, 2, he, Vardy, cl., marvellous snbs., superb feather and col., thick set and clean cut, jaunty carr., gem; 2nd, richly-fed cl., A1 qual., wee bit longer in barrel wings and tail; 3, Wilcox, cl., cobby and well clothed, nice carr.; vhc. Buxton; c. Admitt. GREEN, ETC. (5): 1, 2, 3, Vardy, var. yell., a topper; var. buff, a beauty; var. yell., grand, only not so large; all in fine fettle, and staged well; a team any breeder might envy; vhc. Butler and Barlow; he, Percival. HEN (5): 1, 2, Vardy, cl. yell. and var. yell., both wonderful size, col., shape, and feather; 3, Admitt, cl. buff, good in feather and col., nice head, neck, and chest, neat wings; vhc. Wilcox; he, Percival. UNFLIG. YELL. (4): 1, 2, 3, Vardy, leader mkd. eye, red hot, smooth as glass, rattling shape, well up in snbs., clean under, most promising; 2nd, var., for col. and qual., all one could wish, true type, not a monster, but a gem; 3rd, cl., superior col. and qual., apt to cross wings; vhc. Admitt. BUFF (3): 1, 2, Vardy, gem of a var., feathered like a Java, superb type and col., lovely carr., one of the best; 2nd, cl., sweetly moulded, well clothed, not so rich in col.; 3, Admitt, mkd. wing and eye, good snbs. and qual., shapely, not quite really. NAT. COL. (2): 1, Francis, good-sized cl. buff, A1 col. and feather, nice shape and carr.; 2, Wilcox, almost white, cobby, nice size, tight as wax. PAIRS (3): 1, Vardy, very massive buff mkd. cock, red hot, good in shape and qual., with a well mkd. hen of rare shape, feather, and col., grand pair; 2, Butler and Barlow, var. buff cock, gem all over, and yell. hen of nice snbs., not bad shape, but very open in feather and down in col.; 3, Admitt, cl. yell. cock and mkd. buff hen. YELL. YORKS. (6): 1, Vardy, mkd. wing and head, straight as a rush, slim and lengthy, smooth as a bottle, lovely col., well on leg; 2, vhc. Lanckham, saddle-mkd., extraordinary length, grand pos., capital back lights and tail, bit open on front; 3, Wood, cl., beautifully drawn, tight as wax, capital col.; he, Admitt. HEN (11): 1, Mountain, stylish cl. yell., best of pos., fine length; 2, Lanckham, yell. mkd. wing, shone like a mirror, true type, good length and feather, pressed hard; 3, he, Vardy, slim and upstanding yell., capital qual. and col., hardly ready, raw about cheeks and head; vhc. Pass; c. Beardsall. UNFLIG. YELL. (5): 1, Vardy, mkd. head, straight up; A1 col. and feather, stylish, and well on leg; 2, Lanckham, mkd. wing, longer than wanner, good in qual. and col., beaten a little in character; 3, Barton, mkd. wings and head, straight and well clothed, rich col., well on leg, shorter; vhc. Elkin. BUFF (6): 1, Pass, cl., smooth as wax, grand pos., fine length, capital back, wings, and tail, in the pink; 2, Mountain, mkd. wing, more length, good stand, nice wing carr., not so compact in texture; 3, vhc. Lanckham, cl., stands nicely, A1 col. and qual.; vhc. Vardy; c. Barton. NAT. COL. (3): 1, 2, Selby and Wason, cl., capital feather, nice pos. and length, good on leg; 2nd, mkd. head, rare length and pos., neat head; 3, Beardsall, cl., straight and stylish. PAIRS (3): 1, Lanckham, marvellous lengthy cl. yell. cock, with a grand cl. buff hen; 2, Beardsall, cl. yell. cock of good feather, pos. and col., with a very stylish tdk. buff hen, close up; 3, Wood, buff green cock, possessing true character and very neat and nerry cl. yell. hen. A.O.V. YORKS. (2): 1, 2, Beardsall, nice brace of cinn., winner longest, otherwise near on equal in merit throughout. CRESTS (2): 1, 2, Dodd, yell. mkd. D.C., plenty of snbs. and feather, crest large and well radiated, A1 droop, neat centre, gem; 2nd, buff, grizzled crest, heaps of feather, monster crest thickly packed, hardly settled yet. C.B. SHEFFIELD'S REMARKABLE SHOW

A HUGE ENTRY OF NEARLY 1,000 BIRDS.

Success is not achieved by accident, there is always a reason. A fairly well known saying is to the effect, "many men many opinions." Many men were present from North, South, East, and West, at the Sheffield O.S. Annual Show, Nov. 5, 6. Many opinions were conspicuous by their absence, all were of one mind—a glorious exhibition.

Within the four walls of Cutlers' Hall, of historic fame, were housed a matter of 992 exhibits. One need hardly describe the suitability of so spacious and well adapted a venue for an exhibition of this description. The society went to a great expense in having the show room specially lighted by electricity, enhancing the carnival to a great degree. On the eve of the function, we popped in to see how matters were going, and found that Mr. G. Fletcher had worked to such effect that all the staging, which is on the three tier principle, was completed by 5 o'clock on the Thursday evening.

As the birds were delivered they were carefully unpacked, watered, and bunched straight away. Special private drays were employed to fetch the cases from the various stations, so as to ensure promptitude of arrival at the show; Messrs. T. Dawn and G. Fletcher obliging with their turn-outs. The officials who dealt so effectively with the unpacking, staging, etc., were Messrs. G. Fletcher, show manager, P. Dawn chairman, J. A. T. Woodall vice-chair, A. H. Waters, J. Allen, J. H. Richardson, J. Linley, J. Milne, J. Memmott, J. Mace, and W. Higgins. Mr. E. Simpson proved himself a worthy helper, his stacking away of the empty cases in a most methodical manner, so as to be quickly located when required for return journey, was to be greatly admired. Messrs. G. Fletcher, J. A. T. Woodall, A. Shupe, T. Ridal, and J. Glaves, were the "pilgrims of the night," acting as all night stewards on Thursday. Mr. J. Memmott saw to the watering, in a most practical way, while the feeding of the foreigners was in the hands of Messrs. G. Fletcher, J. A. T. Woodall, and G. Moore, a trio of "good uns"; all did excellently.

On the Friday at 2 p.m. the Master Cutler, Mr. W. H. Ellis officiated at the opening ceremony. Dr. W. Craig, treasurer, proposed a hearty vote of thanks, and Mr. J. Robinson seconded.

A COLLECTION HARD TO BEAT

The committee of management is comprised of well known, and fully tried fanciers, Mr. T. Dawn is a grand chairman, J. A. T. Woodall a most capable understudy, and Messrs. G. Fletcher, J. Mace, G. Moore, J. Memmott, J. Milne, T. Ridal, P. Walsh, T. Tow, W. Baxby, A. H. Waters, J. H. Richardson, W. H. Spencer, E. Simpson, and W. Moore. Dr. Craig, the treasurer, is of the "true type," a finer supporter to any society could not be wished. Mr. E. C. Job, sec., and Mr. R. Colton, hon. sec., are a brace of "unique specimens" as rein-holders, they drive straight, sure, and to a nicety. What is foreign to them in the workings of secretarial duties, one need not trouble over. They have both been there before.

The catalogue opened with the champion Yorks. Certainly the "cream" was present, but we should have liked to see the numbers greater; just over 10 per class was not a fitting response to the good things offered. Toppers were put down by Dr. Craig, he gaining 6 firsts, including all the 4 cinnamon marked classes, L. Dykes, P. Hirst, A. W. Hartley, J. E. Priestley, L. Dyson, and H. Ives. Amongst the novices the outstanding bird was the unfledged wing mdk. yellow hen, a real beauty, shown by Mr. G. Ireland. This, we believe, found a "fresh stable" after the show.

Greens, both Yorks and Norwich, were a nice collection, averaging a little over nine per class. We seem to think the colour is not so solid as was the case a few years ago. The "Mersey men" should endeavour to rectify this. Borders in the selfs or fowls were disappointing, only 22 in the four classes provided, but Messrs. A. Montgomery (1 first) and Jas. Johnston (3 firsts) were represented by real pictures. In the other Border classes the numbers again were moderate, but the quality could not be carpied at. In the novice Norwich were several quite capable of running well, had they been competing in the "upper circles"; Crest and Cresthreds were good but few.

LENT CHARM TO THE SHOW.

British made a capital display, in fact along with the foreign they were the feature of the show. In the former were many magnificent birds, and in the latter were exhibits which added much charm to the show. The Mules and Hybrids also were very much admired, for rarity was in strong evidence.

Amongst the many visitors we saw and chatted with were Messrs. H. H. Towers (Keighley), W. Vardy (Hucknall), E. Fox (Long Eaton), J. Smith (Ilkeston), J. Thomas (Amblethorpe), L. Dykes (Bradford), W. Bescohy (Doncaster), Mrs. Montague Smith (London) and others. Lady Pilkington wrote saying how sorry she was in not being able to support with entries, her birds not being ready. All the birds shown by Dr. Craig in the selling classes, were generously presented to the society, the proceeds from the sale helping to swell the funds considerably. Mr. C. Prior's birds from Ropley, Hants, arrived at 1 p.m., too late for judging, and Mr. A. Silver's Budget arrived dead; hard lines.

Mr. T. Dawn and Dr. Craig each sold over 200 tickets previous to the show's opening; one cannot wonder at Sheffield O.S. going so strong with such stalwarts in the ranks. Catalogues with awards were on sale early on the Friday, and those that had to be got off by post had all gone by 6 p.m. Stewards who worked grandly, keeping well on top side of all details allotted to them, were Messrs. Fletcher, Moore, Woodall, Roberts, Shupe, Waters, Dawn, and Ridal. All deserve praise, and must be put down as assets of the society. We were informed that financially the show was a great success.

FANCIERS WELL TREATED.

Fanciers present on the Saturday were allowed to leave with their exhibits in time to catch early trains home, and exhibits that had to travel long distances were got off in good time. Others, by request, were kept over until Sunday, and were dispatched during the afternoon by the most convenient and best routes. Altogether the show was one of the best managed it has ever been "our lot to see. The judges were—Messrs. W. Mundell (Bradford), H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), J. Robinson (London), J. Beswick (Stockport), and J. C. Barnes, the well-known local enthusiast, and their placings were on the whole very well received.

MR. MUNDELL'S CLASSES.

Yorkshires were a fine lot of birds; we have seen more entries, but type and quality were there to perfection. Dr. Craig carried all before him in the Cinnamon marked class, taking all the 1sts in the dark-eyed section; and another good performance was that of Mr. L. Dykes, who captured six 1sts in the dark-eyed section. The sensation was the buff unfledged chm. marked hen of Mr. Ives, which took 1st in its class and won the rose bowl for the best unfledged Yorks., a real gem; we heard she was claimed at catalogue price, £15 15s., if so we wish the new owner every luck with his purchase.
